Flood Danger Lingers

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The savage Rio Grande, monstrously bloated by Hurricane Beulah's cloudbursts, sent a record torrent raging into the fringes of five South Texas cities today after ripping out a flood control dam.

The Texas Department of Public Safety warned residents along the side channel— the Arroyo Colorado— in Mercedes, La Feria, Harlingen, Rio Hondo and Lozano to flee to high ground.

Nearly 1,000 Harlingen residents fled to shelter by dawn as water topped the rim of the arroyo and lapped into the neighborhoods of fine homes.

At 6:30 a.m. CDT the Arroyo surged with 38.2 feet of water— more than a foot above the predicted crest-and it still rose. A call went out for more volunteers to help crews who had spent the night building sandbag dikes around homes and storm sewers which lead the Arroyo.

The Coast Guard said its helicopters evacuated 635 Mexicans surrounded by flood waters by dark Sunday.

The Department of Public Safety said Harlingen was in the most danger of the five Texas cities threatened by the rampaging Arroyo Colorado.

The Arroyo carried a flood crest of 34.2 feet in 1958. After that flood the 300-foot wide steel and concrete dam was built near Mercedes to turn floodwaters into a man-made channel and away from the Arroyo and the cities bordering it.

The state highway patrol set up road blocks to keep refugees from returning to the Rio Grande valley. Most roads were either impassable or extremely difficult anyway.

National Guard Members Practice Riot Tactics

Sikeston members of the National Guard participated in riot training activities Saturday and Sunday at the Malden air base.

The Sikeston unit is company B, 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry. All companies of the 2nd battalion, 140th infantry consisting of 600 men participated in the training. Other units of the battalion are in Poplar Bluff, Doniphan, Dexter, Bernie, Caruthersville, Kennett and Portageville.

The exercise Sunday was for the purpose of assisting the battalion in operational training for support of civil authorities in the event of civil disorder.

Guardsmen dressed in civilian clothes played the part of rioters and snipers and threw mud, mustard, eggs and flour at the troops moving in formations being practiced to break up riots.

Buildings on the air base were designated as the city hall, fire station and industrial complex. The base was, for purposes of training, turned into a small city named "Airport City."

Civil authorities from area towns were invited to watch the training. Attending from Sikeston were Chief of Police Arthur Bruce and Sgts. Leonard Campbell, Ruben Templeton, Thurman Burns and L. G. Woodward.

Members of companies in Cape Girardeau, Jackson and Charleston of the 1st Battalion, 140th Infantry, participated in similar riot training activities Sunday at the old high school in Charleston.

The 1st battalion is commanded by Lt. Col. O. T. Dalton, Charleston. The 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry, is commanded by Lt. Col. Harold LaBrot, Gideon.

Grass Fire Springs From Weiner Roast

Firemen were called to extinguish a grass fire at 5 p.m. Sunday at the residence of A. L. Harris, Jr., 624 Moore. No damage was caused. The fire spread from another fire started for a wiener roast.

Lilbourn Boy Hurt, Bike Hit by Car

A 7-year-old Lilbourn boy sustained a fractured right arm and possible fractured pelvis when his bicycle was hit by a car in Lilbourn at 5:20 p.m. Saturday.

The highway patrol said the boy was riding on the street shoulder and darted in front of the car, driven by Enoch Melton, 27, Lilbourn. The boy was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Lilbourn police charged Melton with having no driver's license and careless and reckless driving.

A passenger in a car was injured in a car-truck accident at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, one mile north of Anniston on highway 77.

The two-ton truck, driven by George Allen, 33, of East Prairie, attempted to make a left turn when the car, driven by Vernon Smith, 21, of Paducah, attempted to pass the car, troopers said. The vehicles sideswiped.

Clyde Staples, 23, of Paducah sustained a scalp cut and possible concussion. He was taken to the Sikeston hospital.

Smith was charged with careless and reckless driving and improper passing.

Falls and Car Mishaps Hurt Four

Two were treated for bruises in falls and two for car accident injuries in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Saturday and Sunday.

Rita Anderson, Charleston, fell and injured her wrist and foot; Vernon Smith Jr., and Clyde D. Staples, both of Paducah, were in a car accident; Beatrice K. Stauffer, fell while running across blacktop road; Phillip W. Boyer, struck toe on furniture.

Vandals Smash Glass Windows

MOREHOUSE — Vandals smashed three plate glass windows valued at $350 at Neal's auto parts Sunday morning.

City Marshal Charley Neal, owner of the store, said the vandals threw bottles through the windows. The windows were not insured.

Shortly after the incident Neal received an anonymous telephone call telling him of the vandalism.

The marshal said he has received anonymous calls for six weeks telling him of vandalism and burglaries in Morehouse. He said the calls are made about 3 a.m. in the morning.

Neal said he believes that the vandals are under 21 and have been drinking when they commit acts of vandalism. He has five youths under surveillance.

Two months ago vandals broke the glass out of his wife's car, and several weeks ago they pulled five stop signs out of the ground and overturned a car.

Several false alarms have been turned into the fire department, Neal said.

Governor Praises Truman Decisions

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes credits Harry S. Truman with having made decisions that served Western civilization and predicts he will go down in history as one of the great presidents.

"Harry Truman will always make me proud to be a Missourian," the governor told a women's luncheon at a Truman Day rally in Poplar Bluff Saturday.

"I admire sincerely Harry Truman's unbending honesty and integrity. I admire his courage in making decisions which should frighten any normal man."

He said the former president used education, law and order and faith to keep America free and promote civiliation.

Also speaking at the rally, Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton advocated a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. Continuing it, he said, precludes a negotiated peace.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitutes the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Having filed for the U. S. Senate last week, Eagleton said that if he were in the Senate he would try to have his Vietnam views carried out. He said he believes the people of Vietnam want peace.

AMC Discloses Price Increase

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors said today its 1968 cars will carry price tags averaging $89 or 3.8 per cent higher than those on comparable 1967 models.

AMC thus became the fourth U.S. car maker to increase prices on its 1968 models.

According to the auto companies own price figures, which include federal taxes and dealer preparation charges, these were in comparative increases:

General Motors $110, 3.6 per cent; Ford $114, 3.9 per cent; Chrysler $133, 4.6 per cent; AM Motors, $89, 3.8 per cent.

AMC's price hike was smaller in terms of dollars than the increases announced by the Big Three but on a percentage basis it was nearer their figures.

AMC's price picture was complicated by the fact that on its 1968 Ambassadors, or top-of-the-line models, air-conditioners will be standard equipment. They were a $350 option in 1967 models.

AMC said that the change in air-conditioners and in dealer discounts "does not lend itself to a meaningful comparison of price changes. However, the prices of 1968 Ambassadors compared with comparably equipped 1967 models are significantly lower."

Three Vie for Miss Sikeston

Mary Beth LaPlant, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford LaPlant, 31 Green Meadows, Pamela Ann Marsh, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marsh, 537 Moore, and Judith Ann Rogers, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Rogers, 425 Helen Ave., are candidates for Miss Sikeston, 1967.

Miss Sikeston will be crowned Friday during the 23rd annual Americal Legion Cotton Carnival which began today and continues through Saturday. The contest will begin at 10 p.m. The winner will be crowned by Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton.

Eleven girls have entered the Miss Cotton Carnival Contests, but more entrants are expected, Ledbetter said. The queen will be crowned by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. The queen's ball will be at 10 p.m. Saturday at the American Legion Hall. The Flames will play at the ball.

Another band, The No Names will play from 2 p.m. until 11 p.m. Saturday.

Embezzler of Millions Dies

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)- Miss Minnie Mangum, spinster Sunday school teacher who embezzled nearly $3 million is dead at the age of 71.

She became ill Sunday at the church where she had taught for more than 25 years, went home to bed and apparently died in her sleep. She was dead on arrival at a Portsmouth Hospital.

Her sister, Mrs. Lillian V. Eure, with whom she lived, said she apparently suffered a stroke. She had one in prison several years ago.

Miss Minnie, as she was called by her many friends and business aquaintances, was paroled 2½ years ago after serving nine years of a 20-year prison sentence.

Her arrest in December 1955 and the disclosure of embezzlements totaling nearly $3 million brought ruin to the Commonwealth Savings and Loan Association in nearby Norfolk.

Rockefeller Eyed As Favorite Son

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) - Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will go to next year's Republican national convention as a favorite - son candidate for president, if New York GOP leaders follow through on present plans.

Well-qualified sources reported Sunday that at least a tentative decision had been made to designate him as such, as a device, they said, to hold the state's 92-vote delegation together.

Among other things, the sources said, party leaders are anxious to prevent possible raids on the delegation by such potential candidates as former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the ex-Californian who now claims New York as his home state.

Rockefeller has been backing Michigan's Gov. George Romney for the 1968 presidential nomination while insistently disclaiming any further White House ambitions of his own.

East Prairie Airman Hurt By Grenade

EAST PRAIRIE--Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Corbin, 302 Second St., have been notified that their son A2c Norman J. Corbin, 22, was seriously injured Sept. 15 about 30 miles north of DaNang.

He received second and third degree burns to his chest, arms and face and severe cuts and an explosion injury to his right hand. His injury was the result of an exploding smoke grenade.

He was treated in the air force base hospital and transferred last Monday to the 106th General Hospital, Yokohama, Japan.

The Corbins received a telegram reporting that Airman Corbin was much improved.

Corbin's address is 106th General Hospital, APO, San Francisco, Calif., 96503.

Corbin is a 1963 graduate of East Prairie high school.

150 at Utility Open House

Between 150 and 200 persons attended an open house Sunday afternoon at the E. P. Coleman steam plant, E. R. Inman, director, said.

Nine small appliance and 10 free electric bills were awarded as attendance prizes. Winners will be named in an advertisement in tomorrow's Daily Standard.

Tours were conducted by steam plant personal from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Hot dogs and soft drinks were served visitors.

Interest was generated in electric heating displays, Inman said.

Story Death Delays ASC Elections

The election of a member to Agricultural, Stabilization and Conservation county committees throughout Missouri, scheduled for Saturday, were postponed, because of the death of A. L. "Abbie" Story, Charleston, a member of the state committee, in a plane crash Wednesday.

The meetings will be held next Saturday at 10 a.m.

Shipping Proviso Adopted

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blast at Castro-Communist subversion in Latin America, the Hemisphere foreign ministers signed early today a resolution recommending that the American republics apply limited sanctions against non-Communist ships which sail to Cuba.

The 20-0 vote "to condemn forcefully" Fidel Castro's regime for "repeated intervention and aggression" in Venezuela, Bolivia and other hemisphere countries was a highlight of the debate-filled, three-day Organization of American States conference on the Cuban threat.

The closer 15-0 vote, with six abstentions, for the U.S.-proposed shipping penalty was an especially sweet victory for weary U.S. diplomats.

After long hours of negotiating they lost a bid for hemisphere blacklisting of non-Communist firms doing business with Cuba.

Under the shipping proviso, part of a 15-point resolution aimed at confining the Havana menace, non-Communist vessels going to Cuba would be denied fueling facilities in Latin American ports and would get no government-financed cargoes.

The United States itself has long applied this penalty. Under the new OAS recommendation, which is not mandatory, it is up to the other American republics to follow suit.

The idea is to put more teeth into appeals by OAS members— who have barred their own trade with Cuba— to other non-Communist nations to quit dealing with Castro so long as he pushes insurrection in the Americas.

Another point in the new resolution repeated the OAS appeal to "friendly states" to curb their commercial transactions and government credits in Cuban trade. But it was watered down with elimination of the blacklisting proviso.

Since January, 1963, calls by non-Communist ships at Cuban ports have dropped by one third with the U.S. blacklisting of some 270 vessels. Cuba's trade with the West has slipped to about $350 million a year, but countries such as England, France and Spain continue to do business with her.

It was past midnight— half a day behind schedule— when the foreign affairs chiefs finally signed the resolution after long-winded debate in closed and open sessions.

To Venezuela, which called the conference after persistent Havana-backed terrorism in that country, the declaration was an "enormous satisfaction."

U.S. diplomats hailed the 20-0 tally as evidence of hemisphere solidarity against Castro. Only Mexico abstained from the vote. Mexico is the sole American republic which has maintained relations with the Havana regime since the OAS voted for a break in 1964.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said: "Today the hemisphere is more unified than ever, more determined than ever to assure the peace, security and tranquility to which all of us aspire."

In most respects, the 15-point resolution breaks no new ground beyond recommendations made by the Inter-American body in past years.

MAMOS Will Recruit Trainees

WARDELL - The Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunity Services corporation announced today recruitment of traniees for participation in the MAMOS program will begin the first week in October.

Mrs. Thomas Prentice, Area project director, said that recruitment will take place in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties, continuing until Oct. 16, when classes will begin. The MAMOS program has operated in Dunklin and Pemiscot counties since March.

It is a three-phase program, which provides migrant and seasonal farm workers in Southeast Missouri with adult basic education, pre-employment training and social services. The program, which is financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington D. C., is designed to move its participants out of the migrant steam into positions of permanent employment. Trainees receive a weekly check while they are enrolled.

The applicant must be an adult head of a household, more than 18.

The head of a household must be an adult male member, unless there is no adult male in the household;

At least 50 per cent of the applicant's total family income for the previous year must have been earned in agricultural employment;

The applicant must have been employed only on a seasonal basis and by more than one employer during the previous calendar year;

The applicant must have an annual family income that is at or below the poverty level. For a farm family of four, this would be an income of $2,100 per year.

The schedule for recruiting new trainees is Oct. 4, Pemiscot county; Oct. 5, Dunklin county; and Oct. 6 New Madrid county.

On each of these days, teacher teams will be located in the four Neighborhood Service Centers in each county from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and social service aides will be conducting interviews among the migrants and seasonal farm workers living in each county. Applicants accepted for training will be tested, grouped and assigned to training centers Oct. 9-10.

Individuals desiring further information about the program may contact MAMOS personal or call or visit the area project office in Wardell. The telephone number at Wardell is MA 8-3453.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

PENSION PLAN SAFEGUARDS

Lines are being drawn by the federal government and the business community for a confrontation over regulation of private pension plans with billions of dollars in assets.

Such business spokesmen as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce flatly deny that there is need for further government regulation. The National Retail Merchants Association even charges that the push for reform is an effort to convert private pension plans into "a second system of Social Security, paid for out of private money." But the Johnson administration and some members of Congress insist that tighter regulation is required, and they are moving in that direction.

At the root of the controversy is the possibility that perhaps as few as one in five of the more than 25 million persons now covered by private pension plans ever will receive any pension benefits. Most of the plans have provisions so restrictive that an eligible employee can disqualify himself for ultimate benefits in a variety of ways, especially by changing jobs.

The aggregate economic impact of private pension plans has reached important proportions. Nearly three million retired workers were receiving pensions last year and the number is expected to rise to 6.6 million by 1980. More than $7.5 billion was contributed to pension plans in 1966, and the sum will be almost $11 billion annually by 1980.

Pay-outs to beneficiaries are running now at about $3 billion annually. The reserves held by the pension funds amounted in 1966 to about $90 billion and will hit $225 billion by 1980.

Stanley S. Surrey, assistant secretary of the Treasury, has named five specific areas in which the administration believes that the rules governing pension plans need tightening: (1) vesting, (2) funding and reinsurance, (3) broadening of employee coverage, (4) responsibility of plan managers, and (5) additional disclosure.

When a pension is vested, an employee retains the right to benefits regardless of later circumstances, such as getting fired or moving voluntarily to another job. A Labor Department study found that vesting is so limited that nearly one-half of the 15.6 million workers covered by the plans studied had no vested right to a pension even when they had worked for one employer for 25 years and were 50 years old.

A federal interagency staff has proposed that participants in private pension plans be granted vested rights after 10 years service with an employer. This proposal is strongly opposed by many business groups and even the President's own Labor-Management Advisory Committee.

That committee, with only a few dissenting members, criticized a similar proposal put forward two years ago: "Private plans have their own unique role to play. . . We are fearful that a vesting requirement by law would deprive them of that degree of flexibility essential to perform this function."

Few of the pension plans now in operation are fully funded. In other words, the reserves are not large enough to make sure that a plan's liabilities to its members will be met. Most plans are less than 25 years old and they have not yet had time to fund the liabilities for past employment assumed at their inception.

These past liabilities are usually funded over a 30-year period. The administration tentatively is suggesting a 25-year limit on funding. To insure that the plan will still be in operation at the end of the 25-year period (or at least that the workers will get the benefits they have earned), the interagency staff further proposed a reinsurance program.

Nearly 40 bills have been introduces in the 90th Congress to increase government regulation of pension plans. One, recommended by President Johnson, would require added disclosures by plan administrators of financial data and set limits on certain types of investments.

Federal regulation of pension plans dates from 1928 and has steadily been broadened. The major justification for the regulation is that the government, through tax deductions, pays about 30 percent of the cost of most plans. Employers are allowed to deduct contributions as a current business expense as though the payments were a form of wage.

The pension plans are coming under attack for other reasons, too. By last autumn more than 55 percent of all pension plan assets were invested in common stocks, and the Joint Economic Committee warned that a prolonged drop in the stock market could be disasterous for the plans.

Many observers believe that the prospective pensioner is entitled to additional protection and to better odds than one out of five on eventually collecting. Congress faces the task of marking more definite boundaries between private interests and public purposes in this important economic sector.

Here we go again. As George Lough used to say to me about my advise, "Blanton you could really ruin my business if I would just let you."

Back again about the cigarette business.

If we were president of the tobacco companies, instead of making them longer, we would make them shorter and raise the price.

Because of people like you and me the cigarette smoking habit will not continue to increase.

Just the older smokers who can't kick the habit will stay with it until death do them part.

The younger ones will come to their senses as lung cancer and emphysema continues to increase its toll.

Dummy cars -- called simulators -- are being used to train straight-A drivers in the suburban community of Hinsdale, Illinois.

The simulators, which resemble over-sized desks, are equipped with mock controls, including dashboards, steering wheels, gear shifts and brakes.

The cars are part of a driver-training program being taught at Hinsdale high school. They enable students to learn how to drive without leaving the classroom, although the Hinsdale teen-agers do at one stage of the three-phase course, which includes:

1. Nine weeks of classroom study, devoted to learning the rules of the road and --yes -- written examinations.

2. Ten one-hour periods behind the wheel of the non-moving simulator to become accustomed to the controls of a car.

3. Nine one-hour periods of actual driving on the road with an instructor at the side of each student.

In the opinion of those who teach the course, teen-age drivers who successfully complete the program are likely to be better drivers than those who haven't, including most adults.

How does the dummy car work?

It combines challenge with fun, using a film projector and a tape recorder. Students behind the wheel view films of traffic scenes, test situations calling for a decision and reaction from the driver.

A typical test situation might force a student to decide whether to accelerate or hit the brakes while passing another vehicle.

If the student makes a mistake -- fails to obey a stop sign that appears on the screen or doesn't brake when a pedestrian steps off the corner -- a light mounted on the simulator flashes on to indicate the error.

Students' reactions are recorded on tape and made available to them later so they can check their errors.

Although many parents criticize driver education as a waste of time, its value can be supported by insurance rates. Teen-age drivers in Illinois, for example, who have completed high school driver training courses, qualify for 10 per cent lower insurance rates. The same reward is available in many other states.

About 500,000 high school students are enrolled in driver education courses, but another 1,500,000 are not, a recent survey by the National Education Association indicates. The Association believes driver training should be mandatory in schools, and should be supported by state and federal funds.

"The courtroom belongs to the people - and not to the lawyer," said Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe - Democrat. Americans have a share in the proper workings of the judicial system, but their interests are threatened "by the efforts of lawyers and bar associations to remove the courts from the public arena and claim them as their own."

THE INCREDIBLE TALES that imaginative talkers of England told years ago were described then and there as concocted bully stories -- until some natural man down the line cut up the adjectives to call them cock and bull stories. So reports our language man.

By HAL COOPER

NEW YORK (AP) — Well, it's enough to make you antiunion. Because, after all, if the United Federation of Teachers doesn't call this strike against the New York school system, it never happens.

No strike, and Public School No. 44 will be open. If No. 44 is open, Jeffrey, aged 11, will be in class instead of putting his trousers on at 10 a.m. And if Jeffrey is not putting his trousers on at 10 a.m., what occurs does not occur.

First word of what has taken place comes in the form of a telephone call to the office from Jeffrey's brother, Nick, aged 10.

"Daddy," says Nick, "Jeffrey is in trouble. He was putting his pants on and, you know, something happened which is a man problem. That's why we didn't call Monny at the University."

"It involves the zipper?"

"Yes, Daddy. We've tried everything but it's no good. Jeffrey is being very brave, but . . ."

"Hold everything. Daddy will be home cabwise forthwith."

The cab delivers Daddy at the apartment house in Manhattan and it is quickly evident that this is a contretemps which will require professional assistance.

So a telephone call is made to the family doctor.

"Oh, my goodness," says the family doctor. "Bring the poor little fellow over immediately."

After a somewhat tiresome interlude a cab is captured and the trip is made to the doctor's lair on Central Park West.

"Hmm," says the doctor. "You don't particularly care what happens to the pants?"

"No, doctor. The important thing is to release the captive."

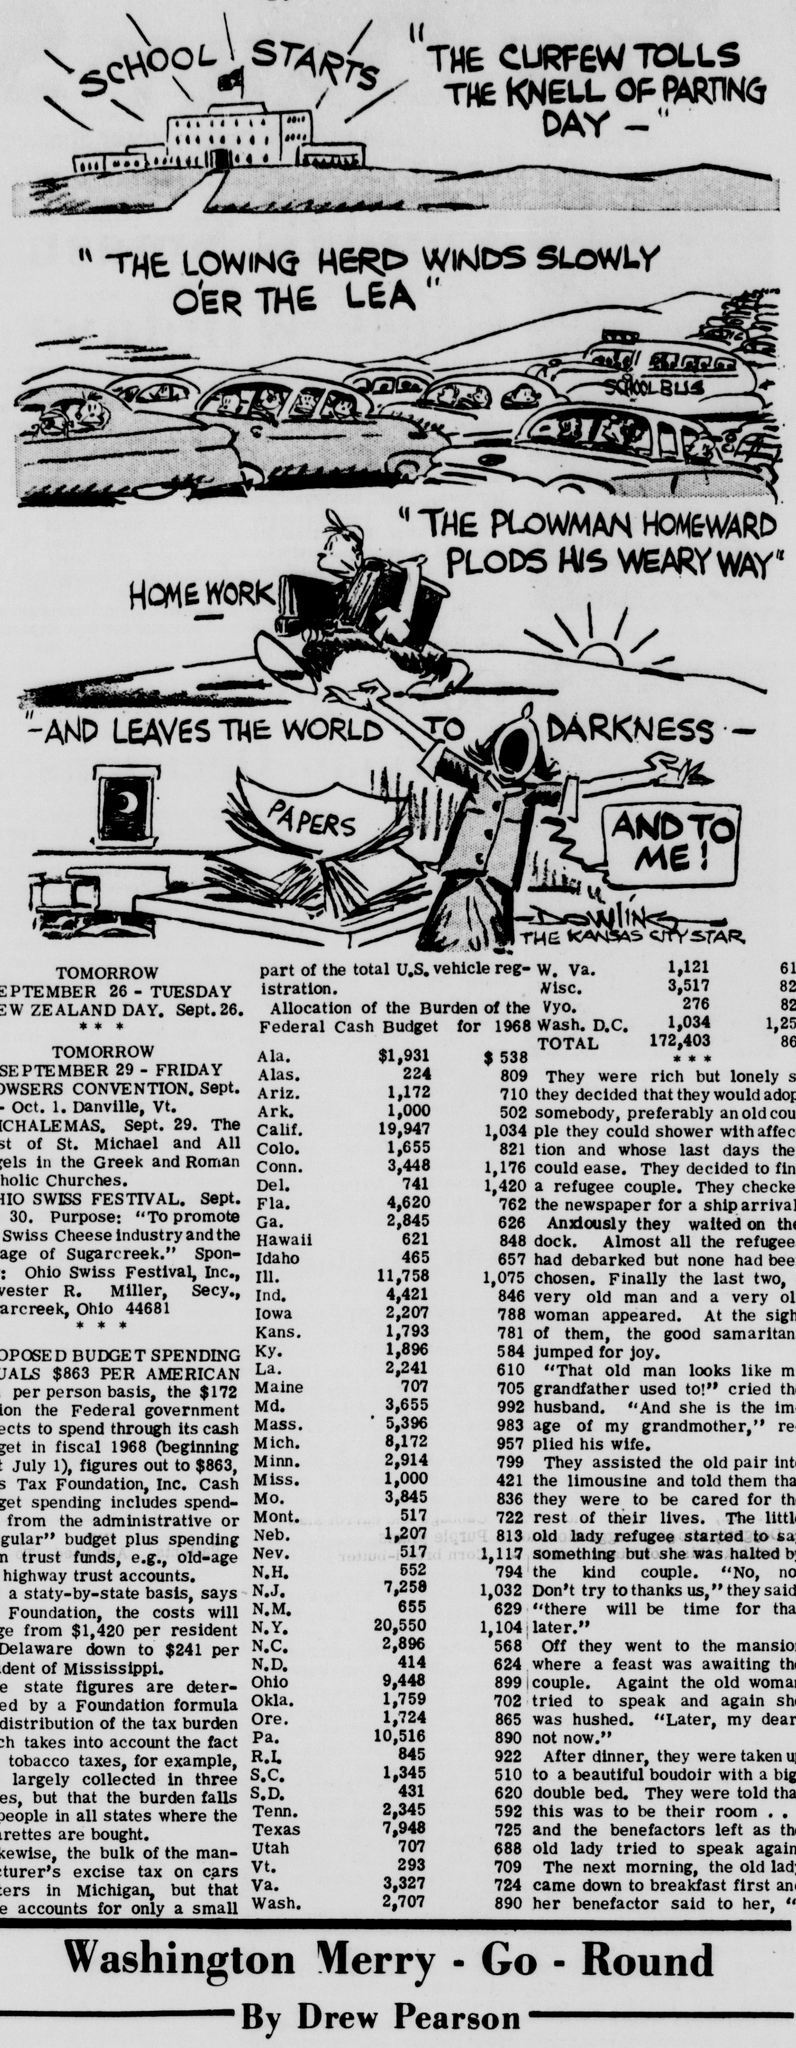

"Very well. Now, you take the right-hand side of the zipper and I'll take the left and— there we go! All right, Jeffrey?"

"Yes, doctor, and thank you," says Jeffrey, being brave.

Jeffrey, Nick and Daddy then repair back to the apartment building in a cab and another day in the life of a bunch of born losers is history.

We do not know how much money the United Federation of Teachers may have, but we sincerely hope it is plenty. Because we are going to sue them for every dime they own, unless we cool off quite a few degrees in the near future.

PROPOSED BUDGET SPENDING EQUALS $863 PER AMERICAN

On per person basis, the $172 billion the Federal government expects to spend through its cash budget in fiscal 1968 (beginning next July 1), figures out to $863, says Tax Foundation, Inc. Cash budget spending includes spending from the administrative or "regular" budget plus spending from trust funds, e.g., old-age and highway trust accounts.

On a staty-by-state basis, says the Foundation, the costs will range from $1,420 per resident of Delaware down to $241 per resident of Mississippi.

The state figures are determined by a Foundation formula for distribution of the tax burden which takes into account the fact that tobacco taxes, for example, are largely collected in three states, but that the burden falls on people in all states where the cigarettes are bought.

Likewise, the bulk of the manufacturer's excise tax on cars centers in Michigan, but that state accounts for only a small part of the total U.S. vehicle registration.

They were rich but lonely so they decided that they would adopt somebody, preferably an old couple they could shower with affection and whose last days they could ease. They decided to find a refugee couple. They checked the newspaper for a ship arrival.

Anxiously they waited on the dock. Almost all the refugees had debarked but none had been chosen. Finally the last two, a very old man and a very old woman appeared. At the sight of them, the good samaritans jumped for joy.

"That old man looks like my grandfather used to!" cried the husband. "And she is the image of my grandmother," replied his wife.

They assisted the old pair into the limousine and told them that they were to be cared for the rest of their lives. The little old lady refugee started to say something but she was halted by the kind couple. "No, no. Don't try to thanks us," they said, "there will be time for that later."

Off they went to the mansion where a feast was awaiting the couple. Againt the old woman tried to speak and again she was hushed. "Later, my dear, not now."

After dinner, they were taken up to a beautiful boudoir with a big, double bed. They were told that this was to be their room . . . and the benefactors left as the old lady tried to speak again.

The next morning, the old lady came down to breakfast first and her benefactor said to her, "I know you want to say something."

"I do," cried the old lady, wringing her hands. "I want to thank you for everything . . . but tell me, who is that little old man you've got rooming with me?"

REQUIEM FOR DUPLICITY

When John Hill was publishing his magazine, "Engineering News," (which later became McGraw-Hill's Engineering News Record), he sold the center spread to a steel manufacturer on an every-issue basis.

One day a bridge in one of the western states collapsed. Engineering News reported that the disaster had been caused by steel which had not measured up to the builder's specifications. They named the culprit company -- the magazine's heavy advertiser.

Almost before the ink was dry, the president of the steel firm charged into John Hill's office and said: "You can cancel my advertising from this day on!"

As reported in Printers Ink: "John Hill rose to his feet. He fixed a burning eye on the steelmaker and said with icy calmness, 'Sir, from the moment we learned you sold defective steel, we revoked your privilege to advertise in our pages. We don't do business with murderers!'

"From that day until the end of the steelmaker's contract, the spread his advertising had always occupied in Engineering News remained blank -- except for a single line of type which read, simply, 'Dedicated to a principle.'"

A NON-PARTISAN PLAN

Increasingly, students of government are realizing that the district plan for choosing the President of the United States, as presented to the Constitutional Convention by James Wilson of Pennsylvania on June 2, 1787, is the best method by which the intention of the Founders of Freedom to create a republic form of government in the United States can be realized and perpetuated. Now antiquated, the Electoral College needs only to be wisely reformed -- never abolished.

The Congressional District Plan for its reform will help guarantee what the Founders sought to achieve. This plan would be placed in effect under a proposed constitutional amendment now before both houses of Congress. Since the time element now precludes a ratification by the state legislatures soon enough for the reform amendment to affect the 1968 presidential election, it has become a truly non - partisan measure. No one can say which of the major political parties might benefit more from its adoption. Certain it is that under this plan for Electoral College reform (SJR 86), nearly every state with 10 or more electors would give a part of its electoral vote to each of the major party candidates. This would effectively break the big population state monopoly.

Some advocate the direct vote plan for naming the President. Substitution of the direct vote for the Electoral College system would mean abandonment of an important provision relied upon by the authors of the Constitution to establish our nation as a Republic. It is significant that in a recent poll only 10 per cent favored continuation of the Electoral College system in its present form. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- "Safety - in - the-streets," the crime prevention bill, is now bogged down between a majority of the senate which favors it and a majority of the house of representatives which has tacked an unworkable provision to it. Between the two, the man and woman in the street who suffer from stickups, yokings and rape may be out of luck.

Backing the senate majority is Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who has made a more detailed study of police and crime prevention than probably any other attorney general.

On the house side is a coalition of Dixiecrats who are afraid that if the federal government allocates the money for crime prevention, it will set up guidelines, and require southern cities to hire a certain number of Negro police.

Voting with the Dixiecrats in the house are Republican congressmen who see a chance to allocate federal money to states which, for lack of courage to tax, don't raise funds for themselves.

"The United States spends $12 billion a year on liquor," says Attorney General Clark, "and $8.8 billion on tobacco. In contrast we spend only $4 billion on criminal justice. This includes salaries to police, cost of jails and our whole correctional system, federal, state and local.

"We have got to build up local police forces," emphasizes Clark. "The average policeman is grossly underpaid. If he were paid $10,000 as an average base, it would not be too much."

STATE VS. CITY POLICE

Real fact is that most state officials candidly admit they are completely unequipped to handle crime funds which the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition wants to give them.

In 1966 President Johnson asked the 50 governors to set up Lanning commissions to combat crime so the justice department could work effectively with them. As of today, 18 months later, only 13 states indicated any interest in the plan, even though they knew the justice department hoped to allocate funds for crime prevention.

Most states have no police other than highway patrols. Seventy per cent of state police funds is spent on highway safety.

Furthermore, state governments are not equipped to allocate funds from the "safe streets" bill. They would have to set up bureaus, recruit staffs and go to considerable expense to cooperate with the cities where most of the crime takes place. Many states would have to pass an amendment to their constitutions to permit this work, and practically all would have to pass legislation. All this would cause delays of one to two years.

What the Dixiecrat - GOP coalition overlooks is that it's the cities which specialize in police, not the states. New York City, for instance, has 29,000 police, a force larger than the U.S. Marine Corps before World War II. The Justice Department in Washington, through the FBI, is in touch with the New York police and most other city police daily and is geared to allocate funds in a few days.

The Chicago police force totals 14,000 men; also is in daily touch with the FBI and justice department.

Los Angeles has one of the smaller police forces, only 5,600 men, because Los Angeles county has 4,500 sheriffs and the county and the city work together.

Attorney General Clark is opposed to setting up either a big federal police force or state police. And the great majority of crime experts agree with him. The United States government has a total of only 23,000 federal police officers including the FBI, the secret service, the internal revenue service, postal inspectors, narcotics agents and all other police bureaus. All the deputy U.S. marshals in the United States total only 700. And Attorney General Clark wants to keep things that way. He believes the federal government should be a correlating agency, not set up a super police agency.

CRIME AND POLITICS

States, on the other hand, are likely to get involved in politics when it comes to dividing crime-fighting funds. State governments would be caught between rival cities, as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania, Cleveland and Cincinnati in Ohio, Los Angeles and San Francisco in California, all demanding a larger share of police money.

The justice department believes, therefore, that the FBI and the national crime experts are in a better position to be impartial than state politicians.

These are some of the difficulties the anti - crime bill is certain to face if the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition has its way.

Meanwhile, the "safe streets" bill is stuck in the senate judiciary committee where three southerners are not eager to let it out without the states' right amendment. They are: chairman "Big Jim" Eastland, Miss., Sen. John McClellan, Ark., and Sen. Sam Ervin, N.C., all Democrats.

Fearful that the federal government would require southern cities to hire a certain quota of Negro cops, they are determined to have federal funds funneled through the states, not direct to the cities.

Note -- In Atlanta, one of the safest cities in the deep south, Police Chief Herbert Jenkins as early as 1946 began hiring Negro policemen to patrol Negro sections of the city.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR ANGERED

Bob Kennedy Silent as His own Lieutenants Organize Dump Johnson Movement

NEW YORK: In a series of eyeball to eyeball private conversations, Bob Kennedy has told occasional visitors, including myself and a sophisticated labor type or two, that whatever his critics think of him they don't think him "stupid." And that it would be sheer stupidity -- of the kind in which the Kennedys don't specialize -- to buck Lyndon Johnson in '68.

In that flat, somewhat staccato fashion of his, the Senator says that the labor people in particular should know better than to believe he would seek the '68 nomination or that he would take it if he could get it. Such action would rip the Democratic party apart.

Yet at this minute, in this town, his own lieutenants are launching a dump-Johnson drive. These are men who are more than torchbearers of the Kennedy cult. They are men who are considered by knowledgeable labor stategists and leaders of both parties to be his personal whips in state politics.

They are men, according to the lore here, who would not lift a phone on a vital mission unless it were cleared by the anonymously brilliant infighter, Bob's brother-in-law Steve Smith. Typical are two reform Democrates-- State Assemblymen Jerome Kretchmer and Albert H. Blumenthal. They are gleaming hot pistons in the junk-Johnson machine. They are men whose joint office was just down the hall from Steve Smith's 42nd Street headquarters during Bob Kennedy's 1964 compaign for the Senate. You just walked along a second floor corridor, passed the door of Kretchmer and Blumenthal, and reached Steve Smith's sanctum. There was a similar arrangement --in a hotel headquarters -- during the famous Kennedy drive to smash Tammany Hall by defeating its candidate for surrogate some years ago.

So it is not likely that men such as Kretchmer and Blumenthal would -- without Bob Kennedy's or Steve Smith's permission -- spark a dump-Johnson caucus as they did the other night.

This adds up to quite a puzzlement for the Johnson forces here-- a coalition of labor leaders, party regulars and Ambassador Arthur Goldberg. What, they ask therefore, does Bob Kennedy really want?

They believe he positively does not want the nomination in '68. They know he will stay "regular." They are positive he will not lead a floor fight against Mr. Johnson nor will he back the drive in New York for an anti-Johnson delegation to the nominating convention.

Any fight against President Johnson would cost Kennedy all chances of labor support for many an election to come. Let no one make any mistake about the significance of such a loss. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) is the nation's best organized, most far-flung, sagely scientific political machinery. Without COPE, its money, manpower and interlocked madia, no Democratic presidential candidate could unleash a successful cmapaing.

Sen. Kennedy knows this. For some two years now he has tried to build labor strength here. But despite the charm and intensity of his labor specialist, Tim Hogan, Bob still gets the freeze.

So to fight Hubert Humphrey for the nomination would mean hitting a mighty muscled labor line -- and bouncing off. If labor goes, so would hundreds of congressional candidates and precinct people who line up for labor support each election year.

There are, of course, other forces which would fragment the party if Kennedy maneuvered for the nomination. He won't. Not until 1972.

Why then are his people unleashing Operation Dump Johnson?

Among political insiders the belief is that the dump-Johnson movement is not designed to keep the President from being renominated -- but to defeat him. They could so splinter the New York liberal-labor Democratic coalition that the President could lose New York. Without the Empire State -- and without California, which seems inevitable -- the "ticket" would lose, reckon the movement's "reform" leaders.

Then everybody would regroup around Bob Kennedy in '69, launch a "save-the-party" campaign, and take it over in the '70 gubernatorial and congressional elections right across the nation. And no one, not even the labor movement, could buck Bob for the '72 nomination.

It's all long-range. But it is as immediate as last Tuesday's caucus here.

But insiders see Mr. Johnson moving, too. His field commander, some say, is the ambassador who roves across many fields -- Arthur Goldberg. In coming weeks, Mr. Goldberg will speak at the enormously prestigious Alfred E. Smith Momorial Foundation Annual Banquet which is sponsored by His Eminence, Cardinal Spellman. In quick succession Goldberg will also talk at the Liberal Party forum, the Jewish Labor Committee convention and the Four Freedoms award dinner just to mention a few events of the next few weeks.

If it is necessary to bloster the Johnson - Humphrey slate, the President will not hesitate to ask "Arthur" to run for the U. S. Senate against Sen. Jack Javits. Of course, Bob Kennedy would have to back such a ticket. And actively, too. So the President is also playing some smart political chess.

Ambassador Goldberg is labor's pride and joy. They'd go for broke for him, as well as the President. And probably elect him, too, and thus save the state in '68 for Lyndon Johnson.

So perhaps the strategic sense of the pro-Kennedy forces isn't as long-range as their ambitions.

Girl Scout Leaders Have Joint Meet

Forty four leaders, troop organizers and troop consultants met Wednesday morning in the fellowship hall of the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church for the only joint neighborhood meeting of the year.

Miss Ilena Aslin, Cotton Boll Scout executive, presided at a rededication and investiture service for old and new Scout leaders.

She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Dye, junior, cadette, and senior neighborhood chairman; Mrs. Paul Fisher, Brownie neighborhood chairman, and Mrs. James Howle.

Candles of green and yellow, Girl Scout colors, were lighted by Mrs. John Sargent, Mrs. Richard Powell, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joe Mills, Mrs. Hal Robertson, Mrs. Jerry Dyer, Mrs. John Doggett, Mrs. Jesse Page, Mrs. Ralph Boyer and Mrs. Frank Tull. Each repeated one of the Girl Scout laws. The entire group repeated the Girl Scout promise.

New Brownie troops leaders introduced by Mrs. Fisher and receiving pins from Miss Aslin, included Mrs. Robert M. Jenkins, Mrs. Bill Deane, Mrs. Joe McCord, Mrs. Bill Hinton, Mrs. Bill Burch, Mrs. Hoyt Lambert, Mrs. Billy Boshears and Mrs. Jerry Allen.

Mrs. Dye introduced new junior leaders, Mrs. C. T. Bennett, Mrs. Bill Lewis, Mrs. Wendell Weathers, Mrs. John Scarbrough, Mrs. Don Matthews and Mrs. J. R. Trapani and a new cadette leader, Mrs. Dean Northcutt. They received pins from Miss Aslin.

During the business meeting Mrs. Fisher told policies for Girl Scout participation in the Cotton Carnival parade and presented information on the National Girl Scout Conference to be held in St. Louis Oct. 3 through 5.

Mrs. Powell spoke on the Juliette Lowe World Friendship fund and presented Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Doggett, who gave suggestions for making this voluntary contribution more meaningful to Scouts in terms of international friendship and understanding.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on the importance of troop registration and gave the total Sikeston membership as 733, serving one girl out of every three in town.

Mrs. Dye explained operation EDITH, exit drill in the home, and suggested Scout participation in Fire Prevention Week Oct. 9-15. She also spoke on the council meeting in Poplar Bluff and the cadette and senior planning boards to which troops elect representatives.

Leaders were urged to take their troops camping one or more times a year and camping activities were reviewed by Mrs. Page, reporting on the Brownie Day camp at Clayton Park; Mrs. Robert Hambrick on Oakwood Day camp at the Lyle Bird farm and Mrs. Doggett on the Cadette Frontier Trail Tour taken in August.

Leaders were reminded of the final training sessions to be held Tuesday and Oct. 10 and were given the 1967 - 68 program calendar of events, Juliette Lowe World Friendship resource material, new catalogue and yearly troop reports.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

The biggest single factor causing a school's low sportsmanship rating in basketball is the coach's undesirable conduct on the bench.

The attitude and behavior of the players and fans are contributing factors, but not as important in sportsmanship ratings as the manner in which the coach handles himself during a game

These are among the conclusions in a dissertation presented by Gary Kay Cain for the doctor of education degree he received from the University of Missouri, Columbia, at its summer commencement. Cain is assistant professor of physical education at the University, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1959 and a master's in 1960.

The purpose of his doctoral study was to compare certain administrative practices and conditions in schools receiving high sportsmanship ratings with those of schools having low ratings for interscholastic basketball contests in Missouri.

Dr. Cain selected 10 senior high schools in the highest sportsmanship rating and 10 in the lowest, as ranked by the Missouri State High School Activities Association. He interviewed administrators in charge of basketball programs and 60 officials -- 30 who worked with the upper group, and 0 with the lower.

All the administrators and all the officials agreed that the coach's poor bench behavior was the most damaging factor in low sportsmanship ratings in basketball. Other conclusions listed by Dr. Cain include:

Schools with superior equipment and facilities are more likely to receive higher sportsmanship ratings.

Where the tenure of school officials associated with the basketball program is brief, the sportsmanship ratings tend to be low.

Higher ratings are not resultant from chance.

Schools with high ratings do not necessarily have winning teams, nor do schools with low ratings necessarily have losing teams.

Schools involving numerous members of the faculty in specific supervisory duties during home games tend to have fewer problems from the fans.

There is wide variation in the quality of basketball officiating in Missouri.

The experience of some officials in a few schools with low sportsmanship ratings indicates that conditions have deteriorated to a point of serious concern for the safety and well being of the officials.

American Leaguers Move Into Final Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington's unromantic Senators have shown Detroit to the door and now Tiger Manager Mayo Smith must figure out a way to keep his foot in it.

Paul Casanova and Fred Valentine were the chief cads in this tale of a broken affair and although Dan Cupid might not approve, Gil Hodges certainly did.

Casanova and Valentine delivered key singles in a three-run Washington ninth that gave the Senators a 5-4 victory over Detroit Sunday. The loss shoved the Tigers into fourth place, 1 1/2 games behind Minnesota as the torrid American League pennant race moved into its final week.

Minnesota retained its one-half game lead, beating New York 9-4 for Dean Chance's 20th victory. Boston stayed right behind the Twins by walloping Baltimore 11-4 with an 18-hit attack. Third place Chicago used four pitchers to stop Cleveland 3-1 and stayed one game behind. In another game, California edged Kansas City 2-1.

The Tigers carried a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning against Washington and were looking forward to their third straight victory over the cooperative Senators.

But Mike Epstein and Frank Coggins opened with singles. After Ken McMullen bunted into a force out, Casanova singled one run across. The affectionate Senators were getting too cozy for Smith. He brought in reliever John Hiller who retired Cap Peterson on a line drive for the second out.

Hiller got the first two strikes over to Doug Camilli, who had driven in only four runs all year. But Camilli worked the count to 3-2, fouled off several pitches and finally singled the tying run across. Valentine followed with the fifth single of the inning, scoring Casanova with the winner.

End of game and end of romance.

A giant roar went up at Metropolitan Stadium in Minnesota when the Detroit score was posted. The Twins, despite a somewhat shoddy performance by Chance, were coasting past the Yankees and protecting their lead.

Bob Allison walloped a three-run first inning home run and Harmon Killebrew tagged his 41st of the season, making it easy for Chance, who allowed 12 hits.

Detroit's trouble in Washington was greeted serenely by the Red Sox when it was posted at Baltimore. "We knew about it already," smiled Carl Yastrzemski. "My brother was sitting next to the dugout with a radio and he told us 10 minutes before it was up on the scoreboard."

Boston tore into the Orioles with Dalton Jones, George Scott and Jerry Adair smashing four hits apiece. Jones drove in five runs, giving him nine in the last week and 25 for the season.

Jim Lonborg allowed just two hits in the six innings he pitched and won his 21st game He is expected to start two of Boston's four remaining games.

Don McMahon pitched five innings of perfect relief and then Gary Peters and Bobby Locker bailed him out of an eighth inning jam as the White Sox topped the Indians.

Chicago was leading 3-0 in the third when Cisco Carlos gave up a single and a walk. Eddie Sanky called for McMahon, who retired 14 straight batters until the eighth. Then consecutive doubles by Richie Scheinblum and Joe Azcue knocked him out.

Peters came on to get pinch hitter Tony Horton and then Locker retired the last two batters without further damage. The Indians put two men on in the ninth but Locker fed Fred Whitfield a double play ball to end the game.

Bob Rodgers singled home two runs in the first inning and California made them stand up for its victory over Kansas City.

Chiefs Headed For AFL Showdown

Cards' Bakken Sets NFL Field Goal Mark

By The Associated Press

Jim Bakken was looking so hard for the end - a National Football League field goal record - he almost lost sight of the means - the ball.

The football-style kicker set a record of seven field goals Sunday in nine attempts, also a record. His kicking also carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 28-14 upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I knew about the record, and it almost cost me," Bakken said. "When I kicked the seventh one, I wanted to see if it was any good almost before I kicked it. So I looked up and almost dubbed it. I just made it."

It just made it 23 yards and broke the mark of six set last season by soccer - style kicker Garo Yepremian of Detroit.

In other NFL games, Johnny Unitas boosted his career passing yardage past the 30,000-mark as Baltimore clobbered Philadelphia 38-6, Washington drubbed New Orleans 30-10, Dallas clipped the New York Giants 38-24, Detroit topped Cleveland 31-14 and San Francisco trounced Atlanta 38-7. Los Angeles outclassed Minnesota 39-3 Friday night.

Boston blanked Buffalo 23-0, Kansas City whipped Miami 24-0, San Diego outlasted Houston 13-3 and the New York Jets scrambled past Denver 38-24 in the American Football League.

The Cardinals, who stymied Pittsburgh with three interceptions and a fumble recovery which they converted into 16 points, scored their only touchdown on quarterback Jim Hart's 23-yard run in the first quarter.

The Kansas City Chiefs are headed for an early season showdown at Oakland with a 2-0 record in defense of their American Football League crown, thanks to a fine effort by their defensive unit and another great day by Mike Garrett in a 24-0 shutout at Miami.

Oakland has a 2-0 record like Kansas City and San Diego, in the western division. Oakland also remembers Kansas City's 48-0 romp in an exhibition at Portland.

Garrett ripped Miami for 131 yards rushing in 20 carries and caught two passes for 29 yards, including a 34-yard touchdown scamper with a Len Dawson pass in the second period, down the sidelines.

Twice Garrett gave a defender a leg and took it away in one of his best runs of the season. As usual, he wouldn't take any credit.

"The whole team was blocking for me on that play," he said. "A couple of guys got up and hit them twice - that's how slow I was moving. It wasn't because I didn't want to - I just couldn't."

As for his big day, Garrett shrugged it off, saying "I should have broken loose a couple of times more."

Garrett's 34-yarder was a screen pass off the club's shifting I formation. Coach Hank Stram said "It's the first time we've used it."

Bert Coan smashed over from the two to end a 47-yard drive and Dawson threw a 47-yard bomb to Otis Taylor for the other two TD's. Jan Stanerud kicked a 21-yard field goal.

Kansas City's defense held Miami to just 8 first downs and 20 net yards rushing. Rookie quarterback Bob Griese, scrambling for his life, hit 11 of 22 passes for 101 yards and had two intercepted. The Dolphins could get past the Chiefs' 40 only once.

Nash, big righthander who had an outstanding 12-1 record as a rookie in 1966, sounded off Sunday after being beaten 2-1 by California. His record this year is 12-16.

He said the Athletics had promised him that Sunday's game would be his last this season so he could go home to Marietta, Ga., and get ready to enter the Army Oct. 2.

Nash originally was scheduled to start military service in mid-October, but he arranged the earlier date so he could get out next year for the start of spring baseball training.

Mizzou Stops SMU

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Associated Press Sports Writer

Missouri's defense shone in an impressive 21-0 victory over SMU and Jerry Levias before 53,000 at Columbia, a record Missouri opening day crowd.

Missouwi got two TDs from its defense, as Roger Wehrli, who shadowed Levias all day, returned at 64 yards and Butch Davis went 53 with a stolen pass. The game ball went to fullback Barry Lischner. Quarterback Gary Kombrink, who ran for 128 yards, sprained an ankle and might not play.

These are odd but happy days in Big Eight football. Consider these items:

Six teams are unbeaten going into the third week of the season, after a 5-2 weekend against outside foes, with champion Nebraska on the sidelines. The Big Eight now stands 7-3-1.

Oklahoma State beats once-mighty Arkansas — first time in 13 years.

And, of all things, a Kansas State coach faults himself for getting greedy, instead of keeping the ball and holding down the score.

"It's my fault they scored," said K-State coach Vince Gibson after his team's 17-7 victory at Colorado State, first for K-State anywhere since 1964. "The fake field goal was a greedy play, trying to score a touchdown when we should have sat on the ball."

The pass on the fake play was batted and returned 75 yards to the K-State 2-yard line. Even then, it took CSU four plays to score. K-State's defensive play was tremendous to the end.

K-State was greeted on its return by 8,000 wildly happy fans.

Gibson wasn't the only successful new coach. Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks was given the game ball after his club's convincing 21-0 romp over Washington State before 51,700 at Norman, Okla. Pepper Rodgers almost had a winning debut, but Stanford pulled it out 21-20.

Ninth-ranked Colorado ran up a 17-0 bulge at Oregon in a televised game, then needed six interceptions to squeeze by 17-13.

Oklahoma State's 7-6 victory before 53,000 at Little Rock was a wild, see-saw game loaded with missed scoring chances.

Jack Reynolds blasted 13 yards for the OSU touchdown early in the last period. OSU played without No. 1 quarterback Ronnie Johnson.

This Saturday's six-game card finds Minnesota at Nebraska, New Mexico at Iowa State, Virginia Tech at K-State, Maryland at Oklahoma, Kansas at Indiana and Missouri at Northwestern.

Kansas spotted Stanford a 14-0 lead with two close-in fumbles, but rallied to go ahead 17-14 on an 87-yard kickoff return by Junior Riggins and 47-yard punt return by Don Shanklin. A 32-yard field goal try just missed with 2:12 left. Middle guard Emery Hicks had 17 tackles.

K-State's many heroes included linebackers Danny Lankas and Lon Austin, defensive end Bill Kennedy, quarterback Bill Nossek and half-back Cornelius Davis. Austin's fumble recovery at the CSU 2 set up the first TD. Nossek flipped a short pass to Ossie Cain, who ran 49 for another.

Cards Win Final Home Encounter

By BEN BROWN

Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals played methodically all season in running away with the National League baseball championship, but the Redbirds decided to turn on the heroics in the final regular season game before the hometown fans at Busch Stadium.

Dal Maxvill after a ninth inning single to left field, scored the winning run Sunday in a 5-4 Cardinal victory over Atlanta.

The slick - fielding shortstop was on first when Alex Johnson bunted. But Atlanta's relief pitcher Cecil Upshaw, thre the ball into right field.

"I stopped at second," Maxvill said after the game, "looked, and saw the ball going into right field. I knew then I was going all the way." Maxvill rounded third and slid home safe.

With the winning run scored, Maxvill didn't wait for the fans' cheers. He darted straight for the clubhouse, the seat of his pants shredded from the slide at home plate.

St. Louis collected 10 hits off knuckleball pitcher Phil Niekro. The big blows were homers by Tim McCarver and Curt Flood. Atlanta banged nine hits, including a double and two singles by Woody Woodward.

Larry Jaster, who pitched the final two innings, got the victory in relief. The St. Louis lefthander is 9-7. Upshaw faced only two batters in getting his third defeat in five decisions.

Nelson Briles, seeking his ninth straight win, allowed seven hits and four runs in seven innings. He left for a pinch hitter with the game tied, 4-4.

"I was very erratic," Briles said after the game. "I haven't pitched in about a week. . .My breaking ball was worst of all . . . just terrible. I just wasn't consistent."

Manager Red Schoendienst is resting his hurlers with the pennant sewed up. The Cardinals, who play their last five games on the road, are off today. They play two games in Chicago, then have another day off, and close the regular season next weekend in Atlanta.

St. Louis attracted 34,844 fans to Sunday's final home game, pushing the Redbirds' 1967 home attendant to 2,090,415, a club record.

On the other side of the state, the Kansas City Athletics inauspiciously lost to the California Angels 2-1.

Jim Nash, A's right hander, lost his 16th game for himself by overthrowing first base in the first two innings, advancing two Angel runners.

Bob Rodgers singled them home with California's two runs, one of them by Jay Johnstone, the man Nash tried to pick off first. Johnstone had beat out an infield hit to open the inning. Rick Reichardt got on with a bloop single, and scored the other run.

The A's have an open date today, then open a two-game set against the Chicago White Sox. After that, Kansas City goes to New York for a four-game weekend windup of their dismal season.

Linebacker Don Chiofaro of Belmont, Mass., Harvard football captain, made 59 unassisted tackles last season.

Notre Dame's Jim Seymour caught 13 passes in last year's game against Purdue.

Cape Falters In Final Period

Cape Girardeau State and Springfield State took it on the chin as MIAA football teams dropped four of six games against outside opposition Saturday while MCAU teams gained an even break in four games.

This left the MIAA with a 5-7 won-lost record against outsiders, while the MCAU is 6-2-2, much better than last season.

Cape had a 10-0 lead in the last quarter when Delta State scored 21 points in less than 2 1/2 minutes, on a 20-yard pass, an end zone recovery and a 69-yard punt return for a 21-10 victory. Springfield yielded a 73-yard TD on the opening play in losing 37-15 to East Texas.

Maryville State whipped Peru, Neb., 27-0 with Barry Monaghan scoring on 57 and 19-yard pass plays. Warrensburg State beat Washburn 14-0 at Topeka as Billy McCann threw to Denny Baker in a 64-yard TD play. Kirksville State was swamped 49-7 by potent Parsons of Iowa and Rolla Mines lost 14-7 to unbeaten Pittsburg, Kan., State.

Five MIAA clubs now stand 1-1 for the season, with Kirksville 0-2.

In the MCAU, William Jewell and Missouri Valley each stand 2-0 and Central Methodist took its opener 16-14 over Principia, Ill. Jewell rolled up 338 yards rushing and edged air-minded Emporia State 28-27. Valley won a league game from Graceland 21-7 as sub tailback Allen Theofilis, playing only the last half, scored three times, one a 96-yard run. Culver-Stockton outgained Iowa Wesleyan but lost its first, 25-21, while Doane, Neb., swamped Tarkio, 57-0.

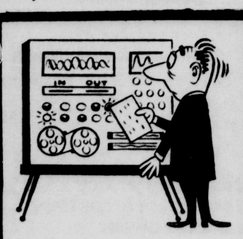

MIAA teams play six more non-league games this Saturday night, two with MCAU leaders, as Maryville is at Jewell and Rolla at Valley. Kirksville is at Pittsburs, Emporia State at Warrensburg, Springfield at Washburn and Cape T Tennessee at Martin Branch in other games.

In a pair of MCAU games, Central Methodist is at Tarkio and Graceland at Culber-Stockton. Among the independents, Lincoln, 0-2 after losing to Arkansas AM&M 37-0, plays at Southern Illinois, while Washington of St. Louis, 2-0 after beating Wabash 17-7, is at Denison Ohio.

working for you every day in your All-Electric Home!

You don't have to have a mansion with a butler, upstairs maid, and a full retinue of servants to live well in the Twentieth Century. Your Magic Servant, Electricity, does the work better, does more work, and does it inexpensively, too.

Whether you have a modern mansion or a cozy cottage, you live better when it's all-electric. Electricity keeps you warm or keeps you cool, washes your clothes and dries them, cooks your food and washes your dishes, provides entertainment, and does dozens of other things for you as well.

You, too, can have a housefull of servants—electrical servants—when you live in the inexpensive comfort of an all-electric home.

"WHAT you can see, you can photograph" is a miracle accepted matter-of-factly these days. We are less aware, however, that photography can penetrate the world of what we cannot see and produce images that can be exciting and revealing. The Museum of Modern Art in New York focuses on this idea currently in an exhibition called "Once Invisible." The photographs which comprise it are at once pleasing, perplexing and practical.

As conceived by the museum's director of photography, John Szarkowski, the exhibition explores three areas: photographs that stop or extend time and motion; pictures made by sound or heat or other invisible sources of energy, and images made from vantage points as yet inaccessible to man.

David B. Eisendrath Jr., a photographer and writer with wide practical experience in scientific phases of photo journalism, acted as special research consultant in tracking down many examples of these photographic phenomena.

Early photographic experimenters who pioneered in the area of stopping time and motion are represented by: Eadweard Muybridge with his sequence series showing animal and human figures in motion about 1878, and Harold Edgerton's stroboscopic studies in 1931 of a football at the instant of impact and a milk drop splash that resembles a crown.

Today, an electronic flash is a common accessory even among amateur photographers but technological progress has advanced to the point that an explosion is pictured in color at 300,000 frames per second!

The fact that photographs could be made from sources of invisible energy such as heat and sound also led to early experiments in the ultraviolet and infrared end of the spectrum. In a modern usage of infrared film, Dr. Walter Clark has a strikingly beautiful color transparency of Boston Bay's subsurface in flaming red by an evaporagraph process. And translating sound as a graphic photo pattern is illustrated by a picture of a wood thrush song.

INVISIBLE- the inner beauty of a colombine shows how an informative scientific photograph can have aesthetic appeal as well. The flower's hidden features were photographed by Eastman Kodak Company in a radiograph. It is included in the "Once Invisible" exhibition at New York's Museum of Modern Art.

Szarkowski points out that in each of these systems of picture making, new fields of photographic investigation were opened that were impossible by illumination offered by visible light.

In the area of pictures made from points inaccessible to man are examples of photographs made from unmanned NASA spaceships such as the recent moon surface shots, and color pictures of the interior of blast furnaces.

It is interesting to see that photographs made in the pursuit of scientific knowledge sometimes have artistic or aesthetic qualities as well. Not all the pictures on display have visual appeal, however, and many of the identifying captions are illegible due to hard-to-read placement and too-small lettering.

But it is remarkable, as Szarkowski sums it up, that photographs can be both a source of value as scientific documents and a source of wonder in expanding our visual imagination.

"Once Invisible" will be on view at the Museum of Modern Art until mid-September after which it will be shown at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art in California.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How do birds use their feet when diving?

A—Coots push their feet backward alternately. Other diving birds thrust their feet forward under the body, then up and outward, bringing them together in back.

Q—What is the Soviet Union's highest military decoration?

A—The Order of Victory, awarded to high officers of the army for successful campaigns. In 1945, the Russian government awarded this military decoration to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Q—Why is the grapefruit tree so named?

A—It is believed to have been named for its habit of producing fruit in large clusters, like grapes.

Q—How much of an iceberg is above water?

A—Only from one-eighth to one-tenth of the total mass.

Q—How many states in the Union observe June 14, Flag Day, as a legal holiday?

A—Only one—Pennsylvania.

Q—To what labor union did Samuel Gompers belong?

A—He was the first registered member of the Cigar-Makers' International Union.

Q—Why is the Caspian Sea really a lake?

A—It is completely surrounded by land, but its water is salty.

You almost finished school?

(Congratulations! Now you can almost get a good paying job.)

The world is full of people who almost made it. You could be one of them if you start work with a too-small education.

In today's job market, if you haven't got a good education . . . you haven't got what it takes to compete for the good-paying jobs.

Today, to get a good job, you need a good education. No two ways about it. A good education qualifies you for a better job to start with. A better salary, too. And a future that keeps on paying off year after year.

So if you're in school now . . . stay there! Learn all you can for as long as you can. If you're out of school, there are plenty of ways to get valuable training outside the classroom.

For details, get in touch with the Youth Counselor at your State Employment Service. Or visit a Youth Opportunity Center.

To get a good job, get a good education

Former Benton Postmaster Dies in Ballwin

BENTON – Ida Mae Allen, 83, of Ballwin, formerly of Benton, died at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at a Kirkwood hospital.

She was born March 5, 1884, at Morley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryeans.

She lived at Benton 55 years before moving to Ballwin, where she lived with a daughter.

After the death in 1941 of her husband, Reece G. Allen, who was postmaster, Mrs. Allen served as postmaster. She also had been employed by the Farm Bureau and worked in the office of the Scott county treasurer.

She was a member of the Methodist church, where she served on the official board and taught Sunday school. She was active in the Women's Society of Christian Service and was extended an honorary lifetime membership because of her service to WSCS.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Rushing Jr., Ballwin, and Mrs. E. L. Alexander, Taylorville, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Addie Welman, Memphis; one half sister, Mrs. Luta Harmon, Clearwater, Fla.; one half brother, Fritz Bryeans, Kansas City, and four grandchildren.

The body is at Nunnelee Home in Sikeston.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Methodist church with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner and the Rev. Albert Gibbe officiating. Burial will be in old Benton cemetery.

Retired Benton Farmer Dies

BENTON – Cecil Thomas Misner, 73, Route 1, a retired farmer, died at 4:25 p.m. Saturday at Mt. Vernon.

He was born at Tolu, Ky., Dec. 4, 1893.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Flora Misner; five daughters, Mrs. Louis Gilliland, Sikeston; Mrs. Vernon Presson, St. Louis; Mrs. James Burnett, Chaffee; Mrs. Lois Merrick, Peoria; and Wilma Jean Misner, route one, five sons, Herbert Misner, Wilmington, Ill.; Thomas Misner, Ephrata, Wash.; Robert Misner, Benton; Cecil Misner Jr., Paducah, and Charles Misner, Eaton Rapids, Mich., and 38 grandchildren.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Nunnelee Funeral Home in Sikeston with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, First Methodist pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in old Morley cemetery.

Earl Dowdy, 65, Dies Near Essex

DEXTER -- Earl Dowdy, 65, farmer living on route one, Essex, died Sunday at 9 p.m. at his home.

He was born near Essex, Dec. 24, 1901, son of John and Florance Dowdy.

On Sept. 23, 1922, he married Bessie Payne, who survives.

Other survivors are three sisters, Mrs. Pearl Ellis, Dexter rural; Miss Sylvia Dowdy, Essex rural; and Mrs. Wilma Fletcher, Clyde, Ohio.

Services will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Watkins and Sons Chapel, with the Rev. H. Worth, Essex, and the Rev. W. H. Eledge, officiating.

Burial will be in the Dexter cemetery.

Jesse T. Moore Dies In Dexter

DEXTER--Services for Jessie Talmage Moore, 75, a retired plumber, were held in the Rainey Funeral Chapel Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with the Rev. Charles Christ, officiating. He died at his home Thursday.

Burial was in Dexter cemetery.

He was born in Humphrey county, Tenn., Dec. 23, 1891, son of Thomas Edward and Kathryne Moore. He was a member of the Sanford Church of Christ in Pemiscot county.

On Jan. 20, 1960, he was married in Malden to Pearl Cecil, who survives.

Other survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Ethel Hageman, Concord, Calif., three sisters, Mrs. Addie Kee, Mrs. Goldie Kelin and Mrs. Ann Roce, all of New Hall, Calif.; five grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Rites Conducted for Mrs. Brentlinger

DEXTER – Services were held Saturday at the Rainey Funeral Home for Mrs. B. J. Brentlinger, 49, who died Wednesday in a Cape Girardeau hospital. Burial was in the Dexter Cemetery.

Mrs. Brentlinger, born March 5, 1918, in St. Louis, was married Nov. 4, 1939. She was a member of the Dexter Eastern Star, the Veteran of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary and the First Methodist Church.

She is survived by her husband; a son, Jim; a daughter, Mrs. Gary Geyer, Dexter; her mother, Mrs. J. R. Wallace, Miami; a brother, J. L. Wallace, St. Louis; a sister, Mrs. Lee Wilson, Miami, and three grandchildren.

Services were by the Rev. Robert McCoy, pastor of the Dexter First Methodist church.

Walter C. Gray Dies in Sturdivant

ADVANCE – Walter C. Gray, a former stockman, died Friday at his home in Sturdivant. He had suffered from a heart condition.

Gray, 76, was born Aug. 28, 1884, in Bollinger County, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irs Gray.

In earlier years, he was in the banking business at Advance and Puxico.

Gray was a member of the Advance First Baptist Church, the Zalma Masonic lodge, the St. Louis consistory and the Capaha Scottish Rite club.

In 1911, Gray married Esther Bollinger. She died in January of 1965.

Survivors are a son, Dr. Henry E. Gray, Midland, Mich.; a daughter, Mrs. Fred Thomas, Marble Hill, and two grandchildren.

The body is at the Morgan Funeral Home where Masonic rites were at 7:30 Sunday.

Services were Monday at 2 p.m. at the Advance First Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Lawrence Kennon.

Burial was in the Baker cemetery at Lutesville.

Johnie Boyer Dies Sunday

EAST PRAIRIE -- Johnie Boyer, 48, died at 10:15 p.m. Sunday at his home.

Born March 18, 1919, at Decatur, Ill., he lived in Mississippi county most of his life.

He was employed at Fletcher-Zimmel Ready Mix Company, was a member of the Church of God and a veteran of World War II.

On June 20, 1938, he married Edith Imogene Prince, who survives.

Also surviving are one son, Larry Boyer, Bushnell, Ill.; two daughters, Mrs. Willard Martin, Bushnell, and Brenda Boyer, East Prairie, and one brother, Robert Boyer, Peoria.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at McMil's Funeral Home with the Rev. George Johnson officiating.

Burial will be in Dogwood cemetery.

Infant Dies

EAST PRAIRIE – Lee Presson, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Duke Presson, died at Wiesbaden, Germany at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

He was born Sept. 13 at Wiesbade. His father is stationed in Germany with the army.

Surviving besides the parents are the maternal grandfather, George Story, Charleston, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Presson, Charleston.

Services will be 11 a.m. Tuesday at Shelby Funeral Home with the Rev. A. A. Noggle officiating. Burial will be in Dogwood cemetery.

Morgan Services Held at Dexter

DEXTER – Services were held Saturday afternoon at the Rainey Funeral Home for Mrs. Homer Morgan, 70, who died Thursday in a Poplar Bluff hospital. Burial was in the Dexter cemetery.

A matron, Mrs. Morgan was for many years the pianist at the First Christian Church. She was the last charter member of the Dexter Music club.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Marilyn Agey, Dexter, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Morgan was born July 21, 1897 in Bloomfield.

Not Really A River

Although it is sometimes so-called, Argentina's Plata is not really a river. Actually, it is a shallow, fresh-water bay into which the river system flows.

Ann Landers

At Concert by the Monkees Screams okay but Not Sassiness

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who spent $6 to hear the Monkees give a concert last night. It was one of the greatest experiences of my whole life. Something happened at the hall and I need to know if I was right or wrong.

My girl friend and I were screaming a lot which is only natural when the Monkees perform. A middle-aged woman about 30 was sitting in front of us. After the second number she turned around and said, "If you kids don't stop screaming in my ear I am going to scream in yours."

I told her in a polite voice that we came to scream and if she doesn't like screaming she should have stayed home and hemmed tea towels or something. She said I had a big mouth for a little girl and a few other things along that line.

Don't you think kids have a right to scream if they feel like it when the music is great? Will you please say something about older people who go to teen-age concerts and criticize kids for doing what is only natural? Thank you.--MONKEE LOVER

Dear Lover: If you screamed in church or at the ballet I would say the woman had a right to complain, but screaming at a Monkee concert is not only in order, it is practically compulsory.

I don't think it was necessary to bring in the tea towels, however. You were right about the screaming and she was wrong, but your sassiness weakened your position and strengthened hers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sure there are some people who think you are evading the issue or looking for an easy way out when you say, "Get professional help," or "Go to a psychiatrist and talk it out of your system." I thought so, too, but now I know better.

I wrote to you a year ago about my horrible fear of spiders. It got so bad I couldn't eat without examining every bit of food. I was sure spiders were everywhere. At night I had to check every inch of bedclothes to make certain there were no spiders under the sheets or in the pillow slips.

To make matters worse, when I found an occassional spider on the window ledge I became so paralyzed with fear that I couldn't kill it. You told me to get professional help before I became afraid of everything that moved. I took your advice, Ann. And now, seven months later, I am a new woman. Thanks from the bottom of my heart.---HELPED AND HAPPY

Dear Helped: I'm happy, too. I've said it before and I'll say it again. Therapy has proven utterly useless to some people and it has opened a whole new world to others. I am delighted it worked for your.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an old man now but I still have a very good memory. When I read the letter in your column about the mother who slipped a candy bar into her young son's pocket as she checked out her groceries in the supermarket, I recalled a story I heard in my youth.

A neighbor of ours was found guilty of murder. Before he was executed he asked to be granted one last wish---a good-bye kiss to his mother.

Permission was granted and his mother was brought to his cell. He leaned over pretending to kiss her and bit a chunk out of her ear. He then said to the guards, "When I was a child my mother taught me to steal. From stealing I went to violence and finally murder. I wanted my dear mother to have something to remember me by."

I think this true story is worth printing. --- SILVER THREADS

Dear Threads: That's a grisly story, sir, but it does make a point.

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet. "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MOPAC Switch Track Removed

50 Years Ago
September 25, 1917

The switching track has been removed from the back of the Missouri Pacific depot, and men are at work clearing and leveling the ground for a park. Sikeston in general will be glad to be rid of the track, not only because of the delay of traffic by the freight trains, but also because of the box cars that usually stand on the siding.

L. D. Randol sold his home on Williams street last week to G.W. Howell.

Dr. W. T. Avery sold his home to Clint Denman, who will take possession immediately. Dr. Avery expects to leave this city soon for St. Louis, where he will take a course of lectures on dentistry before being called into the army.

Matthews -- The Misses Daughertys have moved from their home in Sikeston to Matthews and have opened up a millinery store in Mrs. Lola McCloud's Building on North Main Street.

One of the heaviest rains that ever fell in this section visited the Sikeston vicinity Thursday evening. The government guage here showed 5.82 inches of rain.

Miss Honora Bailey left Saturday for Philadelphia, Pa., where she will resume her musical course.

Settlement of the affairs of the Aiken-Sikeston Canning Co., has been made by the directors in session last weekend. Fred Aiken, president, was present, as was the two Lange brothers interested with Mr. Aiken. As they held 51 per cent of the stock, the settlement was made on that basis, the Sikeston stockholders, who put up all the cash, will receive 49 per cent of what is left of the insurance money after all obligations, or outstanding bills are paid.

If You Were the Judge

Psychiatrist Responsible For Her Coat and Soul

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Bessie, with a slink and a mink, entered the unattended reception room of her psychiatrist where she hung up her lush coat in a closet. Then, she went into the doctor's office where she deposited her contours on his contour couch.

For a half hour thereafter, Bessie's psychiatrist tried to cure the obscure. And, while there might have been some question as to his success, there was no question about the success of a thief who stole Bessie's coat out of the reception room closet while she was couch bound.

"How can she sue me?" the doctor protested in court when Bessie sued him for the loss of her mink. "I never even saw the coat. My job is to take care of people's minds and not their possessions."

"If he thinks he can get away with not paying me for my coat," was Bessie's answer, "then he's a 'psycho' analyst. I hung it up in his closet, which was what the closet was there for."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE would you side with Bessie or her analyst?

This is how the judge ruled: Bessie won! The judge held that normally, a person is not required to protect an item that's not delivered to him. But in this case, concluded the judge, there was an implied invitation for Bessie to hang her coat in the doctor's closet since it is not customary for a patient to lie on a psychiatrist's couch wrapped in a mink coat.

$26,275 Award For Death of Dexter Driver

POPLAR BLUFF - A judgment of $26,275 has been awarded a Dexter area woman in a civil suit in Butler county circuit court arising from the death of her husband in a car wreck.

Circuit Judge Rex Henson ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Norma Sitz, in a suit against the defendant, Jimmy D. Hogan, 21, of Gray Ridge. The case was a change of venue from the Stoddard county circuit court and a jury trial was waived.

Hogan drove a car that rammed the rear of a car driven by Herschel Lorance "Mose" Sitz, 56, a well-known Dexter area farmer. Sitz was burned critically when his car burst into flames and died four days later in a St. Louis hospital. The crash occurred last Nov. 19 on Highway 114 a mile east of Dexter.

The judgment included $25,000 for the wrongful death of Sitz and an additional $1,275 for damage to the car.

Descendants of Zimmers Gather

ADVANCE -- The descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Zimmer gathered at the Bill Rhodes home Sunday for a family reunion. This is an annual event.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Burke and James, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Barnhill and daughters Sandra and Debbie and son Eddie, all of Charleston; Mr. and Mrs. Manning Whittaker and Mitzie and Verrel, Mrs. Helen Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rhodes and David, all of Advance, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Zimmer of Sikeston.

David Rhodes was youngest present and Mrs. Zimmer the oldest.

Judge Orders Arrest for 1965 Slaying

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Dunklin county issued an order Tuesday that Howard Teeter of Steele be arrested and held without bond in connection with a murder charge dating back to 1965.

Judge Billings issued the order after a motion by Pemiscot prosecutor Joe Taylor to have Teeter's $15,000 bond increased. Rather than increase the bond, Judge Billings issued the arrest order.

Teeter 35, is charged in the shooting death of Berley Crews on March 6, 1965. He originally entered a plea of guilty before Judge William L. Ragland and was sentenced to 20 years. In later action he was allowed to withdraw that plea and Judge Ragland disqualified himself from the case.

It was then put before Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, but he, too, was disqualified and it was put before Judge Billings.

In the action Tuesday, Judge Billings set the murder trial for Dec. 15 in Pemiscot County.

Only last week, Teeter was granted a change of venue from Dunklin to Stoddard County on charges of stealing Treflan from Dunklin County firm. His alleged theft took place during the past year.

As of Wednesday afternoon the authorities had not apprehended Teeter, though there was a widespread search being made by Pemiscot County authorities.

East Prairie Works on Annual Homecoming Event

EAST PRAIRIE -- Celebrating its third annual homecoming week, Oct. 2-7, East Prairie has chosen, "Highway to Success," as the central theme for the week-long festivities. Merchants, school officials and civic clubs are working to complete plans.

The East Prairie Junior Civic club is sponsoring a contest to choose a "Little Miss and Mr. East Prairie." Contestants must live within the East Prairie or R-2 school district and be between the ages of 3 and 6. Winners will be chosen by out-of-town judges and are to be selected on personality, behavior, appearance and alertness. The winners are to be crowned Oct. 5 at the bandstand on West Main street and they will ride on a float the following afternoon in the parade.

Special recognition will be given to couples who have observed their 50th wedding anniversary.

The Kiwanis Club of East Prairie is in charge of this project under the chairmanship of the Rev. J. L. Hatchell.

Merchants will present prizes each afternoon, Monday through Friday at the bandstand.

On Oct. 6, a parade will be held starting at 3:30 p.m. That night prior to the football game the Homecoming queen will be crowned.

Cape Apples of High Quality

JACKSON, Mo. - High quality apples, one of the best crops in years, are coming from Cape Girardeau county orchards.

Golden and red delicious varieties are now being picked and winesaps will be coming along soon.

Size and quality is unusually good, producers report.

The Prayer
From
The Upper Room

If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. (Matthew 16:24)

PRAYER: Teach us, O God, to see in the cross the greatness of Thy self-giving. In that love enable us to give ourselves in service to others. In the name of Jesus, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Cement Plant to Cut Operations

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- A partial curtailment of manufacturing at the Marquette Cement Mfg. Co. plant will become effective Oct. 1.

C. J. Line, vice president of operations and engineering, said the curtailment will be to adjust production and reducing inventories.

It was not immediately learned how many employes will be affected by the move.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 1967. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1789, the first Congress of the United States, meeting in New York, adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution. Ten of these amendments became the Bill of Rights.

On this date:

In 1513, Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean.

In 1775, Ethan Allen was captured in an attack on Montreal.

In 1890, Congress established Yosemite National Park in California.

In 1940, the Quisling government was established in Norway.

In 1941, the duke and duchess of Windsor were welcomed at the White House.

In 1942, nationwide gasoline rationing was ordered.

Five years ago • The three Western powers accused Russia of refusal to negotiate a reduction of tension and violence in Berlin.

One year ago • Two typhoons left more than 300 dead or missing in Japan and caused nearly five million dollars in damage to U.S. bases.

American Motors' new entry in the sporty car is the sleek, low-profiled Javelin hardtop, available in two versions, standard and the SST model shown. Exceptionally roomy inside with full, four-passenger seating, the Javelin's classic appearance is enhanced by the fast-angle windshield, narrow dual pin strips that follow the graceful body contours, and twin Venturi grille.

American Motors Corporation
Detroit, Michigan 48232

American Motor's Rebel line for 1968 has undergone front end styling refinements, including a new hood treatment and new grille. Exterior trim changes on the SST hardtop, illustrated, include new wheel covers and full-length fender peak molding; 290 V-8 engine is standard with 343 V-8s optional.

DETROIT -- Paced by its new entry in the sporty-car field, the Javelin, American Motors' 1968 model lineup signals a change in the company's styling and performance concepts.

Besides the jaunty Javelin, which represents a radical departure from traditional American Motors' offerings, the company has introduced a new low-priced convertible in its best selling Rebel line. In addition, a two-door hardtop and four-door luxury sedan have been added to AM's top-line Ambassador series.

"The 23 models in our 1968 line vide a complete selection of body types for every individual and family requirement, organized into four car lines, each with its own distinctive appeal," said William S. Pickett, vice president of auto sales.

"At the same time we have continued to concentrate our models, in terms of car-size and prize, in the area of the market that continues to provide most of the industry's growth opportunity."

In addition to the sporty, special-purpose Javeline, which appears in two hardtop versions, the 1968 standard American Motors lines include:

The multi-purpose Rebel series, intermediate in size, with nine models in four body types and three series.

The luxury Ambassador, intermediate in size, with seven models in three body types and three series.

The economy Rambler American, compact in size, with five models in four body types and three series.

The Rebel and Ambassador lines both will offer three hardtop versions, the Rambler American one. There are four-door sedans and four-door station wagons in all three standard lines. The Ambassador has increased its four-door sedans to three with the addition of an elegant new SST version.

Compared with 1967, the number of Rebel versions has been increased from eight to nine, the number of Ambassador types reduced from eight to seven, and the number of Rambler American choices reduced from nine to five, Pickett said. The entire line in 1967 totaled 26 models.

"Passenger safety continues uppermost in our minds," emphasized Pickett. "Our 1968s are easily the safest, most reliable AM cars ever produced, and they include numerous features inside and out that will substantially improve motoring pleasure and increase safety."

More than a dozen new safety features will be included as standard equipment on the 1968 models. These include such items as side-of-car safety markers, illuminated on most models, safety-shaped armrests and interior control knobs and handles, seat back locks on two-door models, a new mechanical brake light switch, padding for key interior areas and components, and non-glare finishes for certain interior items. Front seat shoulder belts, plus front and rear center passenger seat belts are options.

Exhaust emission control requirements, applicable in all states commencing with 1968 engines, have been met by incorporating the Engine-Mod system on six-cylinder engines and V-8s with automatic transmission. The Air-Guard air pump system will continue on all manual transmission V-8 engines. On sixes, the Engine-Mod system includes new pistons, head and head gasket, as well as new carburetor and distributor settings.

On V-8s the Engine-Mod system incorporates a new thermostatically controlled carburetor air cleaner which, besides aiding emission control, improves cold-weather engine operation.

A total of seven engines are offered in the 1968 American Motors line, ranging from 128 to 155 horsepower in the Torque Command six-cylinder series, and from 200 to 280 horsepower in the V-8s.

Improvements in AM's Typhoon V-8 engines with four-barrel carburetors include revisions in the intake manifold resulting in smoother engine operation, particularly at idle and low speeds.

All V-8s in the 343-cu.-in. series feature cylinder head changes for 1968 which provide increased passage for air-fuel mixtures and substantially better engine efficiency.

The Rebel SST and Ambassador SST are equipped with high performance 290 V-8s. Six-cylinder engines are standard on all but two American Motors cars for 1968.

Full synchromesh shifting is standard on all three-speed manual transmissions, except in combination with the basic Rambler American 199 engine. Another engineering improvement in the '68s is new self-adjusting action for the front band on all automatic transmissions, eliminating periodic adjustments.

A new pre-set door locking system is an exclusive feature on American Motors cars for 1968. To secure the door while driving, the passenger depresses a small lock lever, conveniently located in the safety styled arm rest. Leaving the car, the passenger can lock the opened door by depressing the lock lever, then pulling and releasing either inside or outside door handle. The door then locks automatically when it closes.

Flush-mounted, rectangular outside door handles enhance the safety and appearance of the exteriors of Javelin, Ambassador and Rebel models. Exceptionally easy to operate, the spring-loaded, paddle-type handles incorporate the key lock, protected against freezing by the recessed handle mounting.

More comfortable front seating and increased front legroom are featured in all 1968 American Motors cars.

Other engineering improvements made in the 1968 Rebel and Ambassador series include new front and rear coil springs on sedans, hardtops, and convertibles, resulting in increased road clearance, improvements in front suspension that facilitate under-car servicing, and the addition of a new ignition coil system on six-cylinder engine models that increases engine starting voltage.

A variety of handling packages are available for most of the new models. In most cases they include front sway bar and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers.

American Motors' 1968 model passenger cars go on sale in dealer showrooms Tuesday, September 26.

REBEL

American Motors' top-selling intermediate line of passenger cars, Rebel, offers one of the widest model choices ever for 1968, including a new convertible and a new two-door hardtop.

Three distinct series are featured in the line -- 550, 770, and the top-line SST. New for 1968 is a 550 convertible, expected to be the lowest priced convertible of its size on the market.

As does its more luxuriously trimmed companion, the Rebel SST convertible, the 550 seats six passengers and features a power-operated top and glass rear window as standard equipment.

Also new this year is a 550 two-door hardtop model introduced to meet the growing popularity in this particular body style. This intermediate will be priced with most compacts.

A total of nine Rebel models are now available, including sedans and station wagons in the 550 and 770 series.

Rebel's striking Venturi grille has been restyled for 1968 and, together with the housings for the horizontally mounted dual headlamps, is constructed of high-strength injection molded ABS plastic.

A new hood treatment also is featured, consisting of twin recessed sections flowing back into a new slanted louver fresh air intake.

Taillights, redesigned for all models except station wagons, are triple-lensed and stacked horizontally. New trim has been added to wagon taillights, which retain their canted, vertical design.

Individual adjustable reclining seats and smartly fashioned custom fabric upholstery are included on all SST models. New non-glare finishes appear on potentially-reflective interior surfaces.

All Rebel wagons feature rooftop travel racks as standard equipment.

Rebel SST models have American Motors' 290 Typhoon V-8 engine as standard equipment with other V-8s ranging up to 280 horsepower available. The high-performance Torque Command 232 is the basic six-cylinder powerplant on all other Rebel models, with all other AM engines available.

The standard three-speed manual transmission is fully synchronized, regardless of engine type. All three-speed automatic transmissions feature full automatic or manual control in all gears, whether column or console mounted.

An optional handling package for Rebel six-cylinder models, excepting station wagons, includes a front sway bar, and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers. Wagons and all V-8 engine models, on which front sway bars are standard equipment, have heavy duty springs and shock absorbers available as a handling package option.

AMBASSADOR

New nameplates lead off the many design changes evident in American Motors' 1968 Ambassador line of passenger cars.

The series now offers seven models in three series: Ambassador, Ambassador DPL and Ambassador SST, a V-8 powered luxury automobile certain to satisfy the most discriminating taste. A number of luxury features have been incorporated at no additional cost.

New to the line are a four-door sedan in the SST series and a new two-door Ambassador hardtop. In all, the line ofers three four-door sedan models, three two-door hardtops, and a four-door DPL station wagon.

Highlighting styling refinements in the '68 Ambassadors is a new V-profile airfoil-type grille of high strength injection molded ABS plastic. New housings for the vertically aligned dual headlamps are of injection molded nylon.

A new hood for the Ambassador features recessed sections on either side of the hood midline that flow back to vertical fresh air intakes just forward of the windshield.

Park and turn signals are mounted in the grille of the SST model in rally-light fashion, and in other Ambassador models are housed in the bumper.

All '68 Ambassador models, except station wagons, have new stacked dual lens taillights for improved visibility. Wagons feature new trim over the vertical one-piece lens.

Other tasteful trim additions include new slotted disc wheel covers for DPL and SST models, new moldings at the lower body crease line and across the rear. The four-door DPL wagon includes a roof-top travel rack as standard equipment.

The Ambassador SST is powered by American Motors' 290 cubic inch Typhoon V-8 with two 343 V-8s available. Other Ambassador models are equipped with 232 Torque Command sixes with other engines optional. The standards three-speed manual transmissions is full-synchromesh for 1968 and all three-speed automatic transmissions provide full automatic or manual control whether the control is column or console mounted.

RAMBLER AMERICAN

American Motors' "impact" car, the 1968 Rambler American, reflect the stabilized design continuity that has helped make it the best buy on the road today.

A number of product improvements have been made in the car whose price falls squarely in between the small imported cars and the more expensive U. S.-built compacts.

Highlighting modest styling refinements are slightly lower, sleeker contoured rooflines for the two and four-door sedans and a new fine line extruded aluminum grille for all models. Single headlamps, set in stamped aluminum housings, flank the new grille. Park and turn signals are deep set in the front bumper.

New front-and-rear safety marker reflectors are positioned at either end of new full-length side mouldings on the 440 series and the Rogue. The reflectors, amber in front and red at the rear, also appear on standard American models.

All American models retain their compact dimensions, 181 inches overall length on a 106-inch wheelbase.

Front seat legroom in the surprisingly roomy American has been increased and front seat backs have been angled slightly rearward to provide improved riding comfort.

A new standard powerplant for all Rogue hardtops is the 145 horsepower, 232 six-cylinder engine modified to provide increased fuel economy. Also available in conjunction with the automatic transmission option on the Rogue is a new 2.37 economy axle ratio. A variety of high performance sixes and V-8s is also offered on all Americans.

Handling package options for 1968 Rambler American models include, for sixes, front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers; for V-8 powered models, a large diameter front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers, and wheel rims five and one-half inches in width.

Either we're charging too little, or everyone else is charging too much.

Rambler American. The only U.S. car that could stop you from buying an import.

At a price very close to the leading import, the American seats six people instead of four.

It gives you nearly twice as much room in the trunk and more than twice as much engine under the hood.

Like the imports, the American doesn't change its style every year, gets about 20 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

Unlike some imports, it never gives you the feeling that you're driving a toy.

Rebel. America's most underrated car.

The Rebel 550 Hardtop is the lowest priced intermediate sized hardtop in America.[1]

It looks sporty, drives sporty and still gives you all the things that most people buy a car for.

The Rebel—Hardtop, Wagon, Sedan or Convertible, V8 or 6—is everything we think a car should be.

Before you pay more for an intermediate, make sure you get as much.

Ambassador. The car with air conditioning as standard equipment.

Air conditioning has been around for a long time, but so far only a few companies—the people who make Rolls Royce for one—have had the good sense to include it in their cars at no extra cost.

We're another.

We just don't understand why someone should be asked to pay a lot of money for a luxury car and then be asked to pay over $300 more for the luxury of air conditioning.

Introducing the Javelin.

Although we've always had the reputation for making sensibly priced, well-built cars, we've never had the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

We'll soon have the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

The front and rear bumpers on the Javelin are massive. Unlike thin blade bumpers, these give the car a rich, racy look.

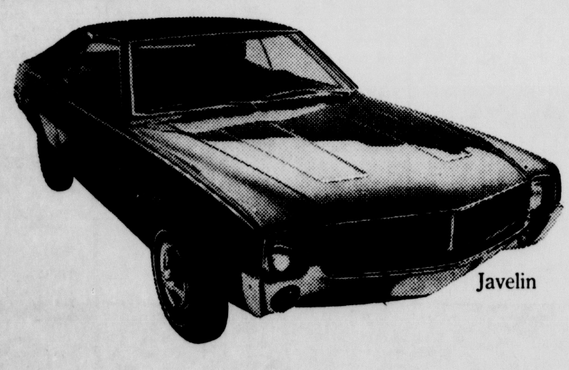

The side windows on the Javelin are solid sheets of curved glass, without vents to break up its fast lines.

The Javelin SST comes with wheel discs, special exterior trim, reclining bucket seats and a woodgrain steering wheel, all standard.

And all for a lower price than the other sporty hardtops.[1]

Flood Danger Lingers

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The savage Rio Grande, monstrously bloated by Hurricane Beulah's cloudbursts, sent a record torrent raging into the fringes of five South Texas cities today after ripping out a flood control dam.

The Texas Department of Public Safety warned residents along the side channel— the Arroyo Colorado— in Mercedes, La Feria, Harlingen, Rio Hondo and Lozano to flee to high ground.

Nearly 1,000 Harlingen residents fled to shelter by dawn as water topped the rim of the arroyo and lapped into the neighborhoods of fine homes.

At 6:30 a.m. CDT the Arroyo surged with 38.2 feet of water— more than a foot above the predicted crest-and it still rose. A call went out for more volunteers to help crews who had spent the night building sandbag dikes around homes and storm sewers which lead the Arroyo.

The Coast Guard said its helicopters evacuated 635 Mexicans surrounded by flood waters by dark Sunday.

The Department of Public Safety said Harlingen was in the most danger of the five Texas cities threatened by the rampaging Arroyo Colorado.

The Arroyo carried a flood crest of 34.2 feet in 1958. After that flood the 300-foot wide steel and concrete dam was built near Mercedes to turn floodwaters into a man-made channel and away from the Arroyo and the cities bordering it.

The state highway patrol set up road blocks to keep refugees from returning to the Rio Grande valley. Most roads were either impassable or extremely difficult anyway.

National Guard Members Practice Riot Tactics

Sikeston members of the National Guard participated in riot training activities Saturday and Sunday at the Malden air base.

The Sikeston unit is company B, 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry. All companies of the 2nd battalion, 140th infantry consisting of 600 men participated in the training. Other units of the battalion are in Poplar Bluff, Doniphan, Dexter, Bernie, Caruthersville, Kennett and Portageville.

The exercise Sunday was for the purpose of assisting the battalion in operational training for support of civil authorities in the event of civil disorder.

Guardsmen dressed in civilian clothes played the part of rioters and snipers and threw mud, mustard, eggs and flour at the troops moving in formations being practiced to break up riots.

Buildings on the air base were designated as the city hall, fire station and industrial complex. The base was, for purposes of training, turned into a small city named "Airport City."

Civil authorities from area towns were invited to watch the training. Attending from Sikeston were Chief of Police Arthur Bruce and Sgts. Leonard Campbell, Ruben Templeton, Thurman Burns and L. G. Woodward.

Members of companies in Cape Girardeau, Jackson and Charleston of the 1st Battalion, 140th Infantry, participated in similar riot training activities Sunday at the old high school in Charleston.

The 1st battalion is commanded by Lt. Col. O. T. Dalton, Charleston. The 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry, is commanded by Lt. Col. Harold LaBrot, Gideon.

Lilbourn Boy Hurt, Bike Hit by Car

A 7-year-old Lilbourn boy sustained a fractured right arm and possible fractured pelvis when his bicycle was hit by a car in Lilbourn at 5:20 p.m. Saturday.

The highway patrol said the boy was riding on the street shoulder and darted in front of the car, driven by Enoch Melton, 27, Lilbourn. The boy was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Lilbourn police charged Melton with having no driver's license and careless and reckless driving.

A passenger in a car was injured in a car-truck accident at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, one mile north of Anniston on highway 77.

The two-ton truck, driven by George Allen, 33, of East Prairie, attempted to make a left turn when the car, driven by Vernon Smith, 21, of Paducah, attempted to pass the car, troopers said. The vehicles sideswiped.

Clyde Staples, 23, of Paducah sustained a scalp cut and possible concussion. He was taken to the Sikeston hospital.

Smith was charged with careless and reckless driving and improper passing.

Falls and Car Mishaps Hurt Four

Two were treated for bruises in falls and two for car accident injuries in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Saturday and Sunday.

Rita Anderson, Charleston, fell and injured her wrist and foot; Vernon Smith Jr., and Clyde D. Staples, both of Paducah, were in a car accident; Beatrice K. Stauffer, fell while running across blacktop road; Phillip W. Boyer, struck toe on funiture.

Vandals Smash Glass Windows

MOREHOUSE -- Vandals smashed three plate glass windows valued at $350 at Neal's auto parts Sunday morning.

City Marshal Charley Neal, owner of the store, said the vandals threw bottles through the windows. The windows were not insured.

Shortly after the incident Neal received an anonymous telephone call telling him of the vandalism.

The marshal said he has received anonymous calls for six weeks telling him of vandalism and burglaries in Morehouse. He said the calls are made about 3 a.m. in the morning.

Neal said he believes that the vandals are under 21 and have been drinking when they commit acts of vandalism. He has five youths under surveillance.

Two months ago vandals broke the glass out of his wife's car, and several weeks ago they pulled five stop signs out of the ground and overturned a car.

Several false alarms have been turned into the fire department, Neal said.

Governor Praises Truman Decisions

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes credits Harry S. Truman with having made decisions that served Western civilization and predicts he will go down in history as one of the great presidents.

"Harry Truman will always make me proud to be a Missourian," the governor told a women's luncheon at a Truman Day rally in Poplar Bluff Saturday.

"I admire sincerely Harry Truman's unbending honesty and integrity. I admire his courage in making decisions which should frighten any normal man."

He said the former president used education, law and order and faith to keep America free and promote civiliation.

Also speaking at the rally, Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton advocated a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. Continuing it, he said, precludes a negotiated peace.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitutes the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Having filed for the U. S. Senate last week, Eagleton said that if he were in the Senate he would try to have his Vietnam views carried out. He said he believes the people of Vietnam want peace.

AMC Discloses Price Increase

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors said today its 1968 cars will carry price tags averaging $89 or 3.8 per cent higher than those on comparable 1967 models.

AMC thus became the fourth U.S. car maker to increase prices on its 1968 models.

According to the auto companies own price figures, which include federal taxes and dealer preparation charges, these were in comparative increases:

General Motors $110, 3.6 per cent; Ford $114, 3.9 per cent; Chrysler $133, 4.6 per cent; AM Motors, $89, 3.8 per cent.

AMC's price hike was smaller in terms of dollars than the increases announced by the Big Three but on a percentage basis it was nearer their figures.

AMC's price picture was complicated by the fact that on its 1968 Ambassadors, or top-of-the-line models, air-conditioners will be standard equipment. They were a $350 option in 1967 models.

AMC said that the change in air-conditioners and in dealer discounts "does not lend itself to a meaningful comparison of price changes. However, the prices of 1968 Ambassadors compared with comparably equipped 1967 models are significantly lower."

Three Boys Aid Police

Three small boys playing in a weed field behind Davis Coin-O-Matic Laundry, 865 West Malone, Saturday morning found a gum and toy machine and $9.35 in change.

The boys are neighbors of Sikeston police Sgt. Leonard Campbell. They waited for him to return home for lunch Saturday and reported finding the machine.

It was valued at $150 and was reported stolen from the laundry on Sept. 2.

The youths who found it are Billy and Jerry Lewis, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lewis, 521 Coleman; and Billy Hampton, son of Bill Hampton, 526 Clayton.

Eleven girls have entered the Miss Cotton Carnival Contests, but more entrants are expected, Ledbetter said. The queen will be crowned by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. The queen's ball will be at 10 p.m. Saturday at the American Legion Hall. The Flames will play at the ball.

Another band, The No Names will play from 2 p.m. until 11 p.m. Saturday.

Embezzler of Millions Dies

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)- Miss Minnie Mangum, spinster Sunday school teacher who embezzled nearly $3 million is dead at the age of 71.

She became ill Sunday at the church where she had taught for more than 25 years, went home to bed and apparently died in her sleep. She was dead on arrival at a Portsmouth Hospital.

Her sister, Mrs. Lillian V. Eure, with whom she lived, said she apparently suffered a stroke. She had one in prison several years ago.

Miss Minnie, as she was called by her many friends and business aquaintances, was paroled 2½ years ago after serving nine years of a 20-year prison sentence.

Her arrest in December 1955 and the disclosure of embezzlements totaling nearly $3 million brought ruin to the Commonwealth Savings and Loan Association in nearby Norfolk.

Rockefeller Eyed As Favorite Son

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) - Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will go to next year's Republican national convention as a favorite - son candidate for president, if New York GOP leaders follow through on present plans.

Well-qualified sources reported Sunday that at least a tentative decision had been made to designate him as such, as a device, they said, to hold the state's 92-vote delegation together.

Among other things, the sources said, party leaders are anxious to prevent possible raids on the delegation by such potential candidates as former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the ex-Californian who now claims New York as his home state.

Rockefeller has been backing Michigan's Gov. George Romney for the 1968 presidential nomination while insistently disclaiming any further White House ambitions of his own.

East Prairie Airman Hurt By Grenade

EAST PRAIRIE--Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Corbin, 302 Second St., have been notified that their son A2c Norman J. Corbin, 22, was seriously injured Sept. 15 about 30 miles north of DaNang.

He received second and third degree burns to his chest, arms and face and severe cuts and an explosion injury to his right hand. His injury was the result of an exploding smoke grenade.

He was treated in the air force base hospital and transferred last Monday to the 106th General Hospital, Yokohama, Japan.

The Corbins received a telegram reporting that Airman Corbin was much improved.

Corbin's address is 106th General Hospital, APO, San Francisco, Calif., 96503.

Corbin is a 1963 graduate of East Prairie high school.

150 at Utility Open House

Between 150 and 200 persons attended an open house Sunday afternoon at the E. P. Coleman steam plant, E. R. Inman, director, said.

Nine small appliance and 10 free electric bills were awarded as attendance prizes. Winners will be named in an advertisement in tomorrow's Daily Standard.

Tours were conducted by steam plant personal from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Hot dogs and soft drinks were served visitors.

Interest was generated in electric heating displays, Inman said.

Story Death Delays ASC Elections

The election of a member to Agricultural, Stabilization and Conservation county committees throughout Missouri, scheduled for Saturday, were postponed, because of the death of A. L. "Abbie" Story, Charleston, a member of the state committee, in a plane crash Wednesday.

The meetings will be held next Saturday at 10 a.m.

Shipping Proviso Adopted

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blast at Castro-Communist subversion in Latin America, the Hemisphere foreign ministers signed early today a resolution recommending that the American republics apply limited sanctions against non-Communist ships which sail to Cuba.

The 20-0 vote "to condemn forcefully" Fidel Castro's regime for "repeated intervention and aggression" in Venezuela, Bolivia and other hemisphere countries was a highlight of the debate-filled, three-day Organization of American States conference on the Cuban threat.

The closer 15-0 vote, with six abstentions, for the U.S.-proposed shipping penalty was an especially sweet victory for weary U.S. diplomats.

After long hours of negotiating they lost a bid for hemisphere blacklisting of non-Communist firms doing business with Cuba.

Under the shipping proviso, part of a 15-point resolution aimed at confining the Havana menace, non-Communist vessels going to Cuba would be denied fueling facilities in Latin American ports and would get no government-financed cargoes.

The United States itself has long applied this penalty. Under the new OAS recommendation, which is not mandatory, it is up to the other American republics to follow suit.

The idea is to put more teeth into appeals by OAS members— who have barred their own trade with Cuba— to other non-Communist nations to quit dealing with Castro so long as he pushes insurrection in the Americas.

Another point in the new resolution repeated the OAS appeal to "friendly states" to curb their commercial transactions and government credits in Cuban trade. But it was watered down with elimination of the blacklisting proviso.

Since January, 1963, calls by non-Communist ships at Cuban ports have dropped by one third with the U.S. blacklisting of some 270 vessels. Cuba's trade with the West has slipped to about $350 million a year, but countries such as England, France and Spain continue to do business with her.

It was past midnight— half a day behind schedule— when the foreign affairs chiefs finally signed the resolution after long-winded debate in closed and open sessions.

To Venezuela, which called the conference after persistent Havana-backed terrorism in that country, the declaration was an "enormous satisfaction."

U.S. diplomats hailed the 20-0 tally as evidence of hemisphere solidarity against Castro. Only Mexico abstained from the vote. Mexico is the sole American republic which has maintained relations with the Havana regime since the OAS voted for a break in 1964.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said: "Today the hemisphere is more unified than ever, more determined than ever to assure the peace, security and tranquility to which all of us aspire."

In most respects, the 15-point resolution breaks no new ground beyond recommendations made by the Inter-American body in past years.

MAMOS Will Recruit Trainees

WARDELL - The Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunity Services corporation announced today recruitment of traniees for participation in the MAMOS program will begin the first week in October.

Mrs. Thomas Prentice, Area project director, said that recruitment will take place in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties, continuing until Oct. 16, when classes will begin. The MAMOS program has operated in Dunklin and Pemiscot counties since March.

It is a three-phase program, which provides migrant and seasonal farm workers in Southeast Missouri with adult basic education, pre-employment training and social services. The program, which is financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington D. C., is designed to move its participants out of the migrant steam into positions of permanent employment. Trainees receive a weekly check while they are enrolled.

The applicant must be an adult head of a household, more than 18.

The head of a household must be an adult male member, unless there is no adult male in the household;

At least 50 per cent of the applicant's total family income for the previous year must have been earned in agricultural employment;

The applicant must have been employed only on a seasonal basis and by more than one employer during the previous calendar year;

The applicant must have an annual family income that is at or below the poverty level. For a farm family of four, this would be an income of $2,100 per year.

The schedule for recruiting new trainees is Oct. 4, Pemiscot county; Oct. 5, Dunklin county; and Oct. 6 New Madrid county.

On each of these days, teacher teams will be located in the four Neighborhood Service Centers in each county from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and social service aides will be conducting interviews among the migrants and seasonal farm workers living in each county. Applicants accepted for training will be tested, grouped and assigned to training centers Oct. 9-10.

Individuals desiring further information about the program may contact MAMOS personal or call or visit the area project office in Wardell. The telephone number at Wardell is MA 8-3453.

$41 Million Valuation in 7 School Districts

Flood Danger Lingers

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — The savage Rio Grande, monstrously bloated by Hurricane Beulah's cloudbursts, sent a record torrent raging into the fringes of five South Texas cities today after ripping out a flood control dam.

The Texas Department of Public Safety warned residents along the side channel—the Arroyo Colorado—in Mercedes, La Feria, Harlingen, Rio Hondo and Lozano to flee to high ground.

Nearly 1,000 Harlingen residents fled to shelter by dawn as water topped the rim of the arroyo and lapped into the neighborhoods of fine homes.

At 6:30 a.m. CDT the Arroyo surged with 38.2 feet of water—more than a foot above the predicted crest—and it still rose. A call went out for more volunteers to help crews who had spent the night building sandbag dikes around homes and storm sewers which lead the Arroyo.

The Coast Guard said its helicopters evacuated 635 Mexicans surrounded by flood waters by dark Sunday.

The Department of Public Safety said Harlingen was in the most danger of the five Texas cities threatened by the rampaging Arroyo Colorado.

The Arroyo carried a flood crest of 34.2 feet in 1958. After that flood the 300-foot wide steel and concrete dam was built near Mercedes to turn floodwaters into a man-made channel and away from the Arroyo and the cities bordering it.

The state highway patrol set up road blocks to keep refugees from returning to the Rio Grande valley. Most roads were either impassable or extremely difficult anyway.

National Guard Members Practice Riot Tactics

Sikeston members of the National Guard participated in riot training activities Saturday and Sunday at the Malden air base.

The Sikeston unit is company B, 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry. All companies of the 2nd battalion, 140th infantry consisting of 600 men participated in the training. Other units of the battalion are in Poplar Bluff, Doniphan, Dexter, Bernie, Caruthersville, Kennett and Portageville.

The exercise Sunday was for the purpose of assisting the battalion in operational training for support of civil authorities in the event of civil disorder.

Guardsmen dressed in civilian clothes played the part of rioters and snipers and threw mud, mustard, eggs and flour at the troops moving in formations being practiced to break up riots.

Buildings on the air base were designated as the city hall, fire station and industrial complex. The base was, for purposes of training, turned into a small city named "Airport City."

Civil authorities from area towns were invited to watch the training. Attending from Sikeston were Chief of Police Arthur Bruce and Sgts. Leonard Campbell, Ruben Templeton, Thurman Burns and L. G. Woodward.

Members of companies in Cape Girardeau, Jackson and Charleston of the 1st Battalion, 140th Infantry, participated in similar riot training activities Sunday at the old high school in Charleston.

The 1st battalion is commanded by Lt. Col. O. T. Dalton, Charleston. The 2nd battalion, 140th Infantry, is commanded by Lt. Col. Harold LaBrot, Gideon.

Lilbourn Boy Hurt, Bike Hit by Car

A 7-year-old Lilbourn boy sustained a fractured right arm and possible fractured pelvis when his bicycle was hit by a car in Lilbourn at 5:20 p.m. Saturday.

The highway patrol said the boy was riding on the street shoulder and darted in front of the car, driven by Enoch Melton, 27, Lilbourn. The boy was taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Lilbourn police charged Melton with having no driver's license and careless and reckless driving.

A passenger in a car was injured in a car-truck accident at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, one mile north of Anniston on highway 77.

The two-ton truck, driven by George Allen, 33, of East Prairie, attempted to make a left turn when the car, driven by Vernon Smith, 21, of Paducah, attempted to pass the car, troopers said. The vehicles sideswiped.

Clyde Staples, 23, of Paducah sustained a scalp cut and possible concussion. He was taken to the Sikeston hospital.

Smith was charged with careless and reckless driving and improper passing.

Falls and Car Mishaps Hurt Four

Two were treated for bruises in falls and two for car accident injuries in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Saturday and Sunday.

Rita Anderson, Charleston, fell and injured her wrist and foot; Vernon Smith Jr., and Clyde D. Staples, both of Paducah, were in a car accident; Beatrice K. Stauffer, fell while running across blacktop road; Phillip W. Boyer, struck toe on furniture.

Vandals Smash Glass Windows

MOREHOUSE — Vandals smashed three plate glass windows valued at $350 at Neal's auto parts Sunday morning.

City Marshal Charley Neal, owner of the store, said the vandals threw bottles through the windows. The windows were not insured.

Shortly after the incident Neal received an anonymous telephone call telling him of the vandalism.

The marshal said he has received anonymous calls for six weeks telling him of vandalism and burglaries in Morehouse. He said the calls are made about 3 a.m. in the morning.

Neal said he believes that the vandals are under 21 and have been drinking when they commit acts of vandalism. He has five youths under surveillance.

Two months ago vandals broke the glass out of his wife's car, and several weeks ago they pulled five stop signs out of the ground and overturned a car.

Several false alarms have been turned into the fire department, Neal said.

Governor Praises Truman Decisions

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes credits Harry S. Truman with having made decisions that served Western civilization and predicts he will go down in history as one of the great presidents.

"Harry Truman will always make me proud to be a Missourian," the governor told a women's luncheon at a Truman Day rally in Poplar Bluff Saturday.

"I admire sincerely Harry Truman's unbending honesty and integrity. I admire his courage in making decisions which should frighten any normal man."

He said the former president used education, law and order and faith to keep America free and promote civiliation.

Also speaking at the rally, Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton advocated a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. Continuing it, he said, precludes a negotiated peace.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitutes the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Having filed for the U. S. Senate last week, Eagleton said that if he were in the Senate he would try to have his Vietnam views carried out. He said he believes the people of Vietnam want peace.

AMC Discloses Price Increase

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors said today its 1968 cars will carry price tags averaging $89 or 3.8 per cent higher than those on comparable 1967 models.

AMC thus became the fourth U.S. car maker to increase prices on its 1968 models.

According to the auto companies own price figures, which include federal taxes and dealer preparation charges, these were in comparative increases:

General Motors $110, 3.6 per cent; Ford $114, 3.9 per cent; Chrysler $133, 4.6 per cent; AM Motors, $89, 3.8 per cent.

AMC's price hike was smaller in terms of dollars than the increases announced by the Big Three but on a percentage basis it was nearer their figures.

AMC's price picture was complicated by the fact that on its 1968 Ambassadors, or top-of-the-line models, air-conditioners will be standard equipment. They were a $350 option in 1967 models.

AMC said that the change in air-conditioners and in dealer discounts "does not lend itself to a meaningful comparison of price changes. However, the prices of 1968 Ambassadors compared with comparably equipped 1967 models are significantly lower."

Three Boys Aid Police

Three small boys playing in a weed field behind Davis Coin-O-Matic Laundry, 865 West Malone, Saturday morning found a gum and toy machine and $9.35 in change.

The boys are neighbors of Sikeston police Sgt. Leonard Campbell. They waited for him to return home for lunch Saturday and reported finding the machine.

It was valued at $150 and was reported stolen from the laundry on Sept. 2.

The youths who found it are Billy and Jerry Lewis, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lewis, 521 Coleman; and Billy Hampton, son of Bill Hampton, 526 Clayton.

Another band, The No Names will play from 2 p.m. until 11 p.m. Saturday.

Embezzler of Millions Dies

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)- Miss Minnie Mangum, spinster Sunday school teacher who embezzled nearly $3 million is dead at the age of 71.

She became ill Sunday at the church where she had taught for more than 25 years, went home to bed and apparently died in her sleep. She was dead on arrival at a Portsmouth Hospital.

Her sister, Mrs. Lillian V. Eure, with whom she lived, said she apparently suffered a stroke. She had one in prison several years ago.

Miss Minnie, as she was called by her many friends and business aquaintances, was paroled 2½ years ago after serving nine years of a 20-year prison sentence.

Her arrest in December 1955 and the disclosure of embezzlements totaling nearly $3 million brought ruin to the Commonwealth Savings and Loan Association in nearby Norfolk.

Rockefeller Eyed As Favorite Son

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) - Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will go to next year's Republican national convention as a favorite - son candidate for president, if New York GOP leaders follow through on present plans.

Well-qualified sources reported Sunday that at least a tentative decision had been made to designate him as such, as a device, they said, to hold the state's 92-vote delegation together.

Among other things, the sources said, party leaders are anxious to prevent possible raids on the delegation by such potential candidates as former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the ex-Californian who now claims New York as his home state.

Rockefeller has been backing Michigan's Gov. George Romney for the 1968 presidential nomination while insistently disclaiming any further White House ambitions of his own.

East Prairie Airman Hurt By Grenade

EAST PRAIRIE--Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Corbin, 302 Second St., have been notified that their son A2c Norman J. Corbin, 22, was seriously injured Sept. 15 about 30 miles north of DaNang.

He received second and third degree burns to his chest, arms and face and severe cuts and an explosion injury to his right hand. His injury was the result of an exploding smoke grenade.

He was treated in the air force base hospital and transferred last Monday to the 106th General Hospital, Yokohama, Japan.

The Corbins received a telegram reporting that Airman Corbin was much improved.

Corbin's address is 106th General Hospital, APO, San Francisco, Calif., 96503.

Corbin is a 1963 graduate of East Prairie high school.

Between 150 and 200 persons attended an open house Sunday afternoon at the E. P. Coleman steam plant, E. R. Inman, director, said.

Nine small appliance and 10 free electric bills were awarded as attendance prizes. Winners will be named in an advertisement in tomorrow's Daily Standard.

Tours were conducted by steam plant personal from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Hot dogs and soft drinks were served visitors.

Interest was generated in electric heating displays, Inman said.

Story Death Delays ASC Elections

The election of a member to Agricultural, Stabilization and Conservation county committees throughout Missouri, scheduled for Saturday, were postponed, because of the death of A. L. "Abbie" Story, Charleston, a member of the state committee, in a plane crash Wednesday.

The meetings will be held next Saturday at 10 a.m.

Shipping Proviso Adopted

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blast at Castro-Communist subversion in Latin America, the Hemisphere foreign ministers signed early today a resolution recommending that the American republics apply limited sanctions against non-Communist ships which sail to Cuba.

The 20-0 vote "to condemn forcefully" Fidel Castro's regime for "repeated intervention and aggression" in Venezuela, Bolivia and other hemisphere countries was a highlight of the debate-filled, three-day Organization of American States conference on the Cuban threat.

The closer 15-0 vote, with six abstentions, for the U.S.-proposed shipping penalty was an especially sweet victory for weary U.S. diplomats.

After long hours of negotiating they lost a bid for hemisphere blacklisting of non-Communist firms doing business with Cuba.

Under the shipping proviso, part of a 15-point resolution aimed at confining the Havana menace, non-Communist vessels going to Cuba would be denied fueling facilities in Latin American ports and would get no government-financed cargoes.

The United States itself has long applied this penalty. Under the new OAS recommendation, which is not mandatory, it is up to the other American republics to follow suit.

The idea is to put more teeth into appeals by OAS members—who have barred their own trade with Cuba—to other non-Communist nations to quit dealing with Castro so long as he pushes insurrection in the Americas.

Another point in the new resolution repeated the OAS appeal to "friendly states" to curb their commercial transactions and government credits in Cuban trade. But it was watered down with elimination of the blacklisting proviso.

Since January, 1963, calls by non-Communist ships at Cuban ports have dropped by one third with the U.S. blacklisting of some 270 vessels. Cuba's trade with the West has slipped to about $350 million a year, but countries such as England, France and Spain continue to do business with her.

It was past midnight—half a day behind schedule—when the foreign affairs chiefs finally signed the resolution after long-winded debate in closed and open sessions.

To Venezuela, which called the conference after persistent Havana-backed terrorism in that country, the declaration was an "enormous satisfaction."

U.S. diplomats hailed the 20-0 tally as evidence of hemisphere solidarity against Castro. Only Mexico abstained from the vote. Mexico is the sole American republic which has maintained relations with the Havana regime since the OAS voted for a break in 1964.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said: "Today the hemisphere is more unified than ever, more determined than ever to assure the peace, security and tranquility to which all of us aspire."

In most respects, the 15-point resolution breaks no new ground beyond recommendations made by the Inter-American body in past years.

MAMOS Will Recruit Trainees

WARDELL - The Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunity Services corporation announced today recruitment of trainees for participation in the MAMOS program will begin the first week in October.

Mrs. Thomas Prentice, Area project director, said that recruitment will take place in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties, continuing until Oct. 16, when classes will begin. The MAMOS program has operated in Dunklin and Pemiscot counties since March.

It is a three-phase program, which provides migrant and seasonal farm workers in Southeast Missouri with adult basic education, pre-employment training and social services. The program, which is financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington D. C., is designed to move its participants out of the migrant steam into positions of permanent employment. Trainees receive a weekly check while they are enrolled.

The applicant must be an adult head of a household, more than 18.

The head of a household must be an adult male member, unless there is no adult male in the household;

At least 50 per cent of the applicant's total family income for the previous year must have been earned in agricultural employment;

The applicant must have been employed only on a seasonal basis and by more than one employer during the previous calendar year;

The applicant must have an annual family income that is at or below the poverty level. For a farm family of four, this would be an income of $2,100 per year.

The schedule for recruiting new trainees is Oct. 4, Pemiscot county; Oct. 5, Dunklin county; and Oct. 6 New Madrid county.

On each of these days, teacher teams will be located in the four Neighborhood Service Centers in each county from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and social service aides will be conducting interviews among the migrants and seasonal farm workers living in each county. Applicants accepted for training will be tested, grouped and assigned to training centers Oct. 9-10.

Individuals desiring further information about the program may contact MAMOS personal or call or visit the area project office in Wardell. The telephone number at Wardell is MA 8-3453.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

PENSION PLAN SAFEGUARDS

Lines are being drawn by the federal government and the business community for a confrontation over regulation of private pension plans with billions of dollars in assets.

Such business spokesmen as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce flatly deny that there is need for further government regulation. The National Retail Merchants Association even charges that the push for reform is an effort to convert private pension plans into "a second system of Social Security, paid for out of private money." But the Johnson administration and some members of Congress insist that tighter regulation is required, and they are moving in that direction.

At the root of the controversy is the possibility that perhaps as few as one in five of the more than 25 million persons now covered by private pension plans ever will receive any pension benefits. Most of the plans have provisions so restrictive that an eligible employee can disqualify himself for ultimate benefits in a variety of ways, especially by changing jobs.

The aggregate economic impact of private pension plans has reached important proportions. Nearly three million retired workers were receiving pensions last year and the number is expected to rise to 6.6 million by 1980. More than $7.5 billion was contributed to pension plans in 1966, and the sum will be almost $11 billion annually by 1980.

Pay-outs to beneficiaries are running now at about $3 billion annually. The reserves held by the pension funds amounted in 1966 to about $90 billion and will hit $225 billion by 1980.

Stanley S. Surrey, assistant secretary of the Treasury, has named five specific areas in which the administration believes that the rules governing pension plans need tightening: (1) vesting, (2) funding and reinsurance, (3) broadening of employee coverage, (4) responsibility of plan managers, and (5) additional disclosure.

When a pension is vested, an employee retains the right to benefits regardless of later circumstances, such as getting fired or moving voluntarily to another job. A Labor Department study found that vesting is so limited that nearly one-half of the 15.6 million workers covered by the plans studied had no vested right to a pension even when they had worked for one employer for 25 years and were 50 years old.

A federal interagency staff has proposed that participants in private pension plans be granted vested rights after 10 years service with an employer. This proposal is strongly opposed by many business groups and even the President's own Labor-Management Advisory Committee.

That committee, with only a few dissenting members, criticized a similar proposal put forward two years ago: "Private plans have their own unique role to play. . . We are fearful that a vesting requirement by law would deprive them of that degree of flexibility essential to perform this function."

Few of the pension plans now in operation are fully funded. In other words, the reserves are not large enough to make sure that a plan's liabilities to its members will be met. Most plans are less than 25 years old and they have not yet had time to fund the liabilities for past employment assumed at their inception.

These past liabilities are usually funded over a 30-year period. The administration tentatively is suggesting a 25-year limit on funding. To insure that the plan will still be in operation at the end of the 25-year period (or at least that the workers will get the benefits they have earned), the interagency staff further proposed a reinsurance program.

Nearly 40 bills have been introduces in the 90th Congress to increase government regulation of pension plans. One, recommended by President Johnson, would require added disclosures by plan administrators of financial data and set limits on certain types of investments.

Federal regulation of pension plans dates from 1928 and has steadily been broadened. The major justification for the regulation is that the government, through tax deductions, pays about 30 percent of the cost of most plans. Employers are allowed to deduct contributions as a current business expense as though the payments were a form of wage.

The pension plans are coming under attack for other reasons, too. By last autumn more than 55 percent of all pension plan assets were invested in common stocks, and the Joint Economic Committee warned that a prolonged drop in the stock market could be disasterous for the plans.

Many observers believe that the prospective pensioner is entitled to additional protection and to better odds than one out of five on eventually collecting. Congress faces the task of marking more definite boundaries between private interests and public purposes in this important economic sector.

Here we go again. As George Lough used to say to me about my advise, "Blanton you could really ruin my business if I would just let you."

Back again about the cigarette business.

If we were president of the tobacco companies, instead of making them longer, we would make them shorter and raise the price.

Because of people like you and me the cigarette smoking habit will not continue to increase.

Just the older smokers who can't kick the habit will stay with it until death do them part.

The younger ones will come to their senses as lung cancer and emphysema continues to increase its toll.

Dummy cars -- called simulators -- are being used to train straight-A drivers in the suburban community of Hinsdale, Illinois.

The simulators, which resemble over-sized desks, are equipped with mock controls, including dashboards, steering wheels, gear shifts and brakes.

The cars are part of a driver-training program being taught at Hinsdale high school. They enable students to learn how to drive without leaving the classroom, although the Hinsdale teen-agers do at one stage of the three-phase course, which includes:

1. Nine weeks of classroom study, devoted to learning the rules of the road and -- yes -- written examinations.

2. Ten one-hour periods behind the wheel of the non-moving simulator to become accustomed to the controls of a car.

3. Nine one-hour periods of actual driving on the road with an instructor at the side of each student.

In the opinion of those who teach the course, teen-age drivers who successfully complete the program are likely to be better drivers than those who haven't, including most adults.

How does the dummy car work?

It combines challenge with fun, using a film projector and a tape recorder. Students behind the wheel view films of traffic scenes, test situations calling for a decision and reaction from the driver.

A typical test situation might force a student to decide whether to accelerate or hit the brakes while passing another vehicle.

If the student makes a mistake -- fails to obey a stop sign that appears on the screen or doesn't brake when a pedestrian steps off the corner -- a light mounted on the simulator flashes on to indicate the error.

Students' reactions are recorded on tape and made available to them later so they can check their errors.

Although many parents criticize driver education as a waste of time, its value can be supported by insurance rates. Teen-age drivers in Illinois, for example, who have completed high school driver training courses, qualify for 10 per cent lower insurance rates. The same reward is available in many other states.

About 500,000 high school students are enrolled in driver education courses, but another 1,500,000 are not, a recent survey by the National Education Association indicates. The Association believes driver training should be mandatory in schools, and should be supported by state and federal funds.

NEW YORK (AP) — Well, it's enough to make you antiunion. Because, after all, if the United Federation of Teachers doesn't call this strike against the New York school system, it never happens.

No strike, and Public School No. 44 will be open. If No. 44 is open, Jeffrey, aged 11, will be in class instead of putting his trousers on at 10 a.m. And if Jeffrey is not putting his trousers on at 10 a.m., what occurs does not occur.

First word of what has taken place comes in the form of a telephone call to the office from Jeffrey's brother, Nick, aged 10.

"Daddy," says Nick, "Jeffrey is in trouble. He was putting his pants on and, you know, something happened which is a man problem. That's why we didn't call Monny at the University."

"It involves the zipper?"

"Yes, Daddy. We've tried everything but it's no good. Jeffrey is being very brave, but . . ."

"Hold everything. Daddy will be home cabwise forthwith."

The cab delivers Daddy at the apartment house in Manhattan and it is quickly evident that this is a contretemps which will require professional assistance.

So a telephone call is made to he family doctor.

"Oh, my goodness," says the family doctor. "Bring the poor little fellow over immediately."

After a somewhat tiresome interlude a cab is captured and the trip is made to the doctor's lair on Central Park West.

"Hmm," says the doctor. 'You don't particularly care what happens to the pants?"

"No, doctor. The important thing is to release the captive."

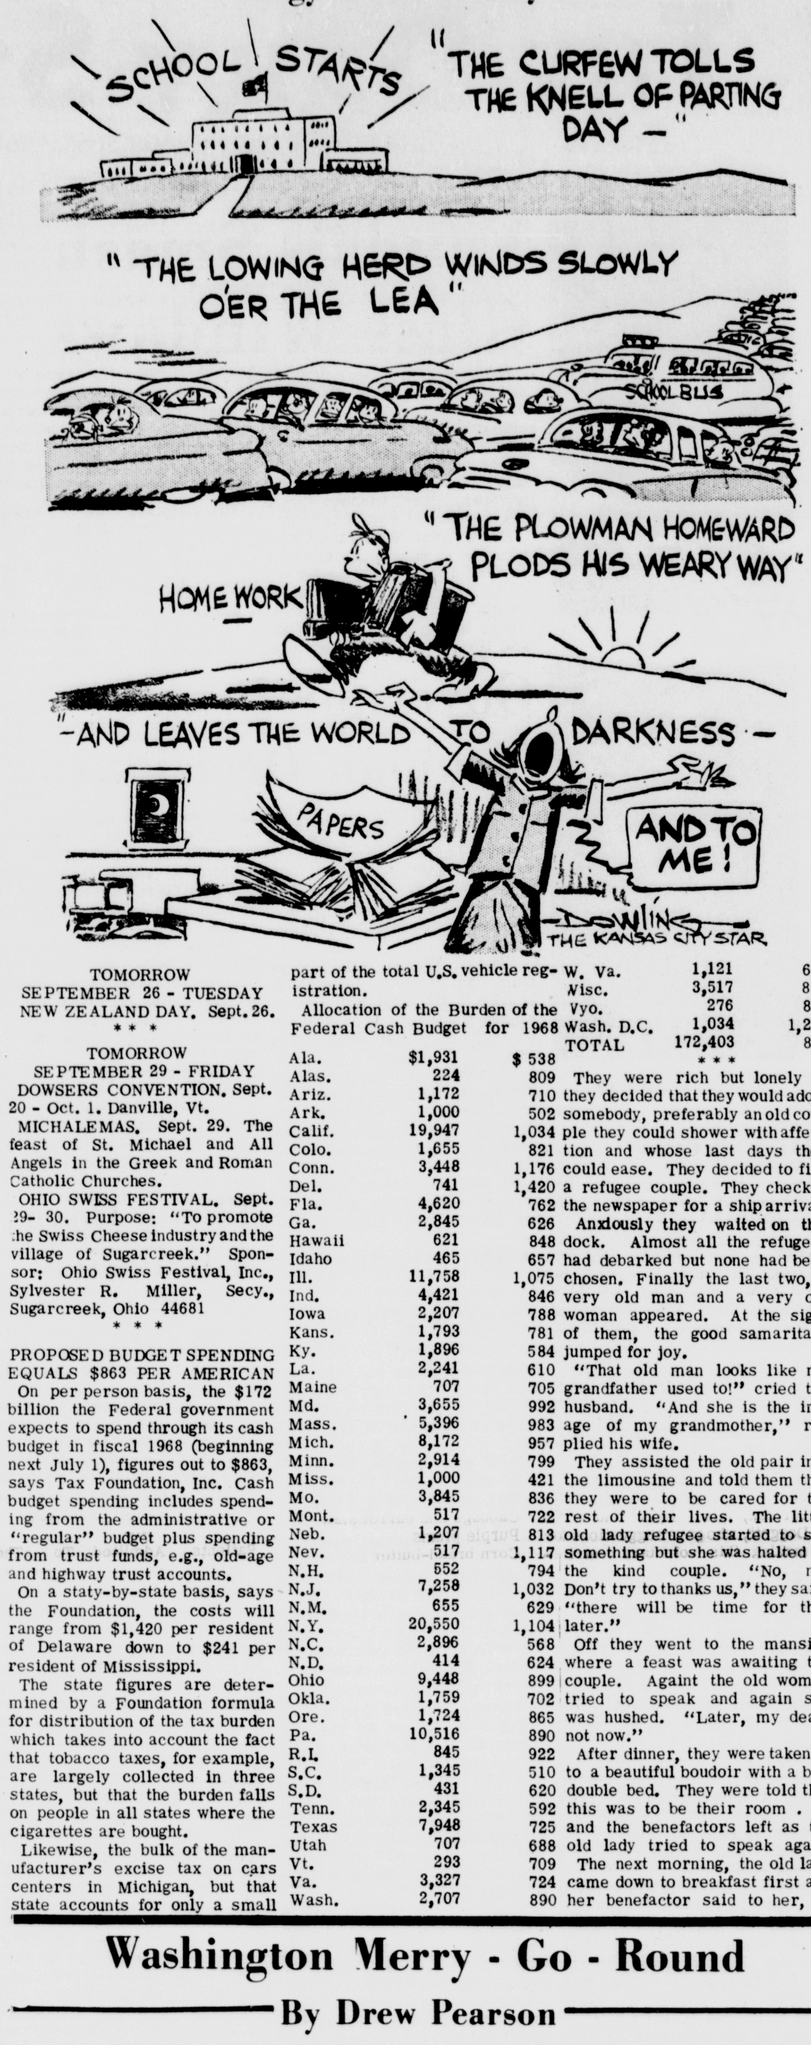

"Very well. Now, you take the right-hand side of the zipper and I'll take the left and— there we go! All right, Jeffrey?"

"Yes, doctor, and thank you," says Jeffrey, being brave.

Jeffrey, Nick and Daddy then repair back to the apartment building in a cab and another day in the life of a bunch of born losers is history.

We do not know how much money the United Federation of Teachers may have, but we sincerely hope it is plenty. Because we are going to sue them for every dime they own, unless we cool off quite a few degrees in the near future.

PROPOSED BUDGET SPENDING EQUALS $863 PER AMERICAN

On per person basis, the $172 billion the Federal government expects to spend through its cash budget in fiscal 1968 (beginning next July 1), figures out to $863, says Tax Foundation, Inc. Cash budget spending includes spending from the administrative or "regular" budget plus spending from trust funds, e.g., old-age and highway trust accounts.

On a staty-by-state basis, says the Foundation, the costs will range from $1,420 per resident of Delaware down to $241 per resident of Mississippi.

The state figures are determined by a Foundation formula for distribution of the tax burden which takes into account the fact that tobacco taxes, for example, are largely collected in three states, but that the burden falls on people in all states where the cigarettes are bought.

Likewise, the bulk of the manufacturer's excise tax on cars centers in Michigan, but that state accounts for only a small part of the total U.S. vehicle registration.

They were rich but lonely so they decided that they would adopt somebody, preferably an old couple they could shower with affection and whose last days they could ease. They decided to find a refugee couple. They checked the newspaper for a ship arrival.

Anxiously they waited on the dock. Almost all the refugees had debarked but none had been chosen. Finally the last two, a very old man and a very old woman appeared. At the sight of them, the good samaritans jumped for joy.

"That old man looks like my grandfather used to!" cried the husband. "And she is the image of my grandmother," replied his wife.

They assisted the old pair into the limousine and told them that they were to be cared for the rest of their lives. The little old lady refugee started to say something but she was halted by the kind couple. "No, no. Don't try to thanks us," they said, "there will be time for that later."

Off they went to the mansion where a feast was awaiting the couple. Againt the old woman tried to speak and again she was hushed. "Later, my dear, not now."

After dinner, they were taken up to a beautiful boudoir with a big, double bed. They were told that this was to be their room . . . and the benefactors left as the old lady tried to speak again.

The next morning, the old lady came down to breakfast first and her benefactor said to her, "I know you want to say something."

"I do," cried the old lady, wringing her hands. "I want to thank you for everything . . . but tell me, who is that little old man you've got rooming with me?"

REQUIEM FOR DUPLICITY

When John Hill was publishing his magazine, "Engineering News," (which later became McGraw-Hill's Engineering News Record), he sold the center spread to a steel manufacturer on an every-issue basis.

One day a bridge in one of the western states collapsed. Engineering News reported that the disaster had been caused by steel which had not measured up to the builder's specifications. They named the culprit company -- the magazine's heavy advertiser.

Almost before the ink was dry, the president of the steel firm charged into John Hill's office and said: "You can cancel my advertising from this day on!"

As reported in Printers Ink: "John Hill rose to his feet. He fixed a burning eye on the steelmaker and said with icy calmness, 'Sir, from the moment we learned you sold defective steel, we revoked your privilege to advertise in our pages. We don't do business with murderers!'

"From that day until the end of the steelmaker's contract, the spread his advertising had always occupied in Engineering News remained blank -- except for a single line of type which read, simply, 'Dedicated to a principle.' "

A NON-PARTISAN PLAN

Increasingly, students of government are realizing that the district plan for choosing the President of the United States, as presented to the Constitutional Convention by James Wilson of Pennsylvania on June 2, 1787, is the best method by which the intention of the Founders of Freedom to create a republic form of government in the United States can be realized and perpetuated. Now antiquated, the Electoral College needs only to be wisely reformed -- never abolished.

The Congressional District Plan for its reform will help guarantee what the Founders sought to achieve. This plan would be placed in effect under a proposed constitutional amendment now before both houses of Congress. Since the time element now precludes a ratification by the state legislatures soon enough for the reform amendment to affect the 1968 presidential election, it has become a truly non - partisan measure. No one can say which of the major political parties might benefit more from its adoption.

Certain it is that under this plan for Electoral College reform (SJR 86), nearly every state with 10 or more electors would give a part of its electoral vote to each of the major party candidates. This would effectively break the big population state monopoly.

Some advocate the direct vote plan for naming the President. Substitution of the direct vote for the Electoral College system would mean abandonment of an important provision relied upon by the authors of the Constitution to establish our nation as a Republic. It is significant that in a recent poll only 10 per cent favored continuation of the Electoral College system in its present form. HLH.

Inside Labor

LABOR ANGERED

Bob Kennedy Silent as His own Lieutenants Organize Dump Johnson Movement

NEW YORK: In a series of eyeball to eyeball private conversations, Bob Kennedy has told occasional visitors, including myself and a sophisticated labor type or two, that whatever his critics think of him they don't think him "stupid." And that it would be sheer stupidity -- of the kind in which the Kennedys don't specialize -- to buck Lyndon Johnson in '68.

In that flat, somewhat staccato fashion of his, the Senator says that the labor people in particular should know better than to believe he would seek the '68 nomination or that he would take it if he could get it. Such action would rip the Democratic party apart.

Yet at this minute, in this town, his own lieutenants are launching a dump-Johnson drive. These are men who are more than torchbearers of the Kennedy cult. They are men who are considered by knowledgeable labor stategists and leaders of both parties to be his personal whips in state politics.

They are men, according to the lore here, who would not lift a phone on a vital mission unless it were cleared by the anonymously brilliant infighter, Bob's brother-in-law Steve Smith. Tpyical are two reform Democrates- - State Assemblymen Jerome Kretchmer and Albert H. Blumenthal. They are gleaming hot pistons in the junk-Johnson machine. They are men whose joint office was just down the hall from Steve Smith's 42nd Street headquarters during Bob Kennedy's 1964 compaign for the Senate. You just walked along a second floor corridor, passed the door of Kretchmer and Blumenthal, and reached Steve Smith's sanctum. There was a similar arrangement --in a hotel headquarters -- during the famous Kennedy drive to smash Tammany Hall by defeating its candidate for surrogate some years ago.

So it is not likely that men such as Kretchmer and Blumenthal would -- without Bob Kennedy's or Steve Smith's permission -- spark a dump-Johnson caucus as they did the other night.

This adds up to quite a puzzlement for the Johnson forces here - - a coalition of labor leaders, party regulars and Ambassador Arthur Goldberg. What, they ask therefore, does Bob Kennedy really want?

They believe he positively does not want the nomination in '68. They know he will stay "regular." They are positive he will not lead a floor fight against Mr. Johnson nor will he back the drive in New York for an anti-Johnson delegation to the nominating convention.

Any fight against President Johnson would cost Kennedy all chances of labor support for many an election to come. Let no one make any mistake about the significance of such a loss. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) is the nation's best organized, most far-flung, sagely scientific political machinery. Without COPE, its money, manpower and interlocked madia, no Democratic presidential candidate could unleash a successful cmapaing.

Sen. Kennedy knows this. For some two years now he has tried to build labor strength here. But despite the charm and intensity of his labor specialist, Tim Hogan, Bob still gets the freeze.

So to fight Hubert Humphrey for the nomination would mean hitting a mighty muscled labor line -- and bouncing off. If labor goes, so would hundreds of congressional candidates and precinct people who line up for labor support each election year.

There are, of course, other forces which would fragment the party if Kennedy maneuvered for the nomination. He won't. Not until 1972.

Why then are his people unleashing Operation Dump Johnson?

Among political insiders the belief is that the dump-Johnson movement is not designed to keep the President from being renominated -- but to defeat him. They could so splinter the New York liberal-labor Democratic coalition that the President could lose New York. Without the Empire State -- and without California, which seems inevitable -- the "ticket" would lose, reckon the movement's "reform" leaders.

Then everybody would regroup around Bob Kennedy in '69, launch a "save-the-party" campaign, and take it over in the '70 gubernatorial and congressional elections right across the nation. And no one, not even the labor movement, could buck Bob for the '72 nomination.

It's all long-range. But it is as immediate as last Tuesday's caucus here.

But insiders see Mr. Johnson moving, too. His field commander, some say, is the ambassador who roves across many fields -- Arthur Goldberg. In coming weeks, Mr. Goldberg will speak at the enormously prestigious Alfred E. Smith Momorial Foundation Annual Banquet which is sponsored by His Eminence, Cardinal Spellman. In quick succession Goldberg will also talk at the Liberal Party forum, the Jewish Labor Committee convention and the Four Freedoms award dinner just to mention a few events of the next few weeks.

If it is necessary to bloster the Johnson - Humphrey slate, the President will not hesitate to ask "Arthur" to run for the U. S. Senate against Sen. Jack Javits. Of course, Bob Kennedy would have to back such a ticket. And actively, too. So the President is also playing some smart political chess.

Ambassador Goldberg is labor's pride and joy. They'd go for broke for him, as well as the President. And probably elect him, too, and thus save the state in '68 for Lyndon Johnson.

So perhaps the strategic sense of the pro-Kennedy forces isn't as long-range as their ambitions.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- "Safety - in - the-streets," the crime prevention bill, is now bogged down between a majority of the senate which favors it and a majority of the house of representatives which has tacked an unworkable provision to it. Between the two, the man and woman in the street who suffer from stickups, yokings and rape may be out of luck.

Backing the senate majority is Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who has made a more detailed study of police and crime prevention than probably any other attorney general.

On the house side is a coalition of Dixiecrats who are afraid that if the federal government allocates the money for crime prevention, it will set up guidelines, and require southern cities to hire a certain number of Negro police.

Voting with the Dixiecrats in the house are Republican congressmen who see a chance to allocate federal money to states which, for lack of courage to tax, don't raise funds for themselves.

"The United States spends $12 billion a year on liquor," says Attorney General Clark, "and $8.8 billion on tobacco. In contrast we spend only $4 billion on criminal justice. This includes salaries to police, cost of jails and our whole correctional system, federal, state and local.

"We have got to build up local police forces," emphasizes Clark. "The average policeman is grossly underpaid. If he were paid $10,000 as an average base, it would not be too much."

STATE VS. CITY POLICE

Real fact is that most state officials candidly admit they are completely unequipped to handle crime funds which the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition wants to give them.

In 1966 President Johnson asked the 50 governors to set up Lanning commissions to combat crime so the justice department could work effectively with them. As of today, 18 months later, only 13 states indicated any interest in the plan, even though they knew the justice department hoped to allocate funds for crime prevention.

Most states have no police other than highway patrols. Seventy per cent of state police funds is spent on highway safety.

Furthermore, state governments are not equipped to allocate funds from the "safe streets" bill. They would have to set up bureaus, recruit staffs and go to considerable expense to cooperate with the cities where most of the crime takes place. Many states would have to pass an amendment to their constitutions to permit this work, and practically all would have to pass legislation. All this would cause delays of one to two years.

What the Dixiecrat - GOP coalition overlooks is that it's the cities which specialize in police, not the states. New York City, for instance, has 29,000 police, a force larger than the U.S. Marine Corps before World War II. The Justice Department in Washington, through the FBI, is in touch with the New York police and most other city police daily and is geared to allocate funds in a few days.

The Chicago police force totals 14,000 men; also is in daily touch with the FBI and justice department.

Los Angeles has one of the smaller police forces, only 5,600 men, because Los Angeles county has 4,500 sheriffs and the county and the city work together.

Attorney General Clark is opposed to setting up either a big federal police force or state police. And the great majority of crime experts agree with him. The United States government has a total of only 23,000 federal police officers including the FBI, the secret service, the internal revenue service, postal inspectors, narcotics agents and all other police bureaus. All the deputy U.S. marshals in the United States total only 700. And Attorney General Clark wants to keep things that way. He believes the federal government should be a correlating agency, not set up a super police agency.

CRIME AND POLITICS

States, on the other hand, are likely to get involved in politics when it comes to dividing crime-fighting funds. State governments would be caught between rival cities, as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania, Cleveland and Cincinnati in Ohio, Los Angeles and San Francisco in California, all demanding a larger share of police money.

The justice department believes, therefore, that the FBI and the national crime experts are in a better position to be impartial than state politicians.

These are some of the difficulties the anti - crime bill is certain to face if the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition has its way.

Meanwhile, the "safe streets" bill is stuck in the senate judiciary committee where three southerners are not eager to let it out without the states' right amendment. They are: chairman "Big Jim" Eastland, Miss., Sen. John McClellan, Ark., and Sen. Sam Ervin, N.C., all Democrats.

Fearful that the federal government would require southern cities to hire a certain quota of Negro cops, they are determined to have federal funds funneled through the states, not direct to the cities.

Note -- In Atlanta, one of the safest cities in the deep south, Police Chief Herbert Jenkins as early as 1946 began hiring Negro policemen to patrol Negro sections of the city.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

PENSION PLAN SAFEGUARDS

Lines are being drawn by the federal government and the business community for a confrontation over regulation of private pension plans with billions of dollars in assets.

Such business spokesmen as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce flatly deny that there is need for further government regulation. The National Retail Merchants Association even charges that the push for reform is an effort to convert private pension plans into "a second system of Social Security, paid for out of private money." But the Johnson administration and some members of Congress insist that tighter regulation is required, and they are moving in that direction.

At the root of the controversy is the possibility that perhaps as few as one in five of the more than 25 million persons now covered by private pension plans ever will receive any pension benefits. Most of the plans have provisions so restrictive that an eligible employee can disqualify himself for ultimate benefits in a variety of ways, especially by changing jobs.

The aggregate economic impact of private pension plans has reached important proportions. Nearly three million retired workers were receiving pensions last year and the number is expected to rise to 6.6 million by 1980. More than $7.5 billion was contributed to pension plans in 1966, and the sum will be almost $11 billion annually by 1980.

Pay-outs to beneficiaries are running now at about $3 billion annually. The reserves held by the pension funds amounted in 1966 to about $90 billion and will hit $225 billion by 1980.

Stanley S. Surrey, assistant secretary of the Treasury, has named five specific areas in which the administration believes that the rules governing pension plans need tightening: (1) vesting, (2) funding and reinsurance, (3) broadening of employee coverage, (4) responsibility of plan managers, and (5) additional disclosure.

When a pension is vested, an employee retains the right to benefits regardless of later circumstances, such as getting fired or moving voluntarily to another job. A Labor Department study found that vesting is so limited that nearly one-half of the 15.6 million workers covered by the plans studied had no vested right to a pension even when they had worked for one employer for 25 years and were 50 years old.

A federal interagency staff has proposed that participants in private pension plans be granted vested rights after 10 years service with an employer. This proposal is strongly opposed by many business groups and even the President's own Labor-Management Advisory Committee.

That committee, with only a few dissenting members, criticized a similar proposal put forward two years ago: "Private plans have their own unique role to play. . . We are fearful that a vesting requirement by law would deprive them of that degree of flexibility essential to perform this function."

Few of the pension plans now in operation are fully funded. In other words, the reserves are not large enough to make sure that a plan's liabilities to its members will be met. Most plans are less than 25 years old and they have not yet had time to fund the liabilities for past employment assumed at their inception.

These past liabilities are usually funded over a 30-year period. The administration tentatively is suggesting a 25-year limit on funding. To insure that the plan will still be in operation at the end of the 25-year period (or at least that the workers will get the benefits they have earned), the interagency staff further proposed a reinsurance program.

Nearly 40 bills have been introduces in the 90th Congress to increase government regulation of pension plans. One, recommended by President Johnson, would require added disclosures by plan administrators of financial data and set limits on certain types of investments.

Federal regulation of pension plans dates from 1928 and has steadily been broadened. The major justification for the regulation is that the government, through tax deductions, pays about 30 percent of the cost of most plans. Employers are allowed to deduct contributions as a current business expense as though the payments were a form of wage.

The pension plans are coming under attack for other reasons, too. By last autumn more than 55 percent of all pension plan assets were invested in common stocks, and the Joint Economic Committee warned that a prolonged drop in the stock market could be disasterous for the plans.

Many observers believe that the prospective pensioner is entitled to additional protection and to better odds than one out of five on eventually collecting. Congress faces the task of marking more definite boundaries between private interests and public purposes in this important economic sector.

Dummy cars -- called simulators -- are being used to train straight-A drivers in the suburban community of Hinsdale, Illinois.

The simulators, which resemble over-sized desks, are equipped with mock controls, including dashboards, steering wheels, gear shifts and brakes.

The cars are part of a driver-training program being taught at Hinsdale high school. They enable students to learn how to drive without leaving the classroom, although the Hinsdale teen-agers do at one stage of the three-phase course, which includes:

1. Nine weeks of classroom study, devoted to learning the rules of the road and --yes -- written examinations.

2. Ten one-hour periods behind the wheel of the non-moving simulator to become accustomed to the controls of a car.

3. Nine one-hour periods of actual driving on the road with an instructor at the side of each student.

In the opinion of those who teach the course, teen-age drivers who successfully complete the program are likely to be better drivers than those who haven't, including most adults.

How does the dummy car work?

It combines challenge with fun, using a film projector and a tape recorder. Students behind the wheel view films of traffic scenes, test situations calling for a decision and reaction from the driver.

A typical test situation might force a student to decide whether to accelerate or hit the brakes while passing another vehicle.

If the student makes a mistake -- fails to obey a stop sign that appears on the screen or doesn't brake when a pedestrian steps off the corner -- a light mounted on the simulator flashes on to indicate the error.

Students' reactions are recorded on tape and made available to them later so they can check their errors.

Although many parents criticize driver education as a waste of time, its value can be supported by insurance rates. Teen-age drivers in Illinois, for example, who have completed high school driver training courses, qualify for 10 per cent lower insurance rates. The same reward is available in many other states.

About 500,000 high school students are enrolled in driver education courses, but another 1,500,000 are not, a recent survey by the National Education Association indicates. The Association believes driver training should be mandatory in schools, and should be supported by state and federal funds.

NEW YORK (AP) — Well, it's enough to make you antiunion. Because, after all, if the United Federation of Teachers doesn't call this strike against the New York school system, it never happens.

No strike, and Public School No. 44 will be open. If No. 44 is open, Jeffrey, aged 11, will be in class instead of putting his trousers on at 10 a.m. And if Jeffrey is not putting his trousers on at 10 a.m., what occurs does not occur.

First word of what has taken place comes in the form of a telephone call to the office from Jeffrey's brother, Nick, aged 10.

"Daddy," says Nick, "Jeffrey is in trouble. He was putting his pants on and, you know, something happened which is a man problem. That's why we didn't call Monny at the University."

"It involves the zipper?"

"Yes, Daddy. We've tried everything but it's no good. Jeffrey is being very brave, but . . ."

"Hold everything, Daddy will be home cabwise forthwith."

The cab delivers Daddy at the apartment house in Manhattan and it is quickly evident that this is a contretemps which will require professional assistance.

So a telephone call is made to he family doctor.

"Oh, my goodness," says the family doctor. "Bring the poor little fellow over immediately."

After a somewhat tiresome interlude a cab is captured and the trip is made to the doctor's lair on Central Park West.

"Hmm," says the doctor. "You don't particularly care what happens to the pants?"

"No, doctor. The important thing is to release the captive."

"Very well. Now, you take the right-hand side of the zipper and I'll take the left and— there we go! All right, Jeffrey?"

"Yes, doctor, and thank you," says Jeffrey, being brave.

Jeffrey, Nick and Daddy then repair back to the apartment building in a cab and another day in the life of a bunch of born losers is history.

We do not know how much money the United Federation of Teachers may have, but we sincerely hope it is plenty. Because we are going to sue them for every dime they own, unless we cool off quite a few degrees in the near future.

PROPOSED BUDGET SPENDING EQUALS $863 PER AMERICAN

On per person basis, the $172 billion the Federal government expects to spend through its cash budget in fiscal 1968 (beginning next July 1), figures out to $863, says Tax Foundation, Inc. Cash budget spending includes spending from the administrative or "regular" budget plus spending from trust funds, e.g., old-age and highway trust accounts.

On a staty-by-state basis, says the Foundation, the costs will range from $1,420 per resident of Delaware down to $241 per resident of Mississippi.

The state figures are determined by a Foundation formula for distribution of the tax burden which takes into account the fact that tobacco taxes, for example, are largely collected in three states, but that the burden falls on people in all states where the cigarettes are bought.

Likewise, the bulk of the manufacturer's excise tax on cars centers in Michigan, but that state accounts for only a small part of the total U.S. vehicle registration.

They were rich but lonely so they decided that they would adopt somebody, preferably an old couple they could shower with affection and whose last days they could ease. They decided to find a refugee couple. They checked the newspaper for a ship arrival.

Anxiously they waited on the dock. Almost all the refugees had debarked but none had been chosen. Finally the last two, a very old man and a very old woman appeared. At the sight of them, the good samaritans jumped for joy.

"That old man looks like my grandfather used to!" cried the husband. "And she is the image of my grandmother," replied his wife.

They assisted the old pair into the limousine and told them that they were to be cared for the rest of their lives. The little old lady refugee started to say something but she was halted by the kind couple. "No, no. Don't try to thanks us," they said, "there will be time for that later."

Off they went to the mansion where a feast was awaiting the couple. Againt the old woman tried to speak and again she was hushed. "Later, my dear, not now."

After dinner, they were taken up to a beautiful boudoir with a big, double bed. They were told that this was to be their room . . . and the benefactors left as the old lady tried to speak again.

The next morning, the old lady came down to breakfast first and her benefactor said to her, "I know you want to say something."

"I do," cried the old lady, wringing her hands. "I want to thank you for everything . . . but tell me, who is that little old man you've got rooming with me?"

REQUIEM FOR DUPLICITY

When John Hill was publishing his magazine, "Engineering News," (which later became McGraw-Hill's Engineering News Record), he sold the center spread to a steel manufacturer on an every-issue basis.

One day a bridge in one of the western states collapsed. Engineering News reported that the disaster had been caused by steel which had not measured up to the builder's specifications. They named the culprit company -- the magazine's heavy advertiser.

Almost before the ink was dry, the president of the steel firm charged into John Hill's office and said: "You can cancel my advertising from this day on!"

As reported in Printers Ink: "John Hill rose to his feet. He fixed a burning eye on the steelmaker and said with icy calmness, 'Sir, from the moment we learned you sold defective steel, we revoked your privilege to advertise in our pages. We don't do business with murderers!'

"From that day until the end of the steelmaker's contract, the spread his advertising had always occupied in Engineering News remained blank -- except for a single line of type which read, simply, 'Dedicated to a principle.'"

A NON-PARTISAN PLAN

Increasingly, students of government are realizing that the district plan for choosing the President of the United States, as presented to the Constitutional Convention by James Wilson of Pennsylvania on June 2, 1787, is the best method by which the intention of the Founders of Freedom to create a republic form of government in the United States can be realized and perpetuated. Now antiquated, the Electoral College needs only to be wisely reformed -- never abolished.

The Congressional District Plan for its reform will help guarantee what the Founders sought to achieve. This plan would be placed in effect under a proposed constitutional amendment now before both houses of Congress. Since the time element now precludes a ratification by the state legislatures soon enough for the reform amendment to affect the 1968 presidential election, it has become a truly non - partisan measure. No one can say which of the major political parties might benefit more from its adoption.

Certain it is that under this plan for Electoral College reform (SJR 86), nearly every state with 10 or more electors would give a part of its electoral vote to each of the major party candidates. This would effectively break the big population state monopoly.

Some advocate the direct vote plan for naming the President. Substitution of the direct vote for the Electoral College system would mean abandonment of an important provision relied upon by the authors of the Constitution to establish our nation as a Republic. It is significant that in a recent poll only 10 per cent favored continuation of the Electoral College system in its present form. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR ANGERED

Bob Kennedy Silent as His own Lieutenants Organize Dump Johnson Movement

NEW YORK: In a series of eyeball to eyeball private conversations, Bob Kennedy has told occasional visitors, including myself and a sophisticated labor type or two, that whatever his critics think of him they don't think him "stupid." And that it would be sheer stupidity -- of the kind in which the Kennedys don't specialize -- to buck Lyndon Johnson in '68.

In that flat, somewhat staccato fashion of his, the Senator says that the labor people in particular should know better than to believe he would seek the '68 nomination or that he would take it if he could get it. Such action would rip the Democratic party apart.

Yet at this minute, in this town, his own lieutenants are launching a dump-Johnson drive. These are men who are more than torchbearers of the Kennedy cult. They are men who are considered by knowledgeable labor stategists and leaders of both parties to be his personal whips in state politics.

They are men, according to the lore here, who would not lift a phone on a vital mission unless it were cleared by the anonymously brilliant infighter, Bob's brother-in-law Steve Smith. Tpyical are two reform Democrates - State Assemblymen Jerome Kretchmer and Albert H. Blumenthal. They are gleaming hot pistons in the junk-Johnson machine. They are men whose joint office was just down the hall from Steve Smith's 42nd Street headquarters during Bob Kennedy's 1964 compaign for the Senate. You just walked along a second floor corridor, passed the door of Kretchmer and Blumenthal, and reached Steve Smith's sanctum. There was a similar arrangement --in a hotel headquarters -- during the famous Kennedy drive to smash Tammany Hall by defeating its candidate for surrogate some years ago.

So it is not likely that men such as Kretchmer and Blumenthal would -- without Bob Kennedy's or Steve Smith's permission -- spark a dump-Johnson caucus as they did the other night.

This adds up to quite a puzzlement for the Johnson forces here - a coalition of labor leaders, party regulars and Ambassador Arthur Goldberg. What, they ask therefore, does Bob Kennedy really want?

They believe he positively does not want the nomination in '68. They know he will stay "regular." They are positive he will not lead a floor fight against Mr. Johnson nor will he back the drive in New York for an anti-Johnson delegation to the nominating convention.

Any fight against President Johnson would cost Kennedy all chances of labor support for many an election to come. Let no one make any mistake about the significance of such a loss. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) is the nation's best organized, most far-flung, sagely scientific political machinery. Without COPE, its money, manpower and interlocked madia, no Democratic presidential candidate could unleash a successful cmapaing.

Sen. Kennedy knows this. For some two years now he has tried to build labor strength here. But despite the charm and intensity of his labor specialist, Tim Hogan, Bob still gets the freeze.

So to fight Hubert Humphrey for the nomination would mean hitting a mighty muscled labor line -- and bouncing off. If labor goes, so would hundreds of congressional candidates and precinct people who line up for labor support each election year.

There are, of course, other forces which would fragment the party if Kennedy maneuvered for the nomination. He won't. Not until 1972.

Why then are his people unleashing Operation Dump Johnson?

Among political insiders the belief is that the dump-Johnson movement is not designed to keep the President from being renominated -- but to defeat him. They could so splinter the New York liberal-labor Democratic coalition that the President could lose New York. Without the Empire State -- and without California, which seems inevitable -- the "ticket" would lose, reckon the movement's "reform" leaders.

Then everybody would regroup around Bob Kennedy in '69, launch a "save-the-party" campaign, and take it over in the '70 gubernatorial and congressional elections right across the nation. And no one, not even the labor movement, could buck Bob for the '72 nomination.

It's all long-range. But it is as immediate as last Tuesday's caucus here.

But insiders see Mr. Johnson moving, too. His field commander, some say, is the ambassador who roves across many fields -- Arthur Goldberg. In coming weeks, Mr. Goldberg will speak at the enormously prestigious Alfred E. Smith Momorial Foundation Annual Banquet which is sponsored by His Eminence, Cardinal Spellman. In quick succession Goldberg will also talk at the Liberal Party forum, the Jewish Labor Committee convention and the Four Freedoms award dinner just to mention a few events of the next few weeks.

If it is necessary to bloster the Johnson - Humphrey slate, the President will not hesitate to ask "Arthur" to run for the U. S. Senate against Sen. Jack Javits. Of course, Bob Kennedy would have to back such a ticket. And actively, too. So the President is also playing some smart political chess.

Ambassador Goldberg is labor's pride and joy. They'd go for broke for him, as well as the President. And probably elect him, too, and thus save the state in '68 for Lyndon Johnson.

So perhaps the strategic sense of the pro-Kennedy forces isn't as long-range as their ambitions.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- "Safety - in - the-streets," the crime prevention bill, is now bogged down between a majority of the senate which favors it and a majority of the house of representatives which has tacked an unworkable provision to it. Between the two, the man and woman in the street who suffer from stickups, yokings and rape may be out of luck.

Backing the senate majority is Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who has made a more detailed study of police and crime prevention than probably any other attorney general.

On the house side is a coalition of Dixiecrats who are afraid that if the federal government allocates the money for crime prevention, it will set up guidelines, and require southern cities to hire a certain number of Negro police.

Voting with the Dixiecrats in the house are Republican congressmen who see a chance to allocate federal money to states which, for lack of courage to tax, don't raise funds for themselves.

"The United States spends $12 billion a year on liquor," says Attorney General Clark, "and $8.8 billion on tobacco. In contrast we spend only $4 billion on criminal justice. This includes salaries to police, cost of jails and our whole correctional system, federal, state and local.

"We have got to build up local police forces," emphasizes Clark. "The average policeman is grossly underpaid. If he were paid $10,000 as an average base, it would not be too much."

STATE VS. CITY POLICE

Real fact is that most state officials candidly admit they are completely unequipped to handle crime funds which the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition wants to give them.

In 1966 President Johnson asked the 50 governors to set up Lanning commissions to combat crime so the justice department could work effectively with them. As of today, 18 months later, only 13 states indicated any interest in the plan, even though they knew the justice department hoped to allocate funds for crime prevention.

Most states have no police other than highway patrols. Seventy per cent of state police funds is spent on highway safety.

Furthermore, state governments are not equipped to allocate funds from the "safe streets" bill. They would have to set up bureaus, recruit staffs and go to considerable expense to cooperate with the cities where most of the crime takes place. Many states would have to pass an amendment to their constitutions to permit this work, and practically all would have to pass legislation. All this would cause delays of one to two years.

What the Dixiecrat - GOP coalition overlooks is that it's the cities which specialize in police, not the states. New York City, for instance, has 29,000 police, a force larger than the U.S. Marine Corps before World War II. The Justice Department in Washington, through the FBI, is in touch with the New York police and most other city police daily and is geared to allocate funds in a few days.

The Chicago police force totals 14,000 men; also is in daily touch with the FBI and justice department.

Los Angeles has one of the smaller police forces, only 5,600 men, because Los Angeles county has 4,500 sheriffs and the county and the city work together.

Attorney General Clark is opposed to setting up either a big federal police force or state police. And the great majority of crime experts agree with him. The United States government has a total of only 23,000 federal police officers including the FBI, the secret service, the internal revenue service, postal inspectors, narcotics agents and all other police bureaus. All the deputy U.S. marshals in the United States total only 700. And Attorney General Clark wants to keep things that way. He believes the federal government should be a correlating agency, not set up a super police agency.

CRIME AND POLITICS

States, on the other hand, are likely to get involved in politics when it comes to dividing crime-fighting funds. State governments would be caught between rival cities, as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania, Cleveland and Cincinnati in Ohio, Los Angeles and San Francisco in California, all demanding a larger share of police money.

The justice department believes, therefore, that the FBI and the national crime experts are in a better position to be impartial than state politicians.

These are some of the difficulties the anti - crime bill is certain to face if the Dixiecrat - Republican coalition has its way.

Meanwhile, the "safe streets" bill is stuck in the senate judiciary committee where three southerners are not eager to let it out without the states' right amendment. They are: chairman "Big Jim" Eastland, Miss., Sen. John McClellan, Ark., and Sen. Sam Ervin, N.C., all Democrats.

Fearful that the federal government would require southern cities to hire a certain quota of Negro cops, they are determined to have federal funds funneled through the states, not direct to the cities.

Note -- In Atlanta, one of the safest cities in the deep south, Police Chief Herbert Jenkins as early as 1946 began hiring Negro policemen to patrol Negro sections of the city.

Girl Scout Leaders Have Joint Meet

Forty four leaders, troop organizers and troop consultants met Wednesday morning in the fellowship hall of the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church for the only joint neighborhood meeting of the year.

Miss Ilena Aslin, Cotton Boll Scout executive, presided at a rededication and investiture service for old and new Scout leaders.

She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Dye, junior, cadette, and senior neighborhood chairman; Mrs. Paul Fisher, Brownie neighborhood chairman, and Mrs. James Howle.

Candles of green and yellow, Girl Scout colors, were lighted by Mrs. John Sargent, Mrs. Richard Powell, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joe Mills, Mrs. Hal Robertson, Mrs. Jerry Dyer, Mrs. John Doggett, Mrs. Jesse Page, Mrs. Ralph Boyer and Mrs. Frank Tull. Each repeated one of the Girl Scout laws. The entire group repeated the Girl Scout promise.

New Brownie troops leaders introduced by Mrs. Fisher and receiving pins from Miss Aslin, included Mrs. Robert M. Jenkins, Mrs. Bill Deane, Mrs. Joe McCord, Mrs. Bill Hinton, Mrs. Bill Burch, Mrs. Hoyt Lambert, Mrs. Billy Boshears and Mrs. Jerry Allen.

Mrs. Dye introduced new junior leaders, Mrs. C. T. Bennett, Mrs. Bill Lewis, Mrs. Wendell Weathers, Mrs. John Scarbrough, Mrs. Don Matthews and Mrs. J. R. Trapani and a new cadette leader, Mrs. Dean Northcutt. They received pins from Miss Aslin.

During the business meeting Mrs. Fisher told policies for Girl Scout participation in the Cotton Carnival parade and presented information on the National Girl Scout Conference to be held in St. Louis Oct. 3 through 5.

Mrs. Powell spoke on the Juliette Lowe World Friendship fund and presented Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Doggett, who gave suggestions for making this voluntary contribution more meaningful to Scouts in terms of international friendship and understanding.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on the importance of troop registration and gave the total Sikeston membership as 733, serving one girl out of every three in town.

Mrs. Dye explained operation EDITH, exit drill in the home, and suggested Scout participation in Fire Prevention Week Oct. 9-15. She also spoke on the council meeting in Poplar Bluff and the cadette and senior planning boards to which troops elect representatives.

Leaders were urged to take their troops camping one or more times a year and camping activities were reviewed by Mrs. Page, reporting on the Brownie Day camp at Clayton Park; Mrs. Robert Hambrick on Oakwood Day camp at the Lyle Bird farm and Mrs. Doggett on the Cadette Frontier Trail Tour taken in August.

Leaders were reminded of the final training sessions to be held Tuesday and Oct. 10 and were given the 1967 - 68 program calendar of events, Juliette Lowe World Friendship resource material, new catalogue and yearly troop reports.

Girl Scout Leaders Have Joint Meet

Forty four leaders, troop organizers and troop consultants met Wednesday morning in the fellowship hall of the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian church for the only joint neighborhood meeting of the year.

Miss Ilena Aslin, Cotton Boll Scout executive, presided at a rededication and investiture service for old and new Scout leaders.

She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Dye, junior, cadette, and senior neighborhood chairman; Mrs. Paul Fisher, Brownie neighborhood chairman, and Mrs. James Howle.

Candles of green and yellow, Girl Scout colors, were lighted by Mrs. John Sargent, Mrs. Richard Powell, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Mrs. Joe Mills, Mrs. Hal Robertson, Mrs. Jerry Dyer, Mrs. John Doggett, Mrs. Jesse Page, Mrs. Ralph Boyer and Mrs. Frank Tull. Each repeated one of the Girl Scout laws. The entire group repeated the Girl Scout promise.

New Brownie troops leaders introduced by Mrs. Fisher and receiving pins from Miss Aslin, included Mrs. Robert M. Jenkins, Mrs. Bill Deane, Mrs. Joe McCord, Mrs. Bill Hinton, Mrs. Bill Burch, Mrs. Hoyt Lambert, Mrs. Billy Boshears and Mrs. Jerry Allen.

Mrs. Dye introduced new junior leaders, Mrs. C. T. Bennett, Mrs. Bill Lewis, Mrs. Wendell Weathers, Mrs. John Scarbrough, Mrs. Don Matthews and Mrs. J. R. Trapani and a new cadette leader, Mrs. Dean Northcutt. They received pins from Miss Aslin.

During the business meeting Mrs. Fisher told policies for Girl Scout participation in the Cotton Carnival parade and presented information on the National Girl Scout Conference to be held in St. Louis Oct. 3 through 5.

Mrs. Powell spoke on the Juliette Lowe World Friendship fund and presented Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Doggett, who gave suggestions for making this voluntary contribution more meaningful to Scouts in terms of international friendship and understanding.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on the importance of troop registration and gave the total Sikeston membership as 733, serving one girl out of every three in town.

Mrs. Dye explained operation EDITH, exit drill in the home, and suggested Scout participation in Fire Prevention Week Oct. 9-15. She also spoke on the council meeting in Poplar Bluff and the cadette and senior planning boards to which troops elect representatives.

Leaders were urged to take their troops camping one or more times a year and camping activities were reviewed by Mrs. Page, reporting on the Brownie Day camp at Clayton Park; Mrs. Robert Hambrick on Oakwood Day camp at the Lyle Bird farm and Mrs. Doggett on the Cadette Frontier Trail Tour taken in August.

Leaders were reminded of the final training sessions to be held Tuesday and Oct. 10 and were given the 1967 - 68 program calendar of events, Juliette Lowe World Friendship resource material, new catalogue and yearly troop reports.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

The biggest single factor causing a school's low sportsmanship rating in basketball is the coach's undesirable conduct on the bench.

The attitude and behavior of the players and fans are contributing factors, but not as important in sportsmanship ratings as the manner in which the coach handles himself during a game

These are among the conclusions in a dissertation presented by Gary Kay Cain for the doctor of education degree he received from the University of Missouri, Columbia, at its summer commencement. Cain is assistant professor of physical education at the University, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1959 and a master's in 1960.

The purpose of his doctoral study was to compare certain administrative practices and conditions in schools receiving high sportsmanship ratings with those of schools having low ratings for interscholastic basketball contests in Missouri.

Dr. Cain selected 10 senior high schools in the highest sportsmanship rating and 10 in the lowest, as ranked by the Missouri State High School Activities Association. He interviewed administrators in charge of basketball programs and 60 officials -- 30 who worked with the upper group, and 0 with the lower.

All the administrators and all the officials agreed that the coach's poor bench behavior was the most damaging factor in low sportsmanship ratings in basketball. Other conclusions listed by Dr. Cain include:

Schools with superior equipment and facilities are more likely to receive higher sportsmanship ratings.

Where the tenure of school officials associated with the basketball program is brief, the sportsmanship ratings tend to be low.

Higher ratings are not resultant from chance.

Schools with high ratings do not necessarily have winning teams, nor do schools with low ratings necessarily have losing teams.

Schools involving numerous members of the faculty in specific supervisory duties during home games tend to have fewer problems from the fans.

There is wide variation in the quality of basketball officiating in Missouri.

The experience of some officials in a few schools with low sportsmanship ratings indicates that conditions have deteriorated to a point of serious concern for the safety and well being of the officials.

American Leaguers Move Into Final Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington's unromantic Senators have shown Detroit to the door and now Tiger Manager Mayo Smith must figure out a way to keep his foot in it.

Paul Casanova and Fred Valentine were the chief cads in this tale of a broken affair and although Dan Cupid might not approve, Gil Hodges certainly did.

Casanova and Valentine delivered key singles in a three-run Washington ninth that gave the Senators a 5-4 victory over Detroit Sunday. The loss shoved the Tigers into fourth place, 1 1/2 games behind Minnesota as the torrid American League pennant race moved into its final week.

Minnesota retained its one-half game lead, beating New York 9-4 for Dean Chance's 20th victory. Boston stayed right behind the Twins by walloping Baltimore 11-4 with an 18-hit attack. Third place Chicago used four pitchers to stop Cleveland 3-1 and stayed one game behind. In another game, California edged Kansas City 2-1.

The Tigers carried a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning against Washington and were looking forward to their third straight victory over the cooperative Senators.

But Mike Epstein and Frank Coggins opened with singles. After Ken McMullen bunted into a force out, Casanova singled one run across. The affectionate Senators were getting too cozy for Smith. He brought in reliever John Hiller who retired Carl Peterson on a line drive for the second out.

Hiller got the first two strikes over to Doug Camilli, who had driven in only four runs all year. But Camilli worked the count to 3-2, fouled off several pitches and finally singled the tying run across. Valentine followed with the fifth single of the inning, scoring Casanova with the winner.

End of game and end of romance.

A giant roar went up at Metropolitan Stadium in Minnesota when the Detroit score was posted. The Twins, despite a somewhat shoddy performance by Chance, were coasting past the Yankees and protecting their lead.

Bob Allison walloped a three-run first inning home run and Harmon Killebrew tagged his 41st of the season, making it easy for Chance, who allowed 12 hits.

Detroit's trouble in Washington was greeted serenely by the Red Sox when it was posted at Baltimore. "We knew about it already," smiled Carl Yastrzemski. "My brother was sitting next to the dugout with a radio and he told us 10 minutes before it was up on the scoreboard."

Boston tore into the Orioles with Dalton Jones, George Scott and Jerry Adair smashing four hits apiece. Jones drove in five runs, giving him nine in the last week and 25 for the season.

Jim Lonborg allowed just two hits in the six innings he pitched and won his 21st game. He is expected to start two of Boston's four remaining games.

Don McMahon pitched five innings of perfect relief and then Gary Peters and Bobby Locker bailed him out of an eighth inning jam as the White Sox topped the Indians.

Chicago was leading 3-0 in the third when Cisco Carlos gave up a single and a walk. Eddie Sanky called for McMahon, who retired 14 straight batters until the eighth. Then consecutive doubles by Richie Scheinblum and Joe Azcue knocked him out.

Peters came on to get pinch hitter Tony Horton and then Locker retired the last two batters without further damage. The Indians put two men on in the ninth but Locker fed Fred Whitfield a double play ball to end the game.

Bob Rodgers singled home two runs in the first inning and California made them stand up for its victory over Kansas City.

Chiefs Headed For AFL Showdown

Cards' Bakken Sets NFL Field Goal Mark

By The Associated Press

Jim Bakken was looking so hard for the end - a National Football League field goal record - he almost lost sight of the means - the ball.

The football-style kicker set a record of seven field goals Sunday in nine attempts, also a record. His kicking also carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 28-14 upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I knew about the record, and it almost cost me," Bakken said. "When I kicked the seventh one, I wanted to see if it was any good almost before I kicked it. So I looked up and almost dubbed it. I just made it."

It just made it 23 yards and broke the mark of six set last season by soccer - style kicker Garo Yepremian of Detroit.

In other NFL games, Johnny Unitas boosted his career passing yardage past the 30,000-mark as Baltimore clobbered Philadelphia 38-6, Washington drubbed New Orleans 30-10, Dallas clipped the New York Giants 38-24, Detroit topped Cleveland 31-14 and San Francisco trounced Atlanta 38-7. Los Angeles outclassed Minnesota 39-3 Friday night.

Boston blanked Buffalo 23-0, Kansas City whipped Miami 24-0, San Diego outlasted Houston 13-3 and the New York Jets scrambled past Denver 38-24 in the American Football League.

The Cardinals, who stymied Pittsburgh with three interceptions and a fumble recovery which they converted into 16 points, scored their only touchdown on quarterback Jim Hart's 23-yard run in the first quarter.

The Kansas City Chiefs are headed for an early season showdown at Oakland with a 2-0 record in defense of their American Football League crown, thanks to a fine effort by their defensive unit and another great day by Mike Garrett in a 24-0 shutout at Miami.

Oakland has a 2-0 record like Kansas City and San Diego, in the western division. Oakland also remembers Kansas City's 48-0 romp in an exhibition at Portland.

Garrett ripped Miami for 131 yards rushing in 20 carries and caught two passes for 29 yards, including a 34-yard touchdown scamper with a Len Dawson pass in the second period, down the sidelines.

Twice Garrett gave a defender a leg and took it away in one of his best runs of the season. As usual, he wouldn't take any credit.

"The whole team was blocking for me on that play," he said. "A couple of guys got up and hit them twice - that's how slow I was moving. It wasn't because I didn't want to - I just couldn't."

As for his big day, Garrett shrugged it off, saying "I should have broken loose a couple of times more."

Garrett's 34-yarder was a screen pass off the club's shifting I formation. Coach Hank Stram said "It's the first time we've used it."

Bert Coan smashed over from the two to end a 47-yard drive and Dawson threw a 47-yard bomb to Otis Taylor for the other two TD's. Jan Stanerud kicked a 21-yard field goal.

Kansas City's defense held Miami to just 8 first downs and 20 net yards rushing. Rookie quarterback Bob Griese, scrambling for his life, hit 11 of 22 passes for 101 yards and had two intercepted. The Dolphins could get past the Chiefs' 40 only once.

Nash Wants to Be Included In Kansas City Trade Bunelle

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- Jim Nash is the third Kansas City Athletics pitcher to say he wants to be traded.

Jack Aker announced Friday he wanted out, and Lew Krausse said earlier he will quit baseball before he plays for owner Charles O. Finley next season.

Nash, big righthander who had an outstanding 12-1 record as a rookie in 1966, sounded off Sunday after being beaten 2-1 by California. His record this year is 12-16.

He said the Athletics had promised him that Sunday's game would be his last this season so he could go home to Marietta, Ga., and get ready to enter the Army Oct. 2.

Nash originally was scheduled to start military service in mid-October, but he arranged the earlier date so he could get out next year for the start of spring baseball training.

Mizzou Stops SMU

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Associated Press Sports Writer

Missouri's defense shone in an impressive 21-0 victory over SMU and Jerry Levias before 53,000 at Columbia, a record Missouri opening day crowd.

Missouwi got two TDs from its defense, as Roger Wehrli, who shadowed Levias all day, returned at 64 yards and Butch Davis went 53 with a stolen pass. The game ball went to fullback Barry Lischner. Quarterback Gary Kombrink, who ran for 128 yards, sprained an ankle and might not play.

These are odd but happy days in Big Eight football. Consider these items:

Six teams are unbeaten going into the third week of the season, after a 5-2 weekend against outside foes, with champion Nebraska on the sidelines. The Big Eight now stands 7-3-1.

Oklahoma State beats once-mighty Arkansas -- first time in 13 years.

And, of all things, a Kansas State coach faults himself for getting greedy, instead of keeping the ball and holding down the score.

"It's my fault they scored," said K-State coach Vince Gibson after his team's 17-7 victory at Colorado State, first for K-State anywhere since 1964. "The fake field goal was a greedy play, trying to score a touchdown when we should have sat on the ball."

The pass on the fake play was batted and returned 75 yards to the K-State 2-yard line. Even then, it took CSU four plays to score. K-State's defensive play was tremendous to the end.

K-State was greeted on its return by 8,000 wildly happy fans.

Gibson wasn't the only successful new coach. Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks was given the game ball after his club's convincing 21-0 romp over Washington State before 51,700 at Norman, Okla. Pepper Rodgers almost had a winning debut, but Stanford pulled it out 21-20.

Ninth-ranked Colorado ran up a 17-0 bulge at Oregon in a televised game, then needed six interceptions to squeeze by 17-13.

Oklahoma State's 7-6 victory before 53,000 at Little Rock was a wild, see-saw game loaded with missed scoring chances.

Jack Reynolds blasted 13 yards for the OSU touchdown early in the last period. OSU played without No. 1 quarterback Ronnie Johnson.

This Saturday's six-game card finds Minnesota at Nebraska, New Mexico at Iowa State, Virginia Tech at K-State, Maryland at Oklahoma, Kansas at Indiana and Missouri at Northwestern.

Kansas spotted Stanford a 14-0 lead with two close-in fumbles, but rallied to go ahead 17-14 on an 87-yard kickoff return by Junior Riggins and 47-yard punt return by Don Shanklin. A 32-yard field goal try just missed with 2:12 left. Middle guard Emery Hicks had 17 tackles.

K-State's many heroes included linebackers Danny Lankas and Lon Austin, defensive end Bill Kennedy, quarterback Bill Nossek and half-back Cornelius Davis. Austin's fumble recovery at the CSU 2 set up the first TD. Nossek flipped a short pass to Ossie Cain, who ran 49 for another.

Cards Win Final Home Encounter

By BEN BROWN

Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals played methodically all season in running away with the National League baseball championship, but the Redbirds decided to turn on the heroics in the final regular season game before the hometown fans at Busch Stadium.

Dal Maxvill after a ninth inning single to left field, scored the winning run Sunday in a 5-4 Cardinal victory over Atlanta.

The slick - fielding shortstop was on first when Alex Johnson bunted. But Atlanta's relief pitcher Cecil Upshaw, thre the ball into right field.

"I stopped at second," Maxvill said after the game, "looked, and saw the ball going into right field. I knew then I was going all the way." Maxvill rounded third and slid home safe.

With the winning run scored, Maxvill didn't wait for the fans' cheers. He darted straight for the clubhouse, the seat of his pants shredded from the slide at home plate.

St. Louis collected 10 hits off knuckleball pitcher Phil Niekro. The big blows were homers by Tim McCarver and Curt Flood. Atlanta banged nine hits, including a double and two singles by Woody Woodward.

Larry Jaster, who pitched the final two innings, got the victory in relief. The St. Louis lefthander is 9-7. Upshaw faced only two batters in getting his third defeat in five decisions.

Nelson Briles, seeking his ninth straight win, allowed seven hits and four runs in seven innings. He left for a pinch hitter with the game tied, 4-4.

"I was very erratic," Briles said after the game. "I haven't pitched in about a week. . . .My breaking ball was worst of all . . . just terrible. I just wasn't consistent."

Manager Red Schoendienst is resting his hurlers with the pennant sewed up. The Cardinals, who play their last five games on the road, are off today. They play two games in Chicago, then have another day off, and close the regular season next weekend in Atlanta.

St. Louis attracted 34,844 fans to Sunday's final home game, pushing the Redbirds' 1967 home attendant to 2,090,415, a club record.

On the other side of the state, the Kansas City Athletics inauspiciously lost to the California Angels 2-1.

Jim Nash, A's right hander, lost his 16th game for himself by overthrowing first base in the first two innings, advancing two Angel runners.

Bob Rodgers singled them home with California's two runs, one of them by Jay Johnstone, the man Nash tried to pick off first. Johnstone had beat out an infield hit to open the inning. Rick Reichardt got on with a bloop single, and scored the other run.

The A's have an open date today, then open a two-game set against the Chicago White Sox. After that, Kansas City goes to New York for a four-game weekend windup of their dismal season.

Linebacker Don Chiofaro of Belmont, Mass., Harvard football captain, made 59 unassisted tackles last season.

Notre Dame's Jim Seymour caught 13 passes in last year's game against Purdue.

The biggest single factor causing a school's low sportsmanship rating in basketball is the coach's undesirable conduct on the bench.

The attitude and behavior of the players and fans are contributing factors, but not as important in sportsmanship ratings as the manner in which the coach handles himself during a game.

These are among the conclusions in a dissertation presented by Gary Kay Cain for the doctor of education degree he received from the University of Missouri, Columbia, at its summer commencement. Cain is assistant professor of physical education at the University, where he received a bachelor's degree in 1959 and a master's in 1960.

The purpose of his doctoral study was to compare certain administrative practices and conditions in schools receiving high sportsmanship ratings with those of schools having low ratings for interscholastic basketball contests in Missouri.

Dr. Cain selected 10 senior high schools in the highest sportsmanship rating and 10 in the lowest, as ranked by the Missouri State High School Activities Association. He interviewed administrators in charge of basketball programs and 60 officials -- 30 who worked with the upper group, and 0 with the lower.

All the administrators and all the officials agreed that the coach's poor bench behavior was the most damaging factor in low sportsmanship ratings in basketball. Other conclusions listed by Dr. Cain include:

Schools with superior equipment and facilities are more likely to receive higher sportsmanship ratings.

Where the tenure of school officials associated with the basketball program is brief, the sportsmanship ratings tend to be low.

Higher ratings are not resultant from chance.

Schools with high ratings do not necessarily have winning teams, nor do schools with low ratings necessarily have losing teams.

Schools involving numerous members of the faculty in specific supervisory duties during home games tend to have fewer problems from the fans.

There is wide variation in the quality of basketball officiating in Missouri.

The experience of some officials in a few schools with low sportsmanship ratings indicates that conditions have deteriorated to a point of serious concern for the safety and well being of the officials.

American Leaguers Move Into Final Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington's unromantic Senators have shown Detroit to the door and now Tiger Manager Mayo Smith must figure out a way to keep his foot in it.

Paul Casanova and Fred Valentine were the chief cads in this tale of a broken affair and although Dan Cupid might not approve, Gil Hodges certainly did.

Casanova and Valentine delivered key singles in a three-run Washington ninth that gave the Senators a 5-4 victory over Detroit Sunday. The loss shoved the Tigers into fourth place, 1 1/2 games behind Minnesota as the torrid American League pennant race moved into its final week.

Minnesota retained its one-half game lead, beating New York 9-4 for Dean Chance's 20th victory. Boston stayed right behind the Twins by walloping Baltimore 11-4 with an 18-hit attack. Third place Chicago used four pitchers to stop Cleveland 3-1 and stayed one game behind. In another game, California edged Kansas City 2-1.

The Tigers carried a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning against Washington and were looking forward to their third straight victory over the cooperative Senators.

But Mike Epstein and Frank Coggins opened with singles. After Ken McMullen bunted into a force out, Casanova singled one run across. The affectionate Senators were getting too cozy for Smith. He brought in reliever John Hiller who retired Cap Peterson on a line drive for the second out.

Hiller got the first two strikes over to Doug Camilli, who had driven in only four runs all year. But Camilli worked the count to 3-2, fouled off several pitches and finally singled the tying run across. Valentine followed with the fifth single of the inning, scoring Casanova with the winner.

End of game and end of romance.

A giant roar went up at Metropolitan Stadium in Minnesota when the Detroit score was posted. The Twins, despite a somewhat shoddy performance by Chance, were coasting past the Yankees and protecting their lead.

Bob Allison walloped a three-run first inning home run and Harmon Killebrew tagged his 41st of the season, making it easy for Chance, who allowed 12 hits.

Detroit's trouble in Washington was greeted serenely by the Red Sox when it was posted at Baltimore. "We knew about it already," smiled Carl Yastrzemski. "My brother was sitting next to the dugout with a radio and he told us 10 minutes before it was up on the scoreboard."

Boston tore into the Orioles with Dalton Jones, George Scott and Jerry Adair smashing four hits apiece. Jones drove in five runs, giving him nine in the last week and 25 for the season.

Jim Lonborg allowed just two hits in the six innings he pitched and won his 21st game. He is expected to start two of Boston's four remaining games.

Don McMahon pitched five innings of perfect relief and then Gary Peters and Bobby Locker bailed him out of an eighth inning jam as the White Sox topped the Indians.

Chicago was leading 3-0 in the third when Cisco Carlos gave up a single and a walk. Eddie Sanky called for McMahon, who retired 14 straight batters until the eighth. Then consecutive doubles by Richie Scheinblum and Joe Azcue knocked him out.

Peters came on to get pinch hitter Tony Horton and then Locker retired the last two batters without further damage. The Indians put two men on in the ninth but Locker fed Fred Whitfield a double play ball to end the game.

Bob Rodgers singled home two runs in the first inning and California made them stand up for its victory over Kansas City.

Chiefs Headed For AFL Showdown

Cards' Bakken Sets NFL Field Goal Mark

By The Associated Press

Jim Bakken was looking so hard for the end - a National Football League field goal record - he almost lost sight of the means - the ball.

The football-style kicker set a record of seven field goals Sunday in nine attempts, also a record. His kicking also carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 28-14 upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I knew about the record, and it almost cost me," Bakken said. "When I kicked the seventh one, I wanted to see if it was any good almost before I kicked it. So I looked up and almost dubbed it. I just made it."

It just made it 23 yards and broke the mark of six set last season by soccer - style kicker Garo Yepremian of Detroit.

In other NFL games, Johnny Unitas boosted his career passing yardage past the 30,000-mark as Baltimore clobbered Philadelphia 38-6, Washington drubbed New Orleans 30-10, Dallas clipped the New York Giants 38-24, Detroit topped Cleveland 31-14 and San Francisco trounced Atlanta 38-7. Los Angeles outclassed Minnesota 39-3 Friday night.

Boston blanked Buffalo 23-0, Kansas City whipped Miami 24-0, San Diego outlasted Houston 13-3 and the New York Jets scrambled past Denver 38-24 in the American Football League.

The Cardinals, who stymied Pittsburgh with three interceptions and a fumble recovery which they converted into 16 points, scored their only touchdown on quarterback Jim Hart's 23-yard run in the first quarter.

The Kansas City Chiefs are headed for an early season showdown at Oakland with a 2-0 record in defense of their American Football League crown, thanks to a fine effort by their defensive unit and another great day by Mike Garrett in a 24-0 shutout at Miami.

Oakland has a 2-0 record like Kansas City and San Diego, in the western division. Oakland also remembers Kansas City's 48-0 romp in an exhibition at Portland.

Garrett ripped Miami for 131 yards rushing in 20 carries and caught two passes for 29 yards, including a 34-yard touchdown scamper with a Len Dawson pass in the second period, down the sidelines.

Twice Garrett gave a defender a leg and took it away in one of his best runs of the season. As usual, he wouldn't take any credit.

"The whole team was blocking for me on that play," he said. "A couple of guys got up and hit them twice - that's how slow I was moving. It wasn't because I didn't want to - I just couldn't."

As for his big day, Garrett shrugged it off, saying "I should have broken loose a couple of times more."

Garrett's 34-yarder was a screen pass off the club's shifting I formation. Coach Hank Stram said "It's the first time we've used it."

Bert Coan smashed over from the two to end a 47-yard drive and Dawson threw a 47-yard bomb to Otis Taylor for the other two TD's. Jan Stanerud kicked a 21-yard field goal.

Kansas City's defense held Miami to just 8 first downs and 20 net yards rushing. Rookie quarterback Bob Griese, scrambling for his life, hit 11 of 22 passes for 101 yards and had two intercepted. The Dolphins could get past the Chiefs' 40 only once.

Cape Falters In Final Period

Cape Girardeau State and Springfield State took it on the chin as MIAA football teams dropped four of six games against outside opposition Saturday while MCAU teams gained an even break in four games.

This left the MIAA with a 5-7 won-lost record against outsiders, while the MCAU is 6-2-2, much better than last season.

Cape had a 10-0 lead in the last quarter when Delta State scored 21 points in less than 2 1/2 minutes, on a 20-yard pass, an end zone recovery and a 69-yard punt return for a 21-10 victory. Springfield yielded a 73-yard TD on the opening play in losing 37-15 to East Texas.

Maryville State whipped Peru., Neb., 27-0 with Barry Monaghan scoring on 57 and 19-yard pass plays. Warrensburg State beat Washburn 14-0 at Topeka as Billy McCann threw to Denny Baker in a 64-yard TD play. Kirksville State was swamped 49-7 by potent Parsons of Iowa and Rolla Mines lost 14-7 to unbeaten Pittsburg, Kan., State.

Five MIAA clubs now stand 1-1 for the season, with Kirksville 0-2.

In the MCAU, William Jewell and Missouri Valley each stand 2-0 and Central Methodist took its opener 16-14 over Principia, Ill. Jewell rolled up 338 yards rushing and edged air-minded Emporia State 28-27. Valley won a league game from Graceland 21-7 as sub tailback Allen Theofilis, playing only the last half, scored three times, one a 96-yard run. Culver-Stockton outgained Iowa Wesleyan but lost its first, 25-21, while Doane, Neb., swamped Tarkio, 57-0.

MIAA teams play six more non-league games this Saturday night, two with MCAU leaders, as Maryville is at Jewell and Rolla at Valley. Kirksville is at Pittsburs, Emporia State at Warrensburg, Springfield at Washburn and Cape T Tennessee at Martin Branch in other games.

In a pair of MCAU games, Central Methodist is at Tarkio and Graceland at Culber-Stockton. Among the independents, Lincoln, 0-2 after losing to Arkansas AM&M 37-0, plays at Southern Illinois, while Washington of St. Louis, 2-0 after beating Wabash 17-7, is at Denison Ohio.

Nelson Briles, seeking his ninth straight win, allowed seven hits and four runs in seven innings. He left for a pinch hitter with the game tied, 4-4.

"I was very erratic," Briles said after the game. "I haven't pitched in about a week. . .My breaking ball was worst of all . . . just terrible. I just wasn't consistent."

Manager Red Schoendienst is resting his hurlers with the pennant sewed up. The Cardinals, who play their last five games on the road, are off today. They play two games in Chicago, then have another day off, and close the regular season next weekend in Atlanta.

St. Louis attracted 34,844 fans to Sunday's final home game, pushing the Redbirds' 1967 home attendant to 2,090,415, a club record.

On the other side of the state, the Kansas City Athletics inauspiciously lost to the California Angels 2-1.

Jim Nash, A's right hander, lost his 16th game for himself by overthrowing first base in the first two innings, advancing two Angel runners.

Bob Rodgers singled them home with California's two runs, one of them by Jay Johnstone, the man Nash tried to pick off first. Johnstone had beat out an infield hit to open the inning. Rick Reichardt got on with a bloop single, and scored the other run.

The A's have an open date today, then open a two-game set against the Chicago White Sox. After that, Kansas City goes to New York for a four-game weekend windup of their dismal season.

Linebacker Don Chiofaro of Belmont, Mass., Harvard football captain, made 59 unassisted tackles last season.

Notre Dame's Jim Seymour caught 13 passes in last year's game against Purdue.

Nash Wants to Be Included In Kansas City Trade Bunelle

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- Jim Nash is the third Kansas City Athletics pitcher to say he wants to be traded.

Jack Aker announced Friday he wanted out, and Lew Krausse said earlier he will quit baseball before he plays for owner Charles O. Finley next season.

Nash, big righthander who had an outstanding 12-1 record as a rookie in 1966, sounded off Sunday after being beaten 2-1 by California. His record this year is 12-16.

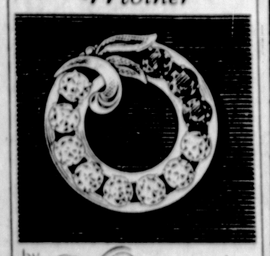

He said the Athletics had promised him that Sunday's game would be his last this season so he could go home to Marietta, Ga., and get ready to enter the Army Oct. 2.

Nash originally was scheduled to start military service in mid-October, but he arranged the earlier date so he could get out next year for the start of spring baseball training.

more than 150 servants...

working for you every day in your All-Electric Home!

You don't have to have a mansion with a butler, upstairs maid, and a full retinue of servants to live well in the Twentieth Century. Your Magic Servant, Electricity, does the work better, does more work, and does it inexpensively, too.

Whether you have a modern mansion or a cozy cottage, you live better when it's all-electric. Electricity keeps you warm or keeps you cool, washes your clothes and dries them, cooks your food and washes your dishes, provides entertainment, and does dozens of other things for you as well.

You, too, can have a housefull of servants—electrical servants—when you live in the inexpensive comfort of an all-electric home.

"WHAT you can see, you can photograph" is a miracle accepted matter-of-factly these days. We are less aware, however, that photography can penetrate the world of what we cannot see and produce images that can be exciting and revealing. The Museum of Modern Art in New York focuses on this idea currently in an exhibition called "Once Invisible." The photographs which comprise it are at once pleasing, perplexing and practical.

As conceived by the museum's director of photography, John Szarkowski, the exhibition explores three areas: photographs that stop or extend time and motion; pictures made by sound or heat or other invisible sources of energy, and images made from vantage points as yet inaccessible to man.

David B. Eisendrath Jr., a photographer and writer with wide practical experience in scientific phases of photo journalism, acted as special research consultant in tracking down many examples of these photographic phenomena.

Early photographic experimenters who pioneered in the area of stopping time and motion are represented by: Eadweard Muybridge with his sequence series showing animal and human figures in motion about 1878, and Harold Edgerton's stroboscopic studies in 1931 of a football at the instant of impact and a milk drop splash that resembles a crown.

Today, an electronic flash is a common accessory even among amateur photographers but technological progress has advanced to the point that an explosion is pictured in color at 300,000 frames per second!

The fact that photographs could be made from sources of invisible energy such as heat and sound also led to early experiments in the ultraviolet and infrared end of the spectrum. In a modern usage of infrared film, Dr. Walter Clark has a strikingly beautiful color transparency of Boston Bay's subsurface in flaming red by an evaporagraph process. And translating sound as a graphic photo pattern is illustrated by a picture of a wood thrush song.

INVISIBLE- the inner beauty of a colombine shows how an informative scientific photograph can have aesthetic appeal as well. The flower's hidden features were photographed by Eastman Kodak Company in a radiograph. It is included in the "Once Invisible" exhibition at New York's Museum of Modern Art.

Szarkowski points out that in each of these systems of picture making, new fields of photographic investigation were opened that were impossible by illumination offered by visible light.

In the area of pictures made from points inaccessible to man are examples of photographs made from unmanned NASA spaceships such as the recent moon surface shots, and color pictures of the interior of blast furnaces.

It is interesting to see that photographs made in the pursuit of scientific knowledge sometimes have artistic or aesthetic qualities as well. Not all the pictures on display have visual appeal, however, and many of the identifying captions are illegible due to hard-to-read placement and too-small lettering.

But it is remarkable, as Szarkowski sums it up, that photographs can be both a source of value as scientific documents and a source of wonder in expanding our visual imagination.

"Once Invisible" will be on view at the Museum of Modern Art until mid-September after which it will be shown at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art in California.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How do birds use their feet when diving?

A—Coots push their feet backward alternately. Other diving birds thrust their feet forward under the body, then up and outward, bringing them together in back.

Q—What is the Soviet Union's highest military decoration?

A—The Order of Victory, awarded to high officers of the army for successful campaigns. In 1945, the Russian government awarded this military decoration to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Q—Why is the grapefruit tree so named?

A—It is believed to have been named for its habit of producing fruit in large clusters, like grapes.

Q—How much of an iceberg is above water?

A—Only from one-eighth to one-tenth of the total mass.

Q—How many states in the Union observe June 14, Flag Day, as a legal holiday?

A—Only one—Pennsylvania.

Q—To what labor union did Samuel Gompers belong?

A—He was the first registered member of the Cigar-Makers' International Union.

Q—Why is the Caspian Sea really a lake?

A—It is completely surrounded by land, but its water is salty.

You almost finished school?

(Congratulations! Now you can almost get a good paying job.)

The world is full of people who almost made it. You could be one of them if you start work with a too-small education.

In today's job market, if you haven't got a good education . . . you haven't got what it takes to compete for the good-paying jobs.

Today, to get a good job, you need a good education. No two ways about it. A good education qualifies you for a better job to start with. A better salary, too. And a future that keeps on paying off year after year.

So if you're in school now . . . stay there! Learn all you can for as long as you can. If you're out of school, there are plenty of ways to get valuable training outside the classroom.

For details, get in touch with the Youth Counselor at your State Employment Service. Or visit a Youth Opportunity Center.

In the area of pictures made from points inaccessible to man are examples of photographs made from unmanned NASA spaceships such as the recent moon surface shots, and color pictures of the interior of blast furnaces.

It is interesting to see that photographs made in the pursuit of scientific knowledge sometimes have artistic or aesthetic qualities as well. Not all the pictures on display have visual appeal, however, and many of the identifying captions are illegible due to hard-to-read placement and too-small lettering.

But it is remarkable, as Szarkowski sums it up, that photographs can be both a source of value as scientific documents and a source of wonder in expanding our visual imagination.

"Once Invisible" will be on view at the Museum of Modern Art until mid-September after which it will be shown at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art in California.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How do birds use their feet when diving?

A—Coots push their feet backward alternately. Other diving birds thrust their feet forward under the body, then up and outward, bringing them together in back.

Q—What is the Soviet Union's highest military decoration?

A—The Order of Victory, awarded to high officers of the army for successful campaigns. In 1945, the Russian government awarded this military decoration to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Q—Why is the grapefruit tree so named?

A—It is believed to have been named for its habit of producing fruit in large clusters, like grapes.

Q—How much of an iceberg is above water?

A—Only from one-eighth to one-tenth of the total mass.

Q—How many states in the Union observe June 14, Flag Day, as a legal holiday?

A—Only one—Pennsylvania.

Q—To what labor union did Samuel Gompers belong?

A—He was the first registered member of the Cigar-Makers' International Union.

Q—Why is the Caspian Sea really a lake?

A—It is completely surrounded by land, but its water is salty.

You almost finished school?

(Congratulations! Now you can almost get a good paying job.)

The world is full of people who almost made it. You could be one of them if you start work with a too-small education.

In today's job market, if you haven't got a good education . . . you haven't got what it takes to compete for the good-paying jobs.

Today, to get a good job, you need a good education. No two ways about it. A good education qualifies you for a better job to start with. A better salary, too. And a future that keeps on paying off year after year.

So if you're in school now . . . stay there! Learn all you can for as long as you can. If you're out of school, there are plenty of ways to get valuable training outside the classroom.

For details, get in touch with the Youth Counselor at your State Employment Service. Or visit a Youth Opportunity Center.

To get a good job, get a good education

Former Benton Postmaster Dies in Ballwin

BENTON – Ida Mae Allen, 83, of Ballwin, formerly of Benton, died at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at a Kirkwood hospital.

She was born March 5, 1884, at Morley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryeans.

She lived at Benton 55 years before moving to Ballwin, where she lived with a daughter.

After the death in 1941 of her husband, Reece G. Allen, who was postmaster, Mrs. Allen served as postmaster. She also had been employed by the Farm Bureau and worked in the office of the Scott county treasurer.

She was a member of the Methodist church, where she served on the official board and taught Sunday school. She was active in the Women's Society of Christian Service and was extended an honorary lifetime membership because of her service to WSCS.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Rushing Jr., Ballwin, and Mrs. E. L. Alexander, Taylorville, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Addie Welman, Memphis, one half sister, Mrs. Lula Harmon, Clearwater, Fla.; one half brother, Fritz Bryeans, Kansas City, and four grandchildren.

The body is at Nunnelee Home in Sikeston.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Methodist church with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner and the Rev. Albert Gibbs officiating. Burial will be in old Benton cemetery.

Retired Benton Farmer Dies

BENTON – Cecil Thomas Minner, 70, Route 1, a retired farmer, died at 4:25 p.m. Saturday at Mt. Vernon.

He was born at Tolu, Ky., Dec. 4, 1893.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Flora Minner; five daughters, Mrs. Louis Gilliland, Sikeston; Mrs. Vernon Presson, St. Louis; Mrs. James Burnett, Chaffee; Mrs. Lois Merrick, Peoria; and Wilma Jean Minner, route one, five sons, Herbert Minner, Wilmington, Ill.; Thomas Minner, Ephrata, Wash.; Robert Minner, Benton; Cecil Minner Jr., Paducah, and Charles Minner, Eaton Rapids, Mich., and 38 grandchildren.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Nunnelee Funeral Home in Sikeston with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, First Methodist pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in old Morley cemetery.

Earl Dowdy, 65, Dies Near Essex

DEXTER -- Earl Dowdy, 65, farmer living on route one, Essex, died Sunday at 9 p.m. at his home.

He was born near Essex, Dec. 24, 1901, son of John and Florence Dowdy.

On Sept. 23, 1922, he married Bessie Payne, who survives.

Other survivors are three sisters, Mrs. Pearl Ellis, Dexter rural; Miss Sylvia Dowdy, Essex rural; and Mrs. Wilma Fletcher, Clyde, Ohio.

Services will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Watkins and Sons Chapel, with the Rev. H. Worth, Essex, and the Rev. W. H. Elledge, officiating.

Burial will be in the Dexter cemetery.

Jesse T. Moore Dies In Dexter

DEXTER--Services for Jessie Talmage Moore, 75, a retired plumber, were held in the Rainey Funeral Chapel Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with the Rev. Charles Christ, officiating. He died at his home Thursday.

Burial was in Dexter cemetery.

He was born in Humphrey county, Tenn., Dec. 23, 1891, son of Thomas Edward and Kathryne Moore. He was a member of the Sanford Church of Christ in Pemiscot county.

On Jan. 29, 1960, he was married in Malden to Pearl Cecil, who survives.

Other survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Ethel Hageman, Concord, Calif., three sisters, Mrs. Addie Kee, Mrs. Goldie Kebin and Mrs. Ann Rose, all of New Hall, Calif.; five grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Rites Conducted for Mrs. Brentlinger

DEXTER – Services were held Saturday at the Rainey Funeral Home for Mrs. B. J. Brentlinger, 49, who died Wednesday in a Cape Girardeau hospital. Burial was in the Dexter Cemetery.

Mrs. Brentlinger, born March 5, 1913, in St. Louis, was married Nov. 4, 1939. She was a member of the Dexter Eastern Star, the Veterns of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary and the First Methodist Church.

She is survived by her husband; a son, Jim; a daughter, Mrs. Gary Geyer, Dexter; her mother, Mrs. J. H. Wallace, Miami; a brother, J. L. Wallace, St. Louis; a sister, Mrs. Lee Wilson, Miami, and three grandchildren.

Services were by the Rev. Robert McCoy, pastor of the Dexter First Methodist church.

Mrs. Morgan was born July 21, 1897 in Bloomfield.

Not Really A River

Although it is sometimes so-called, Argentina's Plata is not really a river. Actually, it is a shallow, fresh-water bay into which the river system flows.

Former Benton Postmaster Dies in Ballwin

BENTON -- Ida Mae Allen, 83, of Ballwin, formerly of Benton, died at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at a Kirkwood hospital.

She was born March 5, 1884, at Morley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryeans.

She lived at Benton 55 years before moving to Ballwin, where she lived with a daughter.

After the death in 1941 of her husband, Reece G. Allen, who was postmaster, Mrs. Allen served as postmaster. She also had been employed by the Farm Bureau and worked in the office of the Scott county treasurer.

She was a member of the Methodist church, where she served on the official board and taught Sunday school. She was active in the Women's Society of Christian Service and was extended an honorary lifetime membership because of her service to WSCS.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Rushing Jr., Ballwin, and Mrs. E. L. Alexander, Taylorville, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Addie Welman, Memphis, one half sister, Mrs. Lula Harmon, Clearwater, Fla.; one half brother, Fritz Bryeans, Kansas City, and four grandchildren.

The body is at Nunnelee Home in Sikeston.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Methodist church with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner and the Rev. Albert Gibbs officiating. Burial will be in old Benton cemetery.

Ann Landers

At Concert by the Monkees Screams okay but Not Sassiness

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who spent $6 to hear the Monkees give a concert last night. It was one of the greatest experiences of my whole life. Something happened at the hall and I need to know if I was right or wrong.

My girl friend and I were screaming a lot which is only natural when the Monkees perform. A middle-aged woman about 30 was sitting in front of us. After the second number she turned around and said, "If you kids don't stop screaming in my ear I am going to scream in yours."

I told her in a polite voice that we came to scream and if she doesn't like screaming she should have stayed home and hemmed tea towels or something. She said I had a big mouth for a little girl and a few other things along that line.

Don't you think kids have a right to scream if they feel like it when the music is great? Will you please say something about older people who go to teen-age concerts and criticize kids for doing what is only natural? Thank you. -- MONKEE LOVER

Dear Lover: If you screamed in church or at the ballet I would say the woman had a right to complain, but screaming at a Monkee concert is not only in order, it is practically compulsory.

I don't think it was necessary to bring in the tea towels, however. You were right about the screaming and she was wrong, but your sassiness weakened your position and strengthened hers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sure there are some people who think you are evading the issue or looking for an easy way out when you say, "Get professional help," or "Go to a psychiatrist and talk it out of your system." I thought so, too, but now I know better.

I wrote to you a year ago about my horrible fear of spiders. It got so bad I couldn't eat without examining every bit of food. I was sure spiders were everywhere. At night I had to check every inch of bedclothes to make certain there were no spiders under the sheets or in the pillow slips.

To make matters worse, when I found an occassional spider on the window ledge I became so paralyzed with fear that I couldn't kill it. You told me to get professional help before I became afraid of everything that moved. I took your advice, Ann. And now, seven months later, I am a new woman. Thanks from the bottom of my heart. --- HELPED AND HAPPY

Dear Helped: I'm happy, too. I've said it before and I'll say it again. Therapy has proven utterly useless to some people and it has opened a whole new world to others. I am delighted it worked for your.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an old man now but I still have a very good memory. When I read the letter in your column about the mother who slipped a candy bar into her young son's pocket as she checked out her groceries in the supermarket, I recalled a story I heard in my youth.

A neighbor of ours was found guilty of murder. Before he was executed he asked to be granted one last wish---a good-bye kiss to his mother.

Permission was granted and his mother was brought to his cell. He leaned over pretending to kiss her and bit a chunk out of her ear. He then said to the guards, "When I was a child my mother taught me to steal. From stealing I went to violence and finally murder. I wanted my dear mother to have something to remember me by."

I think this true story is worth printing. --- SILVER THREADS

Dear Threads: That's a grisly story, sir, but it does make a point.

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet. "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MOPAC Switch Track Removed

50 Years Ago
September 25, 1917

The switching track has been removed from the back of the Missouri Pacific depot, and men are at work clearing and leveling the ground for a park. Sikeston in general will be glad to be rid of the track, not only because of the delay of traffic by the freight trains, but also because of the box cars that usually stand on the siding.

L. D. Randol sold his home on Williams street last week to G.W. Howell.

Dr. W. T. Avery sold his home to Clint Denman, who will take possession immediately. Dr. Avery expects to leave this city soon for St. Louis, where he will take a course of lectures on dentistry before being called into the army.

Matthews -- The Misses Daughertys have moved from their home in Sikeston to Matthews and have opened up a millinery store in Mrs. Lola McCloud's Building on North Main Street.

One of the heaviest rains that ever fell in this section visited the Sikeston vicinity Thursday evening. The government guage here showed 5.82 inches of rain.

Miss Honora Bailey left Saturday for Philadelphia, Pa., where she will resume her musical course.

Settlement of the affairs of the Aiken-Sikeston Canning Co., has been made by the directors in session last weekend. Fred Aiken, president, was present, as was the two Lange brothers interested with Mr. Aiken. As they held 51 per cent of the stock, the settlement was made on that basis, the Sikeston stockholders, who put up all the cash, will receive 49 per cent of what is left of the insurance money after all obligations, or outstanding bills are paid.

Henry Will Train At Memphis

Norman W. Henry, son of Mrs. Kathleen Hornback, left Thursday for Memphis where he will be stationed for eight months with the navy.

He will receive electronics training. He studied electronics three years in high school and worked for Steve's Electronics before entering the navy.

Henry had been here two weeks. He formerly was stationed at Great Lakes, Ill.

Henry was honored at a dinner Sunday given by his mother at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Malissie Henry, 136 Cardinal Dr. Mrs. Henry reared him.

Guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Rushing and Richard of Belknap, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hornback and children, Sheryl Ann, Ronald and Betty Jean.

Henry is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston high school.

If You Were the Judge

Psychiatrist Responsible For Her Coat and Soul

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Bessie, with a slink and a mink, entered the unattended reception room of her psychiatrist where she hung up her lush coat in a closet. Then, she went into the doctor's office where she deposited her contours on his contour couch.

For a half hour thereafter, Bessie's psychiatrist tried to cure the obscure. And, while there might have been some question as to his success, there was no question about the success of a thief who stole Bessie's coat out of the reception room closet while she was couch bound.

"How can she sue me?" the doctor protested in court when Bessie sued him for the loss of her mink. "I never even saw the coat. My job is to take care of people's minds and not their possessions."

"If he thinks he can get away with not paying me for my coat," was Bessie's answer, "then he's a 'psycho' analyist. I hung it up in his closet, which was what the closet was there for."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE would you side with Bessie or her analyst?

This is how the judge ruled: Bessie won! The judge held that normally, a person is not required to protect an item that's not delivered to him. But in this case, concluded the judge, there was an implied invitation for Bessie to hang her coat in the doctor's closet since it is not customary for a patient to lie on a psychiatrist's couch wrapped in a mink coat.

$26,275 Award For Death of Dexter Driver

POPLAR BLUFF - A judgment of $26,275 has been awarded a Dexter area woman in a civil suit in Butler county circuit court arising from the death of her husband in a car wreck.

Circuit Judge Rex Henson ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Norma Sitz, in a suit against the defendant, Jimmy D. Hogan, 21, of Gray Ridge. The case was a change of venue from the Stoddard county circuit court and a jury trial was waived.

Hogan drove a car that rammed the rear of a car driven by Herschel Lorance "Mose" Sitz, 56, a well-known Dexter area farmer. Sitz was burned critically when his car burst into flames and died four days later in a St. Louis hospital. The crash occurred last Nov. 19 on Highway 114 a mile east of Dexter.

The judgment included $25,000 for the wrongful death of Sitz and an additional $1,275 for damage to the car.

Descendants of Zimmers Gather

ADVANCE -- The descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Zimmer gathered at the Bill Rhodes home Sunday for a family reunion. This is an annual event.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Burke and James, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Barnhill and daughters Sandra and Debbie and son Eddie, all of Charleston; Mr. and Mrs. Manning Whittaker and Mitzie and Verrel, Mrs. Helen Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rhodes and David, all of Advance, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Zimmer of Sikeston.

David Rhodes was youngest present and Mrs. Zimmer the oldest.

Judge Orders Arrest for 1965 Slaying

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Dunklin county issued an order Tuesday that Howard Teeter of Steele be arrested and held without bond in connection with a murder charge dating back to 1965.

Judge Billings issued the order after a motion by Pemiscot prosecutor Joe Taylor to have Teeter's $15,000 bond increased. Rather than increase the bond, Judge Billings issued the arrest order.

Teeter 35, is charged in the shooting death of Berley Crews on March 6, 1965. He originally entered a plea of guilty before Judge William L. Ragland and was sentenced to 20 years. In later action he was allowed to withdraw that plea and Judge Ragland disqualified himself from the case.

It was then put before Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, but he, too, was disqualified and it was put before Judge Billings.

In the action Tuesday, Judge Billings set the murder trial for Dec. 15 in Pemiscot County.

Only last week, Teeter was granted a change of venue from Dunklin to Stoddard County on charges of stealing Treflan from Dunklin County firm. His alleged theft took place during the past year.

As of Wednesday afternoon the authorities had not apprehended Teeter, though there was a widespread search being made by Pemiscot County authorities.

East Prairie Works on Annual Homecoming Event

EAST PRAIRIE -- Celebrating its third annual homecoming week, Oct. 2-7, East Prairie has chosen, "Highway to Success," as the central theme for the week-long festivities. Merchants, school officials and civic clubs are working to complete plans.

The East Prairie Junior Civic club is sponsoring a contest to choose a "Little Miss and Mr. East Prairie." Contestants must live within the East Prairie or R-2 school district and be between the ages of 3 and 6. Winners will be chosen by out-of-town judges and are to be selected on personality, behavior, appearance and alertness. The winners are to be crowned Oct. 5 at the bandstand on West Main street and they will ride on a float the following afternoon in the parade.

Special recognition will be given to couples who have observed their 50th wedding anniversary.

The Kiwanis Club of East Prairie is in charge of this project under the chairmanship of the Rev. J.L. Hatchell.

Merchants will present prizes each afternoon, Monday through Friday at the bandstand.

On Oct. 6, a parade will be held starting at 3:30 p.m. That night prior to the football game the Homecoming queen will be crowned.

Ann Landers

At Concert by the Monkees Screams okay but Not Sassiness

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who spent $6 to hear the Monkees give a concert last night. It was one of the greatest experiences of my whole life. Something happened at the hall and I need to know if I was right or wrong.

My girl friend and I were screaming a lot which is only natural when the Monkees perform. A middle-aged woman about 30 was sitting in front of us. After the second number she turned around and said, "If you kids don't stop screaming in my ear I am going to scream in yours."

I told her in a polite voice that we came to scream and if she doesn't like screaming she should have stayed home and hemmed tea towels or something. She said I had a big mouth for a little girl and a few other things along that line.

Don't you think kids have a right to scream if they feel like it when the music is great? Will you please say something about older people who go to teen-age concerts and criticize kids for doing what is only natural? Thank you. -- MONKEE LOVER

Dear Lover: If you screamed in church or at the ballet I would say the woman had a right to complain, but screaming at a Monkee concert is not only in order, it is practically compulsory.

I don't think it was necessary to bring in the tea towels, however. You were right about the screaming and she was wrong, but your sassiness weakened your position and strengthened hers.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sure there are some people who think you are evading the issue or looking for an easy way out when you say, "Get professional help," or "Go to a psychiatrist and talk it out of your system." I thought so, too, but now I know better.

I wrote to you a year ago about my horrible fear of spiders. It got so bad I couldn't eat without examining every bit of food. I was sure spiders were everywhere. At night I had to check every inch of bedclothes to make certain there were no spiders under the sheets or in the pillow slips.

To make matters worse, when I found an occassional spider on the window ledge I became so paralyzed with fear that I couldn't kill it. You told me to get professional help before I became afraid of everything that moved. I took your advice, Ann. And now, seven months later, I am a new woman. Thanks from the bottom of my heart. --- HELPED AND HAPPY

Dear Helped: I'm happy, too. I've said it before and I'll say it again. Therapy has proven utterly useless to some people and it has opened a whole new world to others. I am delighted it worked for your.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an old man now but I still have a very good memory. When I read the letter in your column about the mother who slipped a candy bar into her young son's pocket as she checked out her groceries in the supermarket, I recalled a story I heard in my youth.

A neighbor of ours was found guilty of murder. Before he was executed he asked to be granted one last wish---a good-bye kiss to his mother.

Permission was granted and his mother was brought to his cell. He leaned over pretending to kiss her and bit a chunk out of her ear. He then said to the guards, "When I was a child my mother taught me to steal. From stealing I went to violence and finally murder. I wanted my dear mother to have something to remember me by."

I think this true story is worth printing. --- SILVER THREADS

Dear Threads: That's a grisly story, sir, but it does make a point.

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MOPAC Switch Track Removed

50 Years Ago
September 25, 1917

The switching track has been removed from the back of the Missouri Pacific depot, and men are at work clearing and leveling the ground for a park. Sikeston in general will be glad to be rid of the track, not only because of the delay of traffic by the freight trains, but also because of the box cars that usually stand on the siding.

L. D. Randol sold his home on Williams street last week to G.W. Howell.

Dr. W. T. Avery sold his home to Clint Denman, who will take possession immediately. Dr. Avery expects to leave this city soon for St. Louis, where he will take a course of lectures on dentistry before being called into the army.

Matthews -- The Misses Daughertys have moved from their home in Sikeston to Matthews and have opened up a millinery store in Mrs. Lola McCloud's Building on North Main Street.

One of the heaviest rains that ever fell in this section visited the Sikeston vicinity Thursday evening. The government guage here showed 5.82 inches of rain.

Miss Honora Bailey left Saturday for Philadelphia, Pa., where she will resume her musical course.

Settlement of the affairs of the Aiken-Sikeston Canning Co., has been made by the directors in session last weekend. Fred Aiken, president, was present, as was the two Lange brothers interested with Mr. Aiken. As they held 51 per cent of the stock, the settlement was made on that basis, the Sikeston stockholders, who put up all the cash, will receive 49 per cent of what is left of the insurance money after all obligations, or outstanding bills are paid.

If You Were the Judge

Psychiatrist Responsible For Her Coat and Soul

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Bessie, with a slink and a mink, entered the unattended reception room of her psychiatrist where she hung up her lush coat in a closet. Then, she went into the doctor's office where she deposited her contours on his contour couch.

For a half hour thereafter, Bessie's psychiatrist tried to cure the obscure. And, while there might have been some question as to his success, there was no question about the success of a thief who stole Bessie's coat out of the reception room closet while she was couch bound.

"How can she sue me?" the doctor protested in court when Bessie sued him for the loss of her mink. "I never even saw the coat. My job is to take care of people's minds and not their possessions."

"If he thinks he can get away with not paying me for my coat," was Bessie's answer, "then he's a 'psycho' analyist. I hung it up in his closet, which was what the closet was there for."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE would you side with Bessie or her analyst?

This is how the judge ruled: Bessie won! The judge held that normally, a person is not required to protect an item that's not delivered to him. But in this case, concluded the judge, there was an implied invitation for Bessie to hang her coat in the doctor's closet since it is not customary for a patient to lie on a psychiatrist's couch wrapped in a mink coat.

$26,275 Award For Death of Dexter Driver

POPLAR BLUFF - A judgment of $26,275 has been awarded a Dexter area woman in a civil suit in Butler county circuit court arising from the death of her husband in a car wreck.

Circuit Judge Rex Henson ruled in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Norma Sitz, in a suit against the defendant, Jimmy D. Hogan, 21, of Gray Ridge. The case was a change of venue from the Stoddard county circuit court and a jury trial was waived.

Hogan drove a car that rammed the rear of a car driven by Herschel Lorance "Mose" Sitz, 56, a well-known Dexter area farmer. Sitz was burned critically when his car burst into flames and died four days later in a St. Louis hospital. The crash occurred last Nov. 19 on Highway 114 a mile east of Dexter.

The judgment included $25,000 for the wrongful death of Sitz and an additional $1,275 for damage to the car.

Descendants of Zimmers Gather

ADVANCE -- The descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Zimmer gathered at the Bill Rhodes home Sunday for a family reunion. This is an annual event.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Burke and James, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Barnhill and daughters Sandra and Debbie and son Eddie, all of Charleston; Mr. and Mrs. Manning Whittaker and Mitzie and Verrel, Mrs. Helen Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rhodes and David, all of Advance, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Zimmer of Sikeston.

David Rhodes was youngest present and Mrs. Zimmer the oldest.

Judge Orders Arrest for 1965 Slaying

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Circuit Judge William H. Billings of Dunklin county issued an order Tuesday that Howard Teeter of Steele be arrested and held without bond in connection with a murder charge dating back to 1965.

Judge Billings issued the order after a motion by Pemiscot prosecutor Joe Taylor to have Teeter's $15,000 bond increased. Rather than increase the bond, Judge Billings issued the arrest order.

Teeter 35, is charged in the shooting death of Berley Crews on March 6, 1965. He originally entered a plea of guilty before Judge William L. Ragland and was sentenced to 20 years. In later action he was allowed to withdraw that plea and Judge Ragland disqualified himself from the case.

It was then put before Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, but he, too, was disqualified and it was put before Judge Billings.

In the action Tuesday, Judge Billings set the murder trial for Dec. 15 in Pemiscot County.

Only last week, Teeter was granted a change of venue from Dunklin to Stoddard County on charges of stealing Treflan from Dunklin County firm. His alleged theft took place during the past year.

As of Wednesday afternoon the authorities had not apprehended Teeter, though there was a widespread search being made by Pemiscot County authorities.

East Prairie Works on Annual Homecoming Event

EAST PRAIRIE -- Celebrating its third annual homecoming week, Oct. 2-7, East Prairie has chosen, "Highway to Success," as the central theme for the week-long festivities. Merchants, school officials and civic clubs are working to complete plans.

The East Prairie Junior Civic club is sponsoring a contest to choose a "Little Miss and Mr. East Prairie." Contestants must live within the East Prairie or R-2 school district and be between the ages of 3 and 6. Winners will be chosen by out-of-town judges and are to be selected on personality, behavior, appearance and alertness. The winners are to be crowned Oct. 5 at the bandstand on West Main street and they will ride on a float the following afternoon in the parade.

Special recognition will be given to couples who have observed their 50th wedding anniversary.

The Kiwanis Club of East Prairie is in charge of this project under the chairmanship of the Rev. J.L. Hatchell.

Merchants will present prizes each afternoon, Monday through Friday at the bandstand.

On Oct. 6, a parade will be held starting at 3:30 p.m. That night prior to the football game the Homecoming queen will be crowned.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 1967. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1789, the first Congress of the United States, meeting in New York, adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution. Ten of these amendments became the Bill of Rights.

On this date:

In 1513, Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean.

In 1775, Ethan Allen was captured in an attack on Montreal.

In 1890, Congress established Yosemite National Park in California.

In 1940, the Quisling government was established in Norway.

In 1941, the duke and duchess of Windsor were welcomed at the White House.

In 1942, nationwide gasoline rationing was ordered.

Five years ago • The three Western powers accused Russia of refusal to negotiate a reduction of tension and violence in Berlin.

One year ago • Two typhoons left more than 300 dead or missing in Japan and caused nearly five million dollars in damage to U.S. bases.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 1967. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1789, the first Congress of the United States, meeting in New York, adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution. Ten of these amendments became the Bill of Rights.

On this date:

In 1513, Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean.

In 1775, Ethan Allen was captured in an attack on Montreal.

In 1890, Congress established Yosemite National Park in California.

In 1940, the Quisling government was established in Norway.

In 1941, the duke and duchess of Windsor were welcomed at the White House.

In 1942, nationwide gasoline rationing was ordered.

Five years ago - The three Western powers accused Russia of refusal to negotiate a reduction of tension and violence in Berlin.

One year ago - Two typhoons left more than 300 dead or missing in Japan and caused nearly five million dollars in damage to U.S. bases.

American Motors' new entry in the sporty car is the sleek, low-profiled Javelin hardtop, available in two versions, standard and the SST model shown. Exceptionally roomy inside with full, four-passenger seating, the Javelin's classic appearance is enhanced by the fast-angle windshield, narrow dual pin strips that follow the graceful body contours, and twin Venturi grille.

American Motors Corporation
Detroit, Michigan 48232

American Motor's Rebel line for 1968 has undergone front end styling refinements, including a new hood treatment and new grille. Exterior trim changes on the SST hardtop, illustrated, include new wheel covers and full-length fender peak molding; 290 V-8 engine is standard with 343 V-8s optional.

DETROIT -- Paced by its new entry in the sporty-car field, the Javelin, American Motors' 1968 model lineup signals a change in the company's styling and performance concepts.

Besides the jaunty Javelin, which represents a radical departure from traditional American Motors' offerings, the company has introduced a new low-priced convertible in its best selling Rebel line. In addition, a two-door hardtop and four-door luxury sedan have been added to AM's top-line Ambassador series.

"The 23 models in our 1968 line vide a complete selection of body types for every individual and family requirement, organized into four car lines, each with its own distinctive appeal," said William S. Pickett, vice president of auto sales.

"At the same time we have continued to concentrate our models, in terms of car-size and prize, in the area of the market that continues to provide most of the industry's growth opportunity."

In addition to the sporty, special-purpose Javeline, which appears in two hardtop versions, the 1968 standard American Motors lines include:

The multi-purpose Rebel series, intermediate in size, with nine models in four body types and three series.

The luxury Ambassador, intermediate in size, with seven models in three body types and three series.

The economy Rambler American, compact in size, with five models in four body types and three series.

The Rebel and Ambassador lines both will offer three hardtop versions, the Rambler American one. There are four-door sedans and four-door station wagons in all three standard lines. The Ambassador has increased its four-door sedans to three with the addition of an elegant new SST version.

Compared with 1967, the number of Rebel versions has been increased from eight to nine, the number of Ambassador types reduced from eight to seven, and the number of Rambler American choices reduced from nine to five, Pickett said. The entire line in 1967 totaled 26 models.

"Passenger safety continues uppermost in our minds," emphasized Pickett. "Our 1968s are easily the safest, most reliable AM cars ever produced, and they include numerous features inside and out that will substantially improve motoring pleasure and increase safety."

More than a dozen new safety features will be included as standard equipment on the 1968 models. These include such items as side-of-car safety markers, illuminated on most models, safety-shaped armrests and interior control knobs and handles, seat back locks on two-door models, a new mechanical brake light switch, padding for key interior areas and components, and non-glare finishes for certain interior items. Front seat shoulder belts, plus front and rear center passenger seat belts are options.

Exhaust emission control requirements, applicable in all states commencing with 1968 engines, have been met by incorporating the Engine-Mod system on six-cylinder engines and V-8s with automatic transmission. The Air-Guard air pump system will continue on all manual transmission V-8 engines. On sixes, the Engine-Mod system includes new pistons, head and head gasket, as well as new carburetor and distributor settings.

On V-8s the Engine-Mod system incorporates a new thermostatically controlled carburetor air cleaner which, besides aiding emission control, improves cold-weather engine operation.

A total of seven engines are offered in the 1968 American Motors line, ranging from 128 to 155 horsepower in the Torque Command six-cylinder series, and from 200 to 280 horsepower in the V-8s.

Improvements in AM's Typhoon V-8 engines with four-barrel carburetors include revisions in the intake manifold resulting in smoother engine operation, particularly at idle and low speeds.

All V-8s in the 343-cu.-in. series feature cylinder head changes for 1968 which provide increased passage for air-fuel mixtures and substantially better engine efficiency.

The Rebel SST and Ambassador SST are equipped with high performance 290 V-8s. Six-cylinder engines are standard on all but two American Motors cars for 1968.

Full synchromesh shifting is standard on all three-speed manual transmissions, except in combination with the basic Rambler American 199 engine. Another engineering improvement in the '68s is new self-adjusting action for the front band on all automatic transmissions, eliminating periodic adjustments.

A new pre-set door locking system is an exclusive feature on American Motors cars for 1968. To secure the door while driving, the passenger depresses a small lock lever, conveniently located in the safety styled arm rest. Leaving the car, the passenger can lock the opened door by depressing the lock lever, then pulling and releasing either inside or outside door handle. The door then locks automatically when it closes.

Flush-mounted, rectangular outside door handles enhance the safety and appearance of the exteriors of Javelin, Ambassador and Rebel models. Exceptionally easy to operate, the spring-loaded, paddle-type handles incorporate the key lock, protected against freezing by the recessed handle mounting.

More comfortable front seating and increased front legroom are featured in all 1968 American Motors cars.

Other engineering improvements made in the 1968 Rebel and Ambassador series include new front and rear coil springs on sedans, hardtops, and convertibles, resulting in increased road clearance, improvements in front suspension that facilitate under-car servicing, and the addition of a new ignition coil system on six-cylinder engine models that increases engine starting voltage.

A variety of handling packages are available for most of the new models. In most cases they include front sway bar and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers.

American Motors' 1968 model passenger cars go on sale in dealer showrooms Tuesday, September 26.

REBEL

American Motors' top-selling intermediate line of passenger cars, Rebel, offers one of the widest model choices ever for 1968, including a new convertible and a new two-door hardtop.

Three distinct series are featured in the line -- 550, 770, and the top-line SST. New for 1968 is a 550 convertible, expected to be the lowest priced convertible of its size on the market.

As does its more luxuriously trimmed companion, the Rebel SST convertible, the 550 seats six passengers and features a power-operated top and glass rear window as standard equipment.

Also new this year is a 550 two-door hardtop model introduced to meet the growing popularity in this particular body style. This intermediate will be priced with most compacts.

A total of nine Rebel models are now available, including sedans and station wagons in the 550 and 770 series.

Rebel's striking Venturi grille has been restyled for 1968 and, together with the housings for the horizontally mounted dual headlamps, is constructed of high-strength injection molded ABS plastic.

A new hood treatment also is featured, consisting of twin recessed sections flowing back into a new slanted louver fresh air intake.

Taillights, redesigned for all models except station wagons, are triple-lensed and stacked horizontally. New trim has been added to wagon taillights, which retain their canted, vertical design.

Individual adjustable reclining seats and smartly fashioned custom fabric upholstery are included on all SST models. New non-glare finishes appear on potentially-reflective interior surfaces.

All Rebel wagons feature roof-top travel racks as standard equipment.

Rebel SST models have American Motors' 290 Typhoon V-8 engine as standard equipment with other V-8s ranging up to 280 horsepower available. The high-performance Torque Command 232 is the basic six-cylinder powerplant on all other Rebel models, with all other AM engines available.

The standard three-speed manual transmission is fully synchronized, regardless of engine type. All three-speed automatic transmissions feature full automatic or manual control in all gears, whether column or console mounted.

An optional handling package for Rebel six-cylinder models, excepting station wagons, includes a front sway bar, and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers. Wagons and all V-8 engine models, on which front sway bars are standard equipment, have heavy duty springs and shock absorbers available as a handling package option.

AMBASSADOR

New nameplates lead off the many design changes evident in American Motors' 1968 Ambassador line of passenger cars.

The series now offers seven models in three series: Ambassador, Ambassador DPL and Ambassador SST, a V-8 powered luxury automobile certain to satisfy the most discriminating taste. A number of luxury features have been incorporated at no additional cost.

New to the line are a four-door sedan in the SST series and a new two-door Ambassador hardtop. In all, the line ofers three four-door sedan models, three two-door hardtops, and a four-door DPL station wagon.

Highlighting styling refinements in the '68 Ambassadors is a new V-profile airfoil-type grille of high strength injection molded ABS plastic. New housings for the vertically aligned dual headlamps are of injection molded nylon.

A new hood for the Ambassador features recessed sections on either side of the hood midline that flow back to vertical fresh air intakes just forward of the windshield.

Park and turn signals are mounted in the grille of the SST model in rally-light fashion, and in other Ambassador models are housed in the bumper.

All '68 Ambassador models, except station wagons, have new stacked dual lens taillights for improved visibility. Wagons feature new trim over the vertical one-piece lens.

Other tasteful trim additions include new slotted disc wheel covers for DPL and SST models, new moldings at the lower body crease line and across the rear. The four-door DPL wagon includes a roof-top travel rack as standard equipment.

The Ambassador SST is powered by American Motors' 290 cubic inch Typhoon V-8 with two 343 V-8s available. Other Ambassador models are equipped with 232 Torque Command sixes with other engines optional. The standards three-speed manual transmissions is full-synchromesh for 1968 and all three-speed automatic transmissions provide full automatic or manual control whether the control is column or console mounted.

RAMBLER AMERICAN

American Motors' "impact" car, the 1968 Rambler American, reflect the stabilized design continuity that has helped make it the best buy on the road today.

A number of product improvements have been made in the car whose price falls squarely in between the small imported cars and the more expensive U. S.-built compacts.

Highlighting modest styling refinements are slightly lower, sleeker contoured rooflines for the two and four-door sedans and a new fine line extruded aluminum grille for all models. Single headlamps, set in stamped aluminum housings, flank the new grille. Park and turn signals are deep set in the front bumper.

New front-and-rear safety marker reflectors are positioned at either end of new full-length side mouldings on the 440 series and the Rogue. The reflectors, amber in front and red at the rear, also appear on standard American models.

All American models retain their compact dimensions, 181 inches overall length on a 106-inch wheelbase.

Front seat legroom in the surprisingly roomy American has been increased and front seat backs have been angled slightly rearward to provide improved riding comfort.

A new standard powerplant for all Rogue hardtops is the 145 horsepower, 232 six-cylinder engine modified to provide increased fuel economy. Also available in conjunction with the automatic transmission option on the Rogue is a new 2.37 economy axle ratio. A variety of high performance sixes and V-8s is also offered on all Americans.

Handling package options for 1968 Rambler American models include, for sixes, front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers; for V-8 powered models, a large diameter front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers, and wheel rims five and one-half inches in width.

Either we're charging too little, or everyone else is charging too much.

Rambler American. The only U.S. car that could stop you from buying an import.

At a price very close to the leading import, the American seats six people instead of four.

It gives you nearly twice as much room in the trunk and more than twice as much engine under the hood.

Like the imports, the American doesn't change its style every year, gets about 20 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

Unlike some imports, it never gives you the feeling that you're driving a toy.

Rebel. America's most underrated car.

The Rebel 550 Hardtop is the lowest priced intermediate sized hardtop in America.[1]

It looks sporty, drives sporty and still gives you all the things that most people buy a car for.

The Rebel—Hardtop, Wagon, Sedan or Convertible, V8 or 6—is everything we think a car should be.

Before you pay more for an intermediate, make sure you get as much.

Ambassador. The car with air conditioning as standard equipment.

Air conditioning has been around for a long time, but so far only a few companies—the people who make Rolls Royce for one—have had the good sense to include it in their cars at no extra cost.

We're another.

We just don't understand why someone should be asked to pay a lot of money for a luxury car and then be asked to pay over $300 more for the luxury of air conditioning.

Introducing the Javelin.

Although we've always had the reputation for making sensibly priced, well-built cars, we've never had the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

We'll soon have the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

The front and rear bumpers on the Javelin are massive. Unlike thin blade bumpers, these give the car a rich, racy look.

The side windows on the Javelin are solid sheets of curved glass, without vents to break up its fast lines.

The Javelin SST comes with wheel discs, special exterior trim, reclining bucket seats and a woodgrain steering wheel, all standard.

And all for a lower price than the other sporty hardtops.[1]

The Rebel and Ambassador lines both will offer three hardtop versions, the Rambler American one. There are four-door sedans and four-door station wagons in all three standard lines. The Ambassador has increased its four-door sedans to three with the addition of an elegant new SST version.

Compared with 1967, the number of Rebel versions has been increased from eight to nine, the number of Ambassador types reduced from eight to seven, and the number of Rambler American choices reduced from nine to five, Pickett said. The entire line in 1967 totaled 26 models.

"Passenger safety continues uppermost in our minds," emphasized Pickett. "Our 1968s are easily the safest, most reliable AM cars ever produced, and they include numerous features inside and out that will substantially improve motoring pleasure and increase safety."

More than a dozen new safety features will be included as standard equipment on the 1968 models. These include such items as side-of-car safety markers, illuminated on most models, safety-shaped armrests and interior control knobs and handles, seat back locks on two-door models, a new mechanical brake light switch, padding for key interior areas and components, and non-glare finishes for certain interior items. Front seat shoulder belts, plus front and rear center passenger seat belts are options.

Exhaust emission control requirements, applicable in all states commencing with 1968 engines, have been met by incorporating the Engine-Mod system on six-cylinder engines and V-8s with automatic transmission. The Air-Guard air pump system will continue on all manual transmission V-8 engines. On sixes, the Engine-Mod system includes new pistons, head and head gasket, as well as new carburetor and distributor settings.

On V-8s the Engine-Mod system incorporates a new thermostatically controlled carburetor air cleaner which, besides aiding emission control, improves cold-weather engine operation.

A total of seven engines are offered in the 1968 American Motors line, ranging from 128 to 155 horsepower in the Torque Command six-cylinder series, and from 200 to 280 horsepower in the V-8s.

Improvements in AM's Typhoon V-8 engines with four-barrel carburetors include revisions in the intake manifold resulting in smoother engine operation, particularly at idle and low speeds.

All V-8s in the 343-cu.-in. series feature cylinder head changes for 1968 which provide increased passage for air-fuel mixtures and substantially better engine efficiency.

The Rebel SST and Ambassador SST are equipped with high performance 290 V-8s. Six-cylinder engines are standard on all but two American Motors cars for 1968.

Full synchromesh shifting is standard on all three-speed manual transmissions, except in combination with the basic Rambler American 199 engine. Another engineering improvement in the '68s is new self-adjusting action for the front band on all automatic transmissions, eliminating periodic adjustments.

A new pre-set door locking system is an exclusive feature on American Motors cars for 1968. To secure the door while driving, the passenger depresses a small lock lever, conveniently located in the safety styled arm rest. Leaving the car, the passenger can lock the opened door by depressing the lock lever, then pulling and releasing either inside or outside door handle. The door then locks automatically when it closes.

Flush-mounted, rectangular outside door handles enhance the safety and appearance of the exteriors of Javelin, Ambassador and Rebel models. Exceptionally easy to operate, the spring-loaded, paddle-type handles incorporate the key lock, protected against freezing by the recessed handle mounting.

More comfortable front seating and increased front legroom are featured in all 1968 American Motors cars.

Other engineering improvements made in the 1968 Rebel and Ambassador series include new front and rear coil springs on sedans, hardtops, and convertibles, resulting in increased road clearance, improvements in front suspension that facilitate under-car servicing, and the addition of a new ignition coil system on six-cylinder engine models that increases engine starting voltage.

A variety of handling packages are available for most of the new models. In most cases they include front sway bar and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers.

American Motors' 1968 model passenger cars go on sale in dealer showrooms Tuesday, September 26.

REBEL

American Motors' top-selling intermediate line of passenger cars, Rebel, offers one of the widest model choices ever for 1968, including a new convertible and a new two-door hardtop.

Three distinct series are featured in the line -- 550, 770, and the top-line SST. New for 1968 is a 550 convertible, expected to be the lowest priced convertible of its size on the market.

As does its more luxuriously trimmed companion, the Rebel SST convertible, the 550 seats six passengers and features a power-operated top and glass rear window as standard equipment.

Also new this year is a 550 two-door hardtop model introduced to meet the growing popularity in this particular body style. This intermediate will be priced with most compacts.

A total of nine Rebel models are now available, including sedans and station wagons in the 550 and 770 series.

Rebel's striking Venturi grille has been restyled for 1968 and, together with the housings for the horizontally mounted dual headlamps, is constructed of high-strength injection molded ABS plastic.

A new hood treatment also is featured, consisting of twin recessed sections flowing back into a new slanted louver fresh air intake.

Taillights, redesigned for all models except station wagons, are triple-lensed and stacked horizontally. New trim has been added to wagon taillights, which retain their canted, vertical design.

Individual adjustable reclining seats and smartly fashioned custom fabric upholstery are included on all SST models. New non-glare finishes appear on potentially-reflective interior surfaces.

All Rebel wagons feature roof-top travel racks as standard equipment.

Rebel SST models have American Motors' 290 Typhoon V-8 engine as standard equipment with other V-8s ranging up to 280 horsepower available. The high-performance Torque Command 232 is the basic six-cylinder powerplant on all other Rebel models, with all other AM engines available.

The standard three-speed manual transmission is fully synchronized, regardless of engine type. All three-speed automatic transmissions feature full automatic or manual control in all gears, whether column or console mounted.

An optional handling package for Rebel six-cylinder models, excepting station wagons, includes a front sway bar, and heavy duty springs and shock absorbers. Wagons and all V-8 engine models, on which front sway bars are standard equipment, have heavy duty springs and shock absorbers available as a handling package option.

AMBASSADOR

New nameplates lead off the many design changes evident in American Motors' 1968 Ambassador line of passenger cars.

The series now offers seven models in three series: Ambassador, Ambassador DPL and Ambassador SST, a V-8 powered luxury automobile certain to satisfy the most discriminating taste. A number of luxury features have been incorporated at no additional cost.

New to the line are a four-door sedan in the SST series and a new two-door Ambassador hardtop. In all, the line ofers three four-door sedan models, three two-door hardtops, and a four-door DPL station wagon.

Highlighting styling refinements in the '68 Ambassadors is a new V-profile airfoil-type grille of high strength injection molded ABS plastic. New housings for the vertically aligned dual headlamps are of injection molded nylon.

A new hood for the Ambassador features recessed sections on either side of the hood midline that flow back to vertical fresh air intakes just forward of the windshield.

Park and turn signals are mounted in the grille of the SST model in rally-light fashion, and in other Ambassador models are housed in the bumper.

All '68 Ambassador models, except station wagons, have new stacked dual lens taillights for improved visibility. Wagons feature new trim over the vertical one-piece lens.

Other tasteful trim additions include new slotted disc wheel covers for DPL and SST models, new moldings at the lower body crease line and across the rear. The four-door DPL wagon includes a roof-top travel rack as standard equipment.

The Ambassador SST is powered by American Motors' 290 cubic inch Typhoon V-8 with two 343 V-8s available. Other Ambassador models are equipped with 232 Torque Command sixes with other engines optional. The standards three-speed manual transmissions is full-synchromesh for 1968 and all three-speed automatic transmissions provide full automatic or manual control whether the control is column or console mounted.

RAMBLER AMERICAN

American Motors' "impact" car, the 1968 Rambler American, reflect the stabilized design continuity that has helped make it the best buy on the road today.

A number of product improvements have been made in the car whose price falls squarely in between the small imported cars and the more expensive U. S.-built compacts.

Highlighting modest styling refinements are slightly lower, sleeker contoured rooflines for the two and four-door sedans and a new fine line extruded aluminum grille for all models. Single headlamps, set in stamped aluminum housings, flank the new grille. Park and turn signals are deep set in the front bumper.

New front-and-rear safety marker reflectors are positioned at either end of new full-length side mouldings on the 440 series and the Rogue. The reflectors, amber in front and red at the rear, also appear on standard American models.

All American models retain their compact dimensions, 181 inches overall length on a 106-inch wheelbase.

Front seat legroom in the surprisingly roomy American has been increased and front seat backs have been angled slightly rearward to provide improved riding comfort.

A new standard powerplant for all Rogue hardtops is the 145 horsepower, 232 six-cylinder engine modified to provide increased fuel economy. Also available in conjunction with the automatic transmission option on the Rogue is a new 2.37 economy axle ratio. A variety of high performance sixes and V-8s is also offered on all Americans.

Handling package options for 1968 Rambler American models include, for sixes, front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers; for V-8 powered models, a large diameter front sway bar, heavy duty springs and shock absorbers, and wheel rims five and one-half inches in width.

Either we're charging too little, or everyone else is charging too much.

Rambler American. The only U.S. car that could stop you from buying an import.

At a price very close to the leading import, the American seats six people instead of four.

It gives you nearly twice as much room in the trunk and more than twice as much engine under the hood.

Like the imports, the American doesn't change its style every year, gets about 20 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

Unlike some imports, it never gives you the feeling that you're driving a toy.

Rebel. America's most underrated car.

The Rebel 550 Hardtop is the lowest priced intermediate sized hardtop in America.[1]

It looks sporty, drives sporty and still gives you all the things that most people buy a car for.

The Rebel—Hardtop, Wagon, Sedan or Convertible, V8 or 6—is everything we think a car should be.

Before you pay more for an intermediate, make sure you get as much.

Ambassador. The car with air conditioning as standard equipment.

Air conditioning has been around for a long time, but so far only a few companies—the people who make Rolls Royce for one—have had the good sense to include it in their cars at no extra cost.

We're another.

We just don't understand why someone should be asked to pay a lot of money for a luxury car and then be asked to pay over $300 more for the luxury of air conditioning.

Introducing the Javelin.

Although we've always had the reputation for making sensibly priced, well-built cars, we've never had the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

We'll soon have the reputation for making hot, sporty cars.

The front and rear bumpers on the Javelin are massive. Unlike thin blade bumpers, these give the car a rich, racy look.

The side windows on the Javelin are solid sheets of curved glass, without vents to break up its fast lines.

The Javelin SST comes with wheel discs, special exterior trim, reclining bucket seats and a woodgrain steering wheel, all standard.

And all for a lower price than the other sporty hardtops.[1]
